

TRIP FOR A DIVORCE.

Depositions as to Mrs. George's Stay in the West.

SAXTON VISITED HER THERE.

Witnesses Testified That Lighted Matches Were Necessary to Identify the Dead Man the Night of the Murder—Mr. Eckroate Testified.

CANTON, April 19.—The defense in the trial of Mrs. George spent the first half of the session in reading depositions regarding her trip to South Dakota to get a divorce from Sample George, her life while there, and the visits Saxton paid to her. The remainder of the session was occupied in examining witnesses on matters connected directly with the homicide, and in answer to the testimony introduced on the part of the state.

The attorneys for the defense talked of finishing their testimony this week, but said if they did so they would not call all of the 100 or more witnesses subpoenaed.

Some of the time of the trial was devoted to the reading of depositions in Sioux Falls, Canton, S. D., and Inwood, Ia. These covered Mrs. George's residence in South Dakota when she was there to get a divorce from Sample C. George. Objections were made to some of the matter and there was a great deal of controversy between attorneys.

Charles M. Seeley testified that during the winter of 1891 and 1892 Mrs. George stopped at his hotel in Canton, S. D., and that Saxton came there for a week. They were on friendly terms and were often together.

R. E. Rodelph testified to having represented Sample C. George in the divorce case.

Cashier Brown of the Lincoln County bank of Canton, S. D., said he had cashed $450 in checks on which the names of Mrs. George and Saxton appeared.

Robert Hunter and T. F. Ronayur of Sioux City testified that Saxton and Mrs. George registered as man and wife at the Boogie House, Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 16, 1892. The signature was afterward cut out of the register. Lesley M. Foote, clerk of a hotel at Inwood, Ia., testified that he had cashed some checks from Saxton to Mrs. George while they were at the hotel.

Joseph Eckroate keeps the corner grocery that figures so conspicuously in the case. He said in part: "I was about through with supper when I heard the first shot. I finished my supper and then went to the front yard. My daughter, Mrs. Huvig, was at the gate. The night was dark."

As to the trees, witness said the limbs hung lower than now, and were pretty full of leaves. He had not at the time nor at any time afterwards while leaves were on the trees noticed how much the trees obstructed the view from the windows of his house of the Althouse steps and lawn. Witness said he looked Monday from the window of his bed room, from which Mrs. Eckroate says she saw the shooting to the Althouse steps, and found a cherry tree on a line from the window to the south side of the steps."

Before the state had concluded his cross-examination it developed that he is 66 years of age, blind in one eye and that he did not have on his glasses when he looked out to see what was to be seen at the Althouse place across the street.

Joseph Schmidt, a 13-year-old boy living near the Althouse residence, told of hearing the shots and calling the police. He could not tell who the dead man was until matches were lighted.

John Berger, one of the first to reach the scene, said he did not recognize Saxton's body until matches were lighted, but this was largely on account of the face being turned downward.

Jacob Dippish and August Borong gave similar testimony. The latter said there were some obstruction to the view from the window from which his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eckroate, claims to have seen and identified Mrs. George.

Mrs. Francis Dederman said it was so dark on the night of the tragedy that the body could not be recognized until light was thrown upon it.

Charles Huth and his wife said the street car on which Mrs. George is said to have gone to Hazlett avenue did not cross the tracks until three or four minutes after 6. The state's evidence was that the car had reached Hazlett avenue about 5:55.

The Investigation Postponed.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The investigation of the Cleveland and Sandusky Brewing company, the so-called beer trust, by Attorney General Monnett was postponed for another week on the application of the attorneys for the brewing company. The hearing will begin April 26.

To Prosecute Alleged Bribers.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—The house adopted the bribery reports, also a supplementary one appointing a committee to bring legal action against those named.

QUAY LOST 14 VOTES.

The Anti-Quayites and Their Recruits Cast Their Ballots for B. F. Jones for Senator.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—Fourteen votes dropped away from Senator Quay at the joint ballot for United States senator. The anti-Quay Republicans and the followers of Senator C. L. Magee of Pittsburg, combined and cast their votes for B. F. Jones, of Pittsburg. The break was started by Senator Crawford of Allegheny, who switched from Quay to Jones, and was followed by Senators Magee of Allegheny, Losch of Schuylkill and Scott of Luzerne.

The first break from the Quay ranks in the list of members was Mr. Clark, of Washington, whose colleague, Mr. McLaren, went with him. Mr. Murdoch, the third member from Washington, remained loyal to Colonel Quay. Others who changed from Quay to Jones were Messrs. Hosack, Klump, McFarlane, McWhinney, Nisbet, Robison, Shaw and Snodgrass, of Allegheny.

After the announcement of the ballot Senator C. L. Magee, in speaking of his action in breaking away from ex-Senator Quay, said:

"I believe that the Republican party is greater than any man in it. The Republicans of Pennsylvania want a senator elected, and if one is not elected I am satisfied it will mean an awful political battle this fall, and possibly defeat. So long as there was an earnest desire on the part of Quay to be elected, and there was a hope of it, I remained with him, but when his henchmen started the cry of 'Quay or nobody' I thought it was time for making an effort to elect some good Republican. Quay is an impossibility and he knows it, just as every other citizen of Pennsylvania does."

"I notified him several weeks ago that I would not be a party to continuing a deadlock, and that is the reason I today voted for Hon. B. F. Jones of Pittsburg. Tomorrow (Wednesday) will be the last day for taking a joint ballot, and I hope that between now and then it will be possible to elect a senator."

Insurance Commissioner Durham, the recognized leader of the Quay faction, said:

"At the outside, I don't believe more than 20 members will go over to the anti-Quay camp, including those additional ones who are expected to leave us (Wednesday). That number cannot effect the election of a United States senator and the legislature will adjourn at noon on Thursday without having chosen a successor to M. S. Quay. We are entirely satisfied with this result and are content to go before the people at the coming elections and let them decide where lies the blame."

The ballot, which was the seventy-ninth, resulted as follows: Quay, 93; Jenks, 85; Jones, 69; total, 247; necessary to a choice, 124; paired or not voting, 6; no election.

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES.

Rockhill Resigned as Minister to Greece, Which Resulted in Several Appointments—Minister to Portugal.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The following important diplomatic changes were announced as the result of the cabinet meeting:

W. W. Rockhill, now minister to Greece, resigned that position. Arthur Sherburne Hardy, of New Hampshire, now minister to Persia, was promoted to succeed Mr. Rockhill. Wm. P. Lord, ex-governor of Oregon, was appointed minister to Persia. The Hon. John N. Irwin, of Iowa, formerly governor of Idaho, was appointed minister to Portugal to succeed Lawrence Townsend, transferred to Belgium in place of Belamy Storer, appointed to Madrid.

Mr. Rockhill's resignation was purely voluntary and was caused by personal and domestic considerations. Mrs. Rockhill died while he was stationed at Athens and he lost all desire to remain. He is now on his way home with his two children and the remains of his wife.

Ex-Governor William P. Lord of Oregon is a lawyer who has been quite prominent in state politics. Five years ago he was elected governor, being the first Republican governor of the state in eight years.

Mr. Irwin was born in Ohio.

GOMPERS ON UNION METHODS.

Defense Fund and Boycott Very Valuable to Labor Organizations.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal witness before the industrial commission.

He said the defense fund was the greatest safeguard of the trades union. The question of laws to provide for the corporation of trades unions did not meet with Mr. Gompers' approval. He said that employers and corporations could have no more deadly weapon against organized labor than the legal right to sue it and mulct its treasury. The fact that an incorporated union could also sue an employer for a breach of contract was not a compensating advantage in his eyes.

The boycott, Mr. Gompers declared, was not a legal but an inherent right which had been exercised under varying names from time immemorial. He considered it a useful and legitimate weapon of labor.

HELPED QUAY'S CASE.

Goldsmith's Testimony Rather Badly Shattered.

SMALL SUM OWED BY QUAY.

The Cross-Examination Developed He Was Not in Debt to the Bank for a Large Amount—Probable Line of Defense Indicated.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—The defense had its innings in the trial of Senator Quay, and it made the best of its opportunity. Expert Accountant Meyer Goldsmith, the commonwealth's witness was under a scorching fire of cross-examination, and the result thereof justifies the opinion that the net work of evidence brought by the prosecution from the books of the broken bank tending to show Senator Quay's guilty participation in the unlawful use of the bank's money, was very much shaken by the admissions the witness was compelled to make under the skillful questioning of Attorney A. S. L. Shields, admittedly the best cross-examiner practicing at the Philadelphia bar. Nearly all of the apparently damaging entries attached to Senator Quay's name or account in the bank as testified to previously were explained away or greatly modified by the statements of the commonwealth's own witness. Judge Bidle's ruling of Monday had the effect of confirming testimony tending to show the existence of a conspiracy between Quay, Haywood and Hopkins, as charged in the indictment, to the two years ending November 17, 1898.

Lawyer Shields got from the witness the admission that if Hopkins had properly credited Senator Quay's account with amounts that belonged there, the books would show that at the beginning of the alleged conspiracy Nov. 17, 1896, the senator owed the bank $236 instead of over $70,000, as was alleged. Taking up the allegation that Senator Quay had borrowed $185,000 during the "settlement period" ending Oct. 31, 1897, the last settlement before the bank closed, Mr. Shields forced from Goldsmith, piece by piece, facts tending to show that in nearly every instance the amounts charged to Senator Quay were really loans to other persons, politicians mostly, for whom Quay endorsed. Where there was a definite loan to Senator Quay the repayment was clearly proven. In this connection it might be well to say that District Attorney Rothel claims that he has clearly established the fact he started out to prove, namely, that $200,000 of the state deposit in the bank was set aside for the use of Senator Quay and whether he used it himself or loaned it to others is not material in proving the conspiracy.

Toward the close of the proceedings Mr. Shields asked Goldsmith some questions which indicated that the defense was about to attempt to prove its contention that Senator Quay was the victim of Cashier Hopkins, who, they asserted used the name and account of the senator without the latter's knowledge to cover his own juggling with the bank's funds.

Hopkins, they said, appeared to have used fictitious names for loans, presumably to himself, as well as the name of Senator Quay. He had the reputation of being a heavy speculator in the stock market, and the inference was that the defense would attempt to prove that Senator Quay had no knowledge whatsoever of the alleged loans on his account.

Mr. Shields put a different complexion on the entries in the red book by compelling the witness to admit that many of his figures were not proven by entries in the regular bank books, but were the result of what he practically acknowledged to be his "guesses" at the meaning of intelligible figures written in the red book. Goldsmith was still on the stand when court adjourned for the day and the questions put to him near the close were full of promise of interesting developments today.

Much of the sting was taken out of the famous "shake the plum tree" telegram by the statement that the purchase of Metropolitan stock contemplated thereby was made with $10,000 of Senator Quay's own money, his deposit at that period exceeding $60,000.

While Senator Quay was listening intently to the cross-examination of the expert a telegram was thrust into his hand containing the announcement of the break in his ranks at Harrisburg. The senator carefully adjusted his glasses and read the dispatch. Then a half frown came over his features and his face turned from the witness to the courtroom window, out of which he gazed in a contemplative manner for several minutes. He made no comment to any of those seated near him on the news the telegram conveyed to him.

Americans Thanked by the Czar.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The secretary of state has made public a note addressed to him by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, dated April 17, thanking the people of the United States on behalf of the czar for expressions of sympathy with the purposes of the disarmament conference called by the Russian government.

BLAMED BRITISH CONSUL.

An American Said Mataafa Had Obeyed Kautz Until Other Natives Were Given Arms.

CHICAGO, April 19.—A letter received here from N. J. Moors, an American merchant in Samoa, who for years had been Mataafa's close friend and adviser, related some interesting details of the trouble in the islands.

The letter, written March 23, said: "When I received, in advance of its posting, a copy of the proclamation decided upon by the British and American sides and issued by Admiral Kautz, I thought it a very moderate document and one that might well be observed. I sent word twice to the natives on Mulinuu that I thought they should obey it, and I think they so intended as Mulinuu was soon deserted and the prisoners were liberated, while the royalists went to Tutuila for those who were up there."

He said he sent word to Mataafa and the chiefs that no sailors would be landed and no guns given to the prisoners.

Further along he said: "I am sure Mataafa's followers would have done just as Admiral Kautz wanted and as I was advising, when British Consul Maxse commenced arming the returned prisoners and they began to boast of what they were going to do with the assistance of the warships. This news arrived when Mataafa was speaking in the very midst of a meeting in which he was dismissing the people. At once a great number arose, crying 'the weak cannot govern the strong; our slaves shall not rule us; we will fight,' and the meeting was broken up."

He said the natives had not destroyed white men's houses, while the guns of the British ship could be heard blasting fortifications, the natives not even molesting the homes of Guerr and Caruthers, who had caused all the trouble. He said it would take 10,000 troops to subjugate the country.

ORDERS TO CONSUL ROSE.

Must Join Other Consuls In Demanding Stopping of Hostilities.

BERLIN, April 19.—The correspondent here of The Associated Press heard on authority that the German consul at Apia, Samoa, Herr Rose, would receive cable instructions, to be conveyed to him by steamer from the nearest cable station, to join in a tripartite proclamation calling upon all the inhabitants in Samoa to immediately desist from all hostilities and agitation, pending the arrival at Apia of the joint commission of the powers appointed to settle the affairs in dispute in the islands.

Samoa Commission Entertained.

REPORT AGAINST MILES.

Beef Board Expected to Declare That He Failed to Prove His Charges.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The army court of inquiry began the framing of its report. While a few minor matters remained for examination, they were not such as to affect the main issues. It was regarded as certain that the court would find that General Miles' charges that embalmed or chemically prepared beef was sent to the army had not been sustained. The position of the court was believed to be that the testimony was conclusive that both the refrigerated beef and the canned beef were in good condition when delivered to the government and continued so until issued to the troops, except that portion damaged in transportation or affected by tropical conditions, and to these causes of injury and these conditions chief causes of trouble would be attributed.

It would be shown that the refrigerated beef, after being taken from the ice in the tropical climate, spoils quickly unless well cared for, and that the canned beef, after being opened, because of the great heat, became repulsive in appearance and soon unpalatable. But the court would hold, as the result of chemical investigation by experts, that the canned beef was wholesome and nutritious. Attention would be called to the fact that it was used throughout the war by our navy and was still used by the fleet. It was believed that the court would criticize those officers who have testified that they became aware that bad beef was issued to the troops and who failed to report their observations until after the war had closed.

Beef Court of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Before the Wade court of inquiry General Weston related the provisions made for victualizing the soldiers during the war, and contended that beef on the hoof could not have been landed at Siboney. Geo. L. Taylor, a Philadelphia chemist, said he had detected the presence of formaldehyde on the meat while on his way to Porto Rico last fall, as an officer in the First volunteer cavalry.

Pope Received Bishop Donahue.

ROME, April 19.—The pope received in audience the Rt. Rev. F. J. Donahue, bishop of Wheeling.

NAVAL MEN TRAPPED.

Landing Party Captured by Rebels in Luzon.

GONE TO RESCUE SPANIARDS.

Anxiety in Washington as to the American Fate—Admiral Dewey Sent the News—Commissioners of Filipinos Proposed to Try to Arrange Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The navy department gave out the following dispatch from Admiral Dewey:

"MANILA, April 18.

Secretary of Navy, Washington: "The Yorktown visited Baler, Luzon, east coast of Luzon, P. I., April 12, for the purpose of rescuing and bringing away the Spanish forces, consisting of 80 soldiers, three officers and two priests, which were surrounded by 400 insurgents. Some of the insurgents armed with Mauser rifles."

"By natives. Lieutenant J. O. Gilmore while making * * * * * ambushed were fired upon and captured. Fate unknown, as insurgents refused to communicate afterward. The following are missing: Chief Quartermaster W. Walton, Coxswain J. Ellsworth, Gunner's Mate H. J. Hygar, Sailmaker's Mate Vendig, seamen W. H. Rynders and C. W. Woodbury, Apprentices D. W. A. Venville, A. J. Peterson, Ordinary Seamen F. Brisoless, O. B. McDonald, Landsmen L. T. Edwards, F. Anderson, J. Dillon and O. Morrissey."

"[Signed.] "The asterisks denotes portions of the dispatch which could not be deciphered. That the capture should have been effected while the American forces were on a mission of mercy toward the Spaniards, rather in the prosecution of a campaign, led to the belief that Spain would have no further ground for questioning the good faith with which the Americans were seeking to relieve the condition of the Spanish prisoners."

Although the dispatch gave no indication that Lieutenant Gilmore and his men had lost their lives, yet great anxiety was aroused by the mystery surrounding their fate while in the hands of an uncivilized enemy. This is the first capture of any Americans, military or naval, so that it is unknown how the insurgents will treat our men. If civilized methods were pursued an exchange could be quickly effected, as General Otis has a large number of Filipino prisoners, but the insurgents have been averse thus far to exchanging Spanish prisoners, and this raises a question as to what they will do with the Yorktown's men. The purpose of officials here is to spare no effort to secure the speedy release of our men."

MANILA, April 19.—A number of prominent and wealthy Filipinos were organizing a committee to take steps to bring about, if possible, an understanding between the rebels and the Americans. One branch of this committee intended to ask the United States Philippine commission to make a statement as to what terms would be offered the rebels if the latter would surrender.

Another branch of the committee will approach Aguinaldo with the terms and will endeavor to persuade him to accept them. It was considered doubtful, however, if any members of the committee would dare to personally confer with the rebel leader.

The committee included several persons recently condemned to death by Aguinaldo for petitioning him to cease fighting.

Major General Otis has appointed a board, headed by Colonel Crowder, to deal with the war claims. Many such claims have been filed, aggregating millions of dollars, particularly as a result of the Iloilo fire. Major General Otis, who has hitherto handled these claims, is unable to devote any of his time to them now.

General Lawton ordered Colonel Whalley of the Washington regiment, who is a lieutenant in the regular army, to command General King's brigade during the latter's illness.

VOLUNTEERS MUST STAY AWHILE.

No Transports at Manila to Start Them Home.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—General Corbin said nothing further had been done regarding the return of the volunteer soldiers from Manila. If the troops could be spared there were no transport service to bring them home and will not be for some time.

It was believed that the transports now on their way to Manila and those which were expected to leave in a few days would return with volunteers. The war department officials thought that by June 1 there would be enough transports at Manila to bring back all that wanted to come.

Asked Dellenbaugh to Retire.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The common pleas judges at a special meeting passed by a unanimous vote a resolution asking Judge F. E. Dellenbaugh to retire from the bench until his disbarment case is decided by the supreme court.

Hobart Continued to Improve.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Vice President Hobart continued to improve and was sitting up more than usual.

Where there was a definite loan to Senator Quay the repayment was clearly proven. In this connection it might be well to say that District Attorney Rothmel claims that he has clearly established the fact he started out to prove, namely, that $200,000 of the state deposit in the bank was set aside for the use of Senator Quay and whether he used it himself or loaned it to others is not material in proving the conspiracy.

Toward the close of the proceedings Mr. Shields asked Goldsmith some questions which indicated that the defense was about to attempt to prove its contention that Senator Quay was the victim of Cashier Hopkins, who, they asserted used the name and account of the senator without the latter's knowledge to cover his own juggling with the bank's funds.

Hopkins, they said, appeared to had used fictitious names for loans, presumably to himself, as well as the name of Senator Quay. He had the reputation of being a heavy speculator in the stock market, and the inference was that the defense would attempt to prove that Senator Quay had no knowledge whatsoever of the alleged loans on his account.

Mr. Shields put a different complexion on the entries in the red book by compelling the witness to admit that many of his figures were not proven by entries in the regular bank books, but were the result of what he practically acknowledged to be his "guesses" at the meaning of intelligible figures written in the red book. Goldsmith was still on the stand when court adjourned for the day and the questions put to him near the close were full of promise of interesting developments to-day.

Much of the sting was taken out of the famous "shake the plum tree" telegram by the statement that the purchase of Metropolitan stock contemplated thereby was made with $10,000 of Senator Quay's own money, his deposit at that period exceeding $60,000.

While Senator Quay was listening intently to the cross-examination of the expert a telegram was thrust into his hand containing the announcement of the break in his ranks at Harrisburg. The senator carefully adjusted his glasses and read the dispatch. Then a half frown came over his features and his face turned from the witness to the courtroom window, out of which he gazed in a contemplative manner for several minutes. He made no comment to any of those seated near him on the news the telegram conveyed to him.

BLAMED BRITISH CONSUL.

An American Said Mataafa Had Obeyed Kautz Until Other Natives Were Given Arms.

CHICAGO, April 19.—A letter received here from N. J. Moors, an American merchant in Samoa, who for years had been Mataafa's close friend and adviser, related some interesting details of the trouble in the islands.

The letter, written March 23, said: "When I received, in advance of its posting, a copy of the proclamation decided upon by the British and American sides and issued by Admiral Kautz, I thought it a very moderate document and one that might well be observed. I sent word twice to the natives on Mulinu that I thought they should obey it, and I think they so intended as Mulinu was soon deserted and the prisoners were liberated, while the royalists went to Tutuila for those who were up there."

He said he sent word to Mataafa and the chiefs that no sailors would be landed and no guns given to the prisoners.

Further along he said: "I am sure Mataafa's followers would have done just as Admiral Kautz wanted and as I was advising, when British Consul Maxse commenced arming the returned prisoners and they began to boast of what they were going to do with the assistance of the warships. This news arrived when Mataafa was speaking in the very midst of a meeting in which he was dismissing the people. At once a great number arose, crying 'the weak cannot govern the strong; our slaves shall not rule us; we will fight,' and the meeting was broken up."

He said the natives had not destroyed white men's houses, while the guns of the British ship could be heard blasting fortifications, the natives not even molesting the homes of Guerr and Caruthers, who had caused all the trouble. He said it would take 10,000 troops to subjugate the country.

BERLIN, April 19.—The correspondent here of The Associated Press heard on authority that the German consul at Apia, Samoa, Herr Rose, would receive cable instructions, to be conveyed to him by steamer from the nearest cable station, to join in a tripartite proclamation calling upon all the inhabitants in Samoa to immediately desist from all hostilities and agitation, pending the arrival at Apia of the joint commission of the powers appointed to settle the affairs in dispute in the islands.

REPORT AGAINST MILES.

Beef Board Expected to Declare That He Failed to Prove His Charges.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The army court of inquiry began the framing of its report. While a few minor matters remained for examination, they were not such as to affect the main issues. It was regarded as certain that the court would find that General Miles' charges that embalmed or chemically prepared beef was sent to the army had not been sustained. The position of the court was believed to be that the testimony was conclusive that both the refrigerated beef and the canned beef were in good condition when delivered to the government and continued so until issued to the troops, except that portion damaged in transportation or affected by tropical conditions, and to these causes of injury and these conditions chief causes of trouble would be attributed.

It would be shown that the refrigerated beef, after being taken from the ice in the tropical climate, spoils quickly unless well cared for, and that the canned beef, after being opened, because of the great heat, became repulsive in appearance and soon unpalatable. But the court would hold, as the result of chemical investigation by experts, that the canned beef was wholesome and nutritious. Attention would be called to the fact that it was used throughout the war by our navy and was still used by the fleet. It was believed that the court would criticize those officers who have testified that they became aware that bad beef was issued to the troops and who failed to report their observations until after the war had closed.

Beef Court of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Before the Wade court of inquiry General Weston related the provisions made for victualizing the soldiers during the war, and contended that beef on the hoof could not have been landed at Siboney. Geo. L. Taylor, a Philadelphia chemist, said he had detected the presence of formaldehyde on the meat while on his way to Porto Rico last fall, as an officer in the First volunteer cavalry.

NAVAL MEN TRAPPED.

Landing Party Captured by Rebels in Luzon.

GONE TO RESCUE SPANIARDS.

Anxiety in Washington as to the Americans Fate—Admiral Dewey Sent the News—Commissioners of Filipinos Proposed to Try to Arrange Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The navy department gave out the following dispatch from Admiral Dewey:

"MANILA, April 18. Secretary of Navy, Washington:

"The Yorktown visited Baler, Luzon, east coast of Luzon, P. I., April 12, for the purpose of rescuing and bringing away the Spanish forces, consisting of 80 soldiers, three officers and two priests, which were surrounded by 400 insurgents. Some of the insurgents armed with Mauser rifles."

"By natives. Lieutenant J. O. Gilmore while making * * * * * ambushed were fired upon and captured. Fate unknown, as insurgents refused to communicate afterward. The following are missing: The officer previously referred to, Chief Quartermaster W. Walton, Coxswain J. Ellsworth, Gunner's Mate H. J. Hygar, Sailmaker's Mate Vendig, seamen W. H. Rynders and C. W. Woodbury, Apprentices D. W. A. Venville, A. J. Peterson, Ordinary Seamen F. Briselese, O. B. McDonald, Landsmen L. T. Edwards, F. Anderson, J. Dillon and O. Morrissey."

"[Signed.] 'DEWEY.'"

The asterisks denotes portions of the dispatch which could not be deciphered. That the capture should have been effected while the American forces were on a mission of mercy toward the Spaniards, rather in the prosecution of a campaign, led to the belief that Spain would have no further ground for questioning the good faith with which the Americans were seeking to relieve the condition of the Spanish prisoners.

Although the dispatch gave no indication that Lieutenant Gilmore and his men had lost their lives, yet great anxiety was aroused by the mystery surrounding their fate while in the hands of an uncivilized enemy. This is the first capture of any Americans, military or naval, so that it is unknown how the insurgents will treat our men. If civilized methods were pursued an exchange could be quickly effected, as General Otis has a large number of Filipino prisoners, but the insurgents have been averse thus far to exchanging Spanish prisoners, and this raises a question as to what they will do with the Yorktown's men. The purpose of officials here is to spare no effort to secure the speedy release of our men.

MANILA, April 19.—A number of prominent and wealthy Filipinos were organizing a committee to take steps to bring about, if possible, an understanding between the rebels and the Americans. One branch of this committee intended to ask the United States Philippine commission to make a statement as to what terms would be offered the rebels if the latter would surrender.

Another branch of the committee will approach Aguinaldo with the terms and will endeavor to persuade him to accept them. It was considered doubtful, however, if any members of the committee would dare to personally confer with the rebel leader.

The committee included several persons recently condemned to death by Aguinaldo for petitioning him to cease fighting.

Major General Otis has appointed a board, headed by Colonel Crowder, to deal with the war claims. Many such claims have been filed, aggregating millions of dollars, particularly as a result of the Iloilo fire. Major General Otis, who has hitherto handled these claims, is unable to devote any of his time to them now.

General Lawton ordered Colonel Whalley of the Washington regiment, who is a lieutenant in the regular army, to command General King's brigade during the latter's illness.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—General Corbin said nothing further had been done regarding the return of the volunteer soldiers from Manila. If the troops could be spared there were no transport service to bring them home and will not be for some time.

TRIP FOR A DIVORCE.

SAXTON VISITED HER THERE.

Witnesses Testified That Lighted Matches Were Necessary to Identify the Dead Man the Night of the Murder—Mr. Eckroate Testified.

CANTON, April 19.—The defense in the trial of Mrs. George spent the first half of the session in reading depositions regarding her trip to South Dakota to get a divorce from Sample George, her life while there, and the visits Saxton paid to her. The remainder of the session was occupied in examining witnesses on matters connected directly with the homicide, and in answer to the testimony introduced on the part of the state.

The attorneys for the defense talked of finishing their testimony this week, but said if they did so they would not call all of the 100 or more witnesses subpoenaed.

Some of the time of the trial was devoted to the reading of depositions in Sioux Falls, Canton, S. D., and Inwood, Ia. These covered Mrs. George's residence in South Dakota when she was there to get a divorce from Sample George. Objections were made to some of the matter and there was a great deal of controversy between attorneys.

Charles M. Seeley testified that during the winter of 1891 and 1892 Mrs. George stopped at his hotel in Canton, S. D., and that Saxton came there for a week. They were on friendly terms and were often together.

R. E. Rodolph testified to having represented Sample C. George in the divorce case.

Cashier Brown of the Lincoln County bank of Canton, S. D., said he had cashed $450 in checks on which the names of Mrs. George and Saxton appeared.

Robert Hunter and T. F. Ronayur of Sioux City testified that Saxton and Mrs. George registered as man and wife at the Boogie House, Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 16, 1892. The signature was afterward cut out of the register. Lesley M. Foote, clerk of a hotel at Inwood, Ia., testified that he had cashed some checks from Saxton to Mrs. George while they were at the hotel.

Joseph Eckroate keeps the corner grocery that figures so conspicuously in the case. He said in part: "I was about through with supper when I heard the first shot. I finished my supper and then went to the front yard. My daughter, Mrs. Huxing, was at the gate. The night was dark."

"What did you see?"

"I didn't see anything. I saw some men across the street. I did not recognize any of them; it was too dark."

As to the trees, witness said the limbs hung lower than now, and were pretty full of leaves. He had not at the time nor at any time afterwards while leaves were on the trees noticed how much the trees obstructed the view from the windows of his house of the Althouse steps and lawn. Witness said he looked Monday from the window of his bed room, from which Mrs. Eckroate says she saw the shooting to the Althouse steps, and found a cherry tree on a line from the window to the south side of the steps."

Before the state had concluded his cross-examination it developed that he is 66 years of age, blind in one eye and that he did not have on his glasses when he looked out to see what was to be seen at the Althouse place across the street.

Joseph Schmidt, a 13-year-old boy living near the Althouse residence, told of hearing the shots and calling the police. He could not tell who the dead man was until matches were lighted.

John Berger, one of the first to reach the scene, said he did not recognize Saxton's body until matches were lighted, but this was largely on account of the face being turned downward.

Jacob Dippish and August Borong gave similar testimony. The latter said there were some obstruction to the view from the window from which his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eckroate, claims to have seen and identified Mrs. George.

Mrs. Francis Dederma said it was so dark on the night of the tragedy that the body could not be recognized until light was thrown upon it.

Charles Huth and his wife said the street car on which Mrs. George is said to have gone to Hazlett avenue did not cross the tracks until three or four minutes after 6. The state's evidence was that the car had reached Hazlett avenue about 5:55.

The Investigation Postponed.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The investigation of the Cleveland and Sandusky Brewing company, the so-called beer trust, by Attorney General Monnett was postponed for another week on the application of the attorneys for the brewing company. The hearing will begin April 26.

To Prosecute Alleged Bribers.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—The house adopted the bribery reports, also a supplementary one appointing a committee to bring legal action against those named.

QUAY LOST 14 VOTES.

The Anti-Quayites and Their Recruits Cast Their Ballots for B. F. Jones for Senator.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—Fourteen votes dropped away from Senator Quay at the joint ballot for United States senator. The anti-Quay Republicans and the followers of Senator C. L. Magee of Pittsburgh, combined and cast their votes for B. F. Jones, of Pittsburgh. The break was started by Senator Crawford of Allegheny, who switched from Quay to Jones, and was followed by Senators Magee of Allegheny, Losch of Schuylkill and Scott of Luzerne.

The first break from the Quay ranks in the list of members was Mr. Clark, of Washington, whose colleague, Mr. McLaren, went with him. Mr. Murdoch, the third member from Washington, remained loyal to Colonel Quay. Others who changed from Quay to Jones were Messrs. Hosack, Klump, McFarlane, McWhinney, Nisbet, Robison, Shaw and Srodes, of Allegheny.

After the announcement of the ballot Senator C. L. Magee, in speaking of his action in breaking away from ex-Senator Quay, said:

"I believe that the Republican party is greater than any man in it. The Republicans of Pennsylvania want a senator elected, and if one is not elected I am satisfied it will mean an awful political battle this fall, and possibly defeat. So long as there was an earnest desire on the part of Quay to be elected, and there was a hope of it, I remained with him, but when his henchmen started the cry of 'Quay or nobody' I thought it was time for making an effort to elect some good Republican. Quay is an impossibility and he knows it, just as every other citizen of Pennsylvania does."

"I notified him several weeks ago that I would not be a party to continuing a deadlock, and that is the reason I today voted for Hon. B. F. Jones of Pittsburgh. Tomorrow (Wednesday) will be the last day for taking a joint ballot, and I hope that between now and then it will be possible to elect a senator."

Insurance Commissioner Durham, the recognized leader of the Quay faction, said:

"At the outside, I don't believe more than 20 members will go over to the anti-Quay camp, including those additional ones who are expected to leave us (Wednesday). That number cannot effect the election of a United States senator and the legislature will adjourn at noon on Thursday without having chosen a successor to M. S. Quay. We are entirely satisfied with this result and are content to go before the people at the coming elections and let them decide where lies the blame."

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES.

Rockhill Resigned as Minister to Greece, Which Resulted in Several Appointments—Minister to Portugal.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The following important diplomatic changes were announced as the result of the cabinet meeting:

W. W. Rockhill, now minister to Greece, resigned that position. Arthur Sherburn Fairbank, of New Hampshire, now minister to Persia, was promoted to succeed Mr. Rockhill. Wm. P. Lord, ex-governor of Oregon, was appointed minister to Persia. The Hon. John N. Irwin, of Iowa, formerly governor of Idaho, was appointed minister to Portugal to succeed Lawrence Townsend, transferred to Belgium in place of Belknap Storer, appointed to Madrid.

Mr. Rockhill's resignation was purely voluntary and was caused by personal and domestic considerations. Mrs. Rockhill died while he was stationed at Athens and he lost all desire to remain. He is now on his way home with his two children and the remains of his wife.

Ex-Governor William P. Lord of Oregon is a lawyer who has been quite prominent in state politics. Five years ago he was elected governor, being the first Republican governor of the state in eight years.

Mr. Irwin was born in Ohio.

GOMPERS ON UNION METHODS.

Defense Fund and Boycott Very Valuable to Labor Organizations.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal witness before the industrial commission.

He said the defense fund was the greatest safeguard of the trades union.

The question of laws to provide for the corporation of trades unions did not meet with Mr. Gompers' approval. He said that employers and corporations could have no more deadly weapon against organized labor than the legal right to sue it and mulct its treasury. The fact that an incorporated union could also sue an employer for a breach of contract was not a compensating advantage in his eyes.

The boycott, Mr. Gompers declared, was not a legal but an inherent right which had been exercised under varying names from time immemorial. He considered it a useful and legitimate weapon of labor.

HELPED QUAY'S CASE.

SMALL SUM OWED BY QUAY.

The Cross-Examination Developed He Was Not in Debt to the Bank for a Large Amount—Probable Line of Defense Indicated.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—The defense had its innings in the trial of Senator Quay, and it made the best of its opportunity. Expert Accountant Meyer Goldsmith, the commonwealth's witness was under a scorching fire of cross-examination, and the result thereof justifies the opinion that the net work of evidence brought by the prosecution from the books of the broken bank tending to show Senator Quay's guilty participation in the unlawful use of the bank's money, was very much shaken by the admissions the witness was compelled to make under the skillful questioning of Attorney A. S. L. Shields, admittedly the best cross-examiner practicing at the Philadelphia bar. Nearly all of the apparently damaging entries attached to Senator Quay's name or account in the bank as testified to previously were explained away or greatly modified by the statements of the commonwealth's own witness. Judge Biddle's ruling of Monday had the effect of confirming testimony tending to show the existence of a conspiracy between Quay, Haywood and Hopkins, as charged in the indictment, to the two years ending November 17, 1898.

Lawyer Shields got from the witness the admission that if Hopkins had properly credited Senator Quay's account with amounts that belonged there, the books would show that at the beginning of the alleged conspiracy Nov. 17, 1896, the senator owed the bank $236 instead of over $70,000, as was alleged. Taking up the allegation that Senator Quay had borrowed $185,000 during the "settlement period" ending Oct. 31, 1897, the last settlement before the bank closed, Mr. Shields forced from Goldsmith, piece by piece, facts tending to show that in nearly every instance the amounts charged to Senator Quay were really loans to other persons, politicians mostly, for whom Quay endorsed. Where there was a definite loan to Senator Quay the repayment was clearly proven. In this connection it might be well to say that District Attorney Rothmel claims that he has clearly established the fact he started out to prove, namely, that $200,000 of the state deposit in the bank was set aside for the use of Senator Quay and whether he used it himself or loaned it to others is not material in proving the conspiracy.

Toward the close of the proceedings Mr. Shields asked Goldsmith some questions which indicated that the defense was about to attempt to prove its contention that Senator Quay was the victim of Cashier Hopkins, who, they asserted, used the name and account of the senator without the latter's knowledge to cover his own juggling with the bank's funds.

Hopkins, they said, appeared to have used fictitious names for loans, presumably to himself, as well as the name of Senator Quay. He had the reputation of being a heavy speculator in the stock market, and the inference was that the defense would attempt to prove that Senator Quay had no knowledge whatsoever of the alleged loans on his account.

He made no comment to any of those seated near him on the news the telegram conveyed to him.

BOARD BILL DISPUTE

Caused a lot of Trouble For Some People.

ONE OF THEM WAS ARRESTED

But He Was Released a Little Later—Brick Company Bought a New Machine—Mrs. Irwin's Funeral—Seventh Day Adventists Have an Organization Here.

A fight occurred in East End Monday night, but as yet no arrests have been made.

Early in the evening one of the principals accused the other of owing a board bill amounting to $54, and refused to pay it. The men came to blows, but just then Constable Miller appeared, and catching one of them took him to the office of Squire Rose. No charge was preferred against him and he was allowed to return to his home. The constable yesterday morning went to East End to look for the other principal, but being unable to find him told Fireman Terrence to tell the individual he did not get Monday night that no charge would be preferred against him. While the constable was telling this story the party he was looking for was within a few feet of him.

Ordered Another Machine.

The Ohio Clay Manufacturing company have countermanded the order for the brick machine they decided to buy in March, and have placed an order for a larger machine with a Canton firm. The company claims the machine should have been shipped on April 5, and as the contract was not carried out the order was cancelled. The order placed yesterday will be filled next week. Work erecting the new kilns will be commenced next week, and will be done by a Titusville contractor.

New Dwellings.

Ground was broken yesterday for the erection of a six room frame house in St. George street for H. N. Harker.

Samuel Searight this morning commenced the erection of a modern dwelling in Railroad street.

Plans have been completed for the erection of a new residence by Albert Hayes. They will be placed in the hands of the contractor next week.

Seventh Day Adventists.

It is not generally known that the Seventh Day Adventists have a branch in East End. There are very few members in the church and they are residents of East End, Wellsville and the Virginia side. Sunday school is held regularly at the home of one of the members, but not more than 12 persons attend. Services are usually held at the home of W. D. Irwin in First avenue.

Funeral Services.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. William D. Irwin, of First avenue, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. They will be in charge of Elder Shannon, of the Seventh Day Adventist church, assisted by Rev. N. M. Crowe, of the Second Presbyterian church. The interment will be made in New Salem cemetery.

Work at Ralston.

The railroad company are still improving the road in the vicinity of bridge 110 near Ralston crossing, and yesterday a large amount of slag was dumped over the embankment. If much more is used in the work the course of the run will be changed, and cause the water to flow toward the lower road.

New Residents.

Sunday and yesterday a number of people arrived at the wharf on the Cincinnati boats and went to East End where they are now staying with friends. The men of the party expect to secure work on the new pottery, and if successful they will move their families and household effects to the city.

Letters From Manila.

Several people living in this part of the city are expecting letters from Manila during the week. Sunday a transport arrived at San Francisco from Manila, and it is thought some letters might have been sent on that boat.

Much Better.

Mr. Elliott, who was badly hurt when a wagon overturned in Pennsylvania avenue, is much improved. Many persons acquainted with the facts wonder that he was not killed, and look upon his escape as miraculous.

That Kiln.

Work upon the erection of a new kiln at the East End pottery was commenced yesterday. It is to be completed within as short a time as possible.

Her Private Punch.

The women hurried along Adams street from the Art institute on their way to the Woman's Euchre club at Handel hall.

"Just run in with me here a minute," said one. "I've got to get me a punch."

The clerk showed a collection of punches that made holes of various shapes.

"No," said the shopper. "I want just a simple, round punch—this size." And she abstracted a cardboard from her pocket that showed the size of the perforation.

"Oh, very well!" said the clerk. "We have it. But it's not called for very often for private games." And the punch was brought out and sold promptly.

The second woman wondered what her friend wanted of that particular punch, but kept her curiosity to herself. The game was exciting, and, as the friend is a good player, she won eight games. The second woman noticed this particularly. But when the score cards were exhibited the friend had 11 credit marks punched in her score card. The other woman saw then the wherefore of the particular punch they had bought. The friend had won eight games, and then had done a little punching with a private punch.

The prizes at these club contests are quite valuable, and the spirit of gambling has become so pronounced among some of the players that they are not above resorting to unfair means to capture them.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Her Evening Gown.

It is undeniable that foreign diplomats in Washington frequently find themselves at a loss owing to the novelties presented to them by American customs. Even the language offers difficulties.

Only the other day the Guatemalan minister was speaking to some Washington ladies of what he regarded as a remarkable social experience met with here at the capital. He had been invited to an afternoon reception.

"And do you know," he said, "the hostess received the guests in a night-gown!"

"Good heavens!" replied the ladies to whom this information was addressed. "Surely you are joking, Mr. Minister!"

"Not at all, I assure you," reiterated the diplomat. "It was in her night-dress that we were received—low neck and bare arms!"

"Oh, you mean evening dress, do you not, Mr. Minister?" suggested one of the ladies.

"Yes, that is what I mean," admitted Senor Arriaga; "low neck and bare

arms, just like the costume for the opera or ball."

As may be imagined, the laugh was at the minister's expense. In Washington ladies quite commonly wear evening dress when giving afternoon receptions.—Boston Herald.

Feudalism In Hungary.

Inconceivable as the anachronism may seem to the western mind, the agrarian system of Hungary has not yet issued from the feudal form. The Hungarian farmer of today is virtually a serf, bound to his master, the hereditary owner of the soil which the peasant tills, by the tangle of personal liability. The Hungarian feudal lord of today is entitled to 50 days' labor from each male adult who dwells on his land. The seignior is at liberty to demand this feudal contribution at whatever time may seem best to him, with the frequent result that the tenant farmer is employed in gathering his master's harvests while his own crops are rotting after a rainfall or are being consumed by an early frost or suffer damage from one or more of the many possible causes which render destructive the slightest delay on the part of the harvester in gathering the fruits of a year's labor.—S. Ivan Tonjoroff in Arena.

"The Boot of Dukeronomy."

A nervous curate the other day announced from the reading desk, "Here beginneth the second chapter of the duke of Booteronomy." His vicar looked severely at him, and the young man blushed, coughed and repeated "The boot of Dukeronomy."

There must have been germs of mispronunciation lurking in the air, for at a later period in the service the vicar read out, "I publish the manns of barriage," etc.

The curate beamed with satisfaction in spite of the solemnity of the occasion.—Household Words.

Exile Necessary.

Doctor—Your husband must have complete rest.

Interesting Lady Patient—Doctor, what do you do when you burn your mouth with hot coffee?

Dr. Fingerfee—Swear.—Roxbury Gazette.

Old and New.

An English newspaper contains an interesting parallel, discovered by a classical scholar. First comes a translation from the original Greek of Antipater of Thessalonica:

Once upon a time, when a ship was shattered at sea, two men fell at strife fighting for one plank. Antagoras struck away Pistratus. One could not blame him; it was for his life. But justice took cognizance. The other swam ashore; but him (Antagoras) a dogfish seized. Surely, the avenger of the fates rests not, even in the watery deep.

Then an incident recorded in the London Chronicle serves to translate the story into a modern event and to show how life repeats itself:

Two bluejackets, named Friday and Painter, were capsized from a boat at Weymouth. After a struggle to get into the waterlogged boat Friday beat his comrade off, and Painter swam ashore. Friday got into the boat and was drowned.

His Mustard Plaster.

The mustard plaster is a harmless looking wafer, but it must be handled with as much circumspection as a woman. There was a newly married man once whose wife told him to put on a mustard plaster to cure a cold. He had faith in her, and put it on. Then he went to sleep, being gifted with the power of sleeping under torments which is not given to one man in a thousand. The plaster seemed to him somewhat unreasonably hot, but he argued that the hotter it was the better. Besides, he had confidence in his wife. Next day he found a well developed blister on his chest, and his wife only laughed and said she had supposed any one would have sense enough to take off a plaster when it hurt him. Though that was 11 months ago, the mark of the plaster is still upon the man like a brand, and he now regards his wife's remedies with suspicion.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Beau Nash as a Gambler.

When the late Earl of T—d was a youth, he was passionately fond of play and never better pleased than with having Mr. Nash for his antagonist. Nash saw with concern his lordship's foible and undertook to cure him, though by a very disagreeable remedy. Conscious of his own superior skill he determined to engage him in single play for a very considerable sum. His lordship, in proportion as he lost his game, lost his temper, too, and as he approached the gulf seemed still more eager for ruin.

He lost his estate. Some writings were put into the winner's possession. His very equipage was offered as a last stake, and he lost that also. But when our generous gamester had found his lordship sufficiently punished for his temerity he returned all, only stipulating that he should be paid £5,000 whenever he should think proper to make the demand. However, he never made any such demand during his lordship's lifetime, but some time after his decease, Mr. Nash's affairs being in (sic) the wane, he demanded the money of his lordship's heirs, who honorably paid it without any hesitation.—"History of Gambling in England."

He Knew Chester.

Mr. Gladstone had a nice taste in his mutton pies. One of the Wesleyan journals recalls a conversation which R. W. Perks had with Mr. Gladstone at a public dinner in London, when the premier asked all sorts of questions on matters pertaining to Methodism. A man who happened to sit exactly opposite, wishing to divert the conversation into another channel, asked, "Do you know Chester, Mr. Gladstone?"

"Yes, a little," was the answer, at ominous smile playing about the mouth. "Do you know Chester, Mr. —?"

"Not very well," said the unwary questioner.

"Well, if you go to the city of Chester you will find a confectioner's shop in such a street," giving the number. "Go into that shop, and you can buy a hot mutton pie, deliciously hot," and here Mr. Gladstone screwed up his eyes, and his face beamed with delight as he recalled the taste and smell of those savory pies, "and all for threepence." Then, turning to Mr. Perks, in deep earnest tones he said, "Let us resume where we left off."

There was no further interruption from the opposite side of the table.—St. James Gazette.

Good Intentions.

Many a good intention dies from inattention. If through carelessness or indolence or selfishness a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity, demoralized ourselves and stolen from the pile of possible good. To be born and not fed is to perish. To launch a ship and neglect it is to lose it. To have a talent and bury it is to be a "wicked and slothful servant." For in the end we shall be judged not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done.—Sunday School Times.

Work at Ralston.

The railroad company are still improving the road in the vicinity of bridge 110 near Ralston crossing, and yesterday a large amount of slag was dumped over the embankment. If much more is used in the work the course of the run will be changed, and cause the water to flow toward the lower road.

New Residents.

Sunday and yesterday a number of people arrived at the wharf on the Cincinnati boats and went to East End where they are now staying with friends. The men of the party expect to secure work on the new pottery, and if successful they will move their families and household effects to the city.

Letters From Manila.

Several people living in this part of the city are expecting letters from Manila during the week. Sunday a transport arrived at San Francisco from Manila, and it is thought some letters might have been sent on that boat.

Much Better.

Mr. Elliott, who was badly hurt when a wagon overturned in Pennsylvania avenue, is much improved. Many persons acquainted with the facts wonder that he was not killed, and look upon his escape as miraculous.

That Kiln.

Work upon the erection of a new kiln at the East End pottery was commenced yesterday. It is to be completed within as short a time as possible.

Her Private Punch.

The women hurried along Adams street from the Art institute on their way to the Woman's Euchre club at Handel hall.

"Just run in with me here a minute," said one. "I've got to get me a punch."

The clerk showed a collection of punches that made holes of various shapes.

"No," said the shopper. "I want just a simple, round punch—this size." And she abstracted a cardboard from her pocket that showed the size of the perforation.

"Oh, very well!" said the clerk. "We have it. But it's not called for very often for private games." And the punch was brought out and sold promptly.

The second woman wondered what her friend wanted of that particular punch, but kept her curiosity to herself. The game was exciting, and, as the friend is a good player, she won eight games. The second woman noticed this particularly. But when the score cards were exhibited the friend had 11 credit marks punched in her score card. The other woman saw then the wherefore of the particular punch they had bought. The friend had won eight games, and then had done a little punching with a private punch.

The prizes at these club contests are quite valuable, and the spirit of gambling has become so pronounced among some of the players that they are not above resorting to unfair means to capture them.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Her Evening Gown.

It is undeniable that foreign diplomats in Washington frequently find themselves at a loss owing to the novelties presented to them by American customs. Even the language offers difficulties.

Only the other day the Guatemalan minister was speaking to some Washington ladies of what he regarded as a remarkable social experience met with here at the capital. He had been invited to an afternoon reception.

"Good heavens!" replied the ladies to whom this information was addressed. "Surely you are joking, Mr. Minister!"

"Not at all, I assure you," reiterated the diplomat. "It was in her night-dress that we were received—low neck and bare arms!"

"Oh, you mean evening dress, do you not, Mr. Minister?" suggested one of the ladies.

"Yes, that is what I mean," admitted Senor Arriaga: "low neck and bare

arms, just like the costume for the opera or ball."

As may be imagined, the laugh was at the minister's expense. In Washington ladies quite commonly wear evening dress when giving afternoon receptions.—Boston Herald.

Fendalism in Hungary.

Inconceivable as the anachronism may seem to the western mind, the agrarian system of Hungary has not yet issued from the feudal form. The Hungarian farmer of today is virtually a serf, bound to his master, the hereditary owner of the soil which the peasant tills, by the tangible tie of personal liability. The Hungarian feudal lord of today is entitled to 50 days' labor from each male adult who dwells on his land. The seignior is at liberty to demand this feudal contribution at whatever time may seem best to him, with the frequent result that the tenant farmer is employed in gathering his master's harvests while his own crops are rotting after a rainfall or are being consumed by an early frost or suffer damage from one or more of the many possible causes which render destructive the slightest delay on the part of the harvester in gathering the fruits of a year's labor.—S. Ivan Tonjoroff in Arena.

"The Boot of Dukeronomy."

A nervous curate the other day announced from the reading desk, "Here beginneth the second chapter of the duke of Bocteronomy." His view looked severely at him, and the young man blushed, coughed and repeated "The boot of Dukeronomy."

There must have been germs of mispronunciation lurking in the air, for at a later period in the service the vicar read out, "I publish the manns of barriage," etc.

The curate beamed with satisfaction in spite of the solemnity of the occasion.—Household Words.

Exile Necessary.

Doctor—Your husband must have complete rest.

Wife—I know it. I talk to him seven or eight hours every day so as to keep his mind off business.

Doctor—On second thought, madam, I conclude that the one chance for your husband is to take him to the hospital with instructions that no one but the trained nurse and myself be admitted.—Detroit Free Press.

Where Men Have the Advantage.

Interesting Lady Patient—Doctor, what do you do when you burn your mouth with hot coffee?

Dr. Fingerfee—Swear.—Roxbury Gazette.

Old and New.

An English newspaper contains an interesting parallel, discovered by a classical scholar. First comes a translation from the original Greek of Antipater of Thessalonica:

Once upon a time, when a ship was shattered at sea, two men fell at strife fighting for one plank. Antagoras struck away Pisistratus. One could not blame him; it was for his life. But justice took cognizance. The other swam ashore; but him (Antagoras) a dogfish seized. Surely, the avenger of the fates rests not, even in the watery deep.

Then an incident recorded in the London Chronicle serves to translate the story into a modern event and to show how life repeats itself:

Two bluejackets, named Friday and Painter, were capsized from a boat at Weymouth. After a struggle to get into the waterlogged boat Friday beat his comrade off, and Painter swam ashore. Friday got into the boat and was drowned.

His Mustard Plaster.

The mustard plaster is a harmless looking wafer, but it must be handled with as much circumspection as a woman. There was a newly married man once whose wife told him to put on a mustard plaster to cure a cold. He had faith in her, and put it on. Then he went to sleep, being gifted with the power of sleeping under torments which is not given to one man in a thousand. The plaster seemed to him somewhat unreasonably hot, but he argued that the hotter it was the better. Besides, he had confidence in his wife. Next day he found a well developed blister on his chest, and his wife only laughed and said she had supposed any one would have sense enough to take off a plaster when it hurt him. Though that was 11 months ago, the mark of the plaster is still upon the man like a brand, and he now regards his wife's remedies with suspicion.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Beau Nash as a Gambler.

When the late Earl of T—d was a youth, he was passionately fond of play and never better pleased than with having Mr. Nash for his antagonist. Nash saw with concern his lordship's foible and undertook to cure him, though by a very disagreeable remedy. Conscious of his own superior skill he determined to engage him in single play for a very considerable sum. His lordship, in proportion as he lost his game, lost his temper, too, and as he approached the gulf seemed still more eager for ruin.

He lost his estate. Some writings were put into the winner's possession. His very equipage was offered as a last stake, and he lost that also. But when our generous gamster had found his lordship sufficiently punished for his temerity he returned all, only stipulating that he should be paid £5,000 whenever he should think proper to make the demand. However, he never made any such demand during his lordship's lifetime, but some time after his decease, Mr. Nash's affairs being in (sic) the wane, he demanded the money of his lordship's heirs, who honorably paid it without any hesitation.—"History of Gambling in England."

He Knew Chester.

Mr. Gladstone had a nice taste in hot mutton pies. One of the Wesleyan journals recalls a conversation which R. W. Perks had with Mr. Gladstone at a public dinner in London, when the ex-premier asked all sorts of questions on matters pertaining to Methodism. A man who happened to sit exactly opposite, wishing to divert the conversation into another channel, asked, "Do you know Chester, Mr. Gladstone?"

"Yes, a little," was the answer, an ominous smile playing about the mouth. "Do you know Chester, Mr. —?"

"Not very well," said the unwary questioner.

"Well, if you go to the city of Chester you will find a confectioner's shop in such a street," giving the number. "Go into that shop, and you can buy a hot mutton pie, deliciously hot," and here Mr. Gladstone screwed up his eyes, and his face beamed with delight as he recalled the taste and smell of those savory pies, "and all for threepence." Then, turning to Mr. Perks, in deep earnest tones he said, "Let us resume where we left off."

Good Intentions.

Many a good intention dies from inattention. If through carelessness or indolence or selfishness a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity, demoralized ourselves and stolen from the pile of possible good. To be born and not fed is to perish. To launch a ship and neglect it is to lose it. To have a talent and bury it is to be a "wicked and slothful servant." For in the end we shall be judged not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done.—Sunday School Times.

Good Use For Them.

She (singing softly)—"Would that I had the wings of a bird."
He—What earthly use would they be to you, my dear?
She—I was just planning the trim-ming for my spring hat.

RIPPED OPEN HIS FACE

Little Arnold Hune Was Frightfully Injured.

HE COLLIDED WITH A CART

He Was Playing In Fourth Street and Ran From Behind a Pile of Bricks Directly In Front of a Horse Driven by Dan McNicol.

A serious accident occurred last evening in Fourth street, and, as a result, little Arnold Hune will be marked for life.

The small boys in the neighborhood of Fourth and Jefferson streets have been using the street for a play ground, and last evening was no exception to the rule. They were engaged in a game of "Hide and Seek" and Arnold Hune, who is aged 11 years, was hiding behind a brick pile on the north side of the street. He saw a good chance to reach base, and dashed across the street directly in front of a horse driven by Dan McNicol. McNicol was in a cart and was not driving fast, but it was too late to prevent a collision. The shaft of the cart struck the boy, and he was knocked down. He was able to get up, and ran to his mother, who upon hearing the screams of a younger son quickly reached the scene.

The face of the boy was bleeding and he was taken into the home of Mrs. Shea, while a large crowd collected. Physicians were summoned, and upon examination it was found that the shaft of the cart had entered his mouth, tearing the flesh loose on the left side of his face from the lips to the ear, up the head and down the neck, making an exceedingly painful but not dangerous wound. Twenty-five or 30 stitches were required to close the cut. The boy remained at the home of Mrs. Shea until 4 o'clock this morning when he was taken to his own home.

Parties who witnessed the accident state that no blame can be attached to McNicol as he was driving slow and the boy ran directly in front of him. He did all in his power to avert the happening and after the accident occurred he stopped and ascertained the extent of the boy's injuries.

OFFICERS HAVE HOPE.

They Think Adjutant General Kingsley Will Continue Them in the Guard.

The recent order issued by Adjutant General Kingsley disbanding the Ohio National Guard has caused a great deal of discussion among the military men of the state.

A press dispatch from Cleveland in regard to the order says: "Many of the officers are of the opinion that they are not affected by the order to disband. They are now waiting to see what the adjutant general's next step will be."

"The fact that the officers of the disbanded companies have not been discharged with their men puts an entirely new aspect on the situation. It is thought that it is the intention of Adjutant General Kingsley to allow the officers of the disbanded companies to continue in their present positions without a command. It will then be a comparatively simple matter to organize the National Guard by instructing the old officers to recruit new companies in accordance with the rules of the regular army. If the plan is adopted, and many officers think it will be, the new organization will be much more efficient than the old."

The Columbus Journal in touching on the matter says:

"Many shepherds are left without flocks, and it is disputed whether they are still shepherds or not. The mustering out process seemed necessary to the adjutant general on account of the dilatory tactics of the company officers, who failed to file their reports within the prescribed time. Therefore, it seems to some that they should certainly suffer the same fate as the men."

"On the other hand, officers are still officers, as shown by section 4, G. O. No. 5, which says: 'Commanding officers of companies mustered out are charged with the preparation of final discharge papers for all enlisted men and will forward them direct to these headquarters.' General Kingsley did not have much to say upon the subject. 'Time will tell,' he said."

Missionary president of the Cleveland district of the African M. E. church, will lecture in the African M. E. church of East Liverpool on Wednesday night, April 18. "Missions" will be the topic. You have a cordial invitation. No admission fee will be charged.

Onion Sprees In Bern.

An annual "zwiebel market," or onion market is held in Bern, and once a year the peasants come from far and near to purchase a stock of onions for the twelvemonth, and, in fact, it has grown to be a custom on zwiebel market day for everybody, rich and poor, to buy onions; if not for use, then for the custom of the thing.

On a Saturday night the onions arrive. Great boxes, baskets and barrels of onions line one side of the longest main street of the city, from the station directly through the long arcaded avenue as far as the arcades extend—about a mile. All day Sunday the onions remain in the street, covered with cloths of every description, and early Monday morning the sale begins. For two days every one you meet has at least a string of onions, and one walks the entire length of the market and weeps.

A few days later come the dances. Every saloon and hall is decorated, and the young peasants, girls and lads, come to town and make merry. Every "wirtschaft" is crowded with a pushing, jostling throng of plump and ruddy faced peasants, drinking, dancing and "hiring out." There are no brawls, only perhaps parties of merry bumpkins walking through the streets at 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning and yodeling, without melody, at the top of their strong voices.—Chicago Record.

Judging a Mule's Speed.

"When I was a young man," quoth Officer Fayette Jones, "from a standpoint of years, I used to trade mules occasionally. One day I had a dispute with a man to whom I had sold an animal about its speed. We were unable to agree between ourselves, so we called in an old codger who talked with a drawl and used almost as much tobacco as he raised. We stated the question to him, 'Which is the faster of the mules?' He asked to be taken to the stable and stood there watching the mules eat. He chewed and looked, and looked and chewed. We wondered what he could tell about their speed simply by looking at them, but finally he pointed out the mule I had sold and said, 'That air the fastest of them mules.'"

"How do you know?" we asked in one breath.

"Well," he replied, "that younder one takes two chaws to t'other's one and ef one mule chaws faster than t'other it's natural that he's a faster critter."

"It was philosophy that I've never forgotten, and now whenever I want to know the relative speed of horses or mules I judge 'em by the way they chew."—Paducah Sun.

A Sleepy Deputy.

Under a former administration the United States marshal of western Pennsylvania sent a warrant to one of his deputies, who was stationed in a back county, for the arrest of a counterfeiter. The deputy knew the man and treated him considerably. When they reached Pittsburgh, the necessary papers were not at hand to commit the prisoner to jail. The deputy would not take him to a hotel, because he would have to pay the bill out of his own pocket. So he took him to the marshal's office to pass the night there. The deputy was sleepy and the counterfeiter said he was. So the deputy handcuffed his prisoner to himself and lay down on the floor beside the steam register. As soon as the deputy was asleep the counterfeiter took his keys from his pocket, unlocked the manacle and fastened the loose end to the register. Then he took the deputy's watch and what money he had and departed.

"Where is your prisoner?" asked the marshal the next morning, awakening the deputy.

"Doesn't that beat all?" he replied as he tugged at his handcuff and bruised his wrist. "Darned if I don't believe he's gi' me the slip."—Pittsburg News.

FOR AIDING STRIKERS.

Men Who Obstructed Street Railway at Wheeling, Sentenced by Judge Jackson.

WHEELING, April 19.—In the special term of the United States court held by Judge Jackson for the consideration of cases arising out of violation of the judge's injunction, four men were tried on the charge of obstructing the operation of the street railway and each was given 30 days in jail and to pay a fine of $50. The men were James Bryne, John Hixenbaugh, Charles Reiter and Waverly Pultz. Before passing sentence, Judge Jackson addressed himself to this community generally upon the matter of labor strikes. He scored the four men unmercifully.

Two more arrests were made by the deputy marshals, Rufus Hardine and Joseph McCrae, charged with obstruction of the road. The service attempted by the company was limited.

There was little indication of either side weakening.

The strike resulted in the incorporation of the People's Railway company, capital $500,000, to operate in Wheeling and Benwood. The incorporators are Frank P. McNeill, Gilmore Brown, S. M. Rau and John J. Coniff all of Wheeling.

BRYAN VISITED CHAIRMAN JONES.

RIPPED OPEN HIS FACE

Little Arnold Hune Was Frightfully Injured.

HE COLLIDED WITH A CART

He Was Playing In Fourth Street and Ran
From Behind a Pile of Bricks Directly
In Front of a Horse Driven by Dan Mc-Nicol.

A serious accident occurred last evening in Fourth street, and, as a result,
little Arnold Hune will be marked for life.

The small boys in the neighborhood of Fourth and Jefferson streets have been using the street for a play ground,
and last evening was no exception to the rule. They were engaged in a game of "Hide and Seek" and Arnold Hune,
who is aged 11 years, was hiding behind
a brick pile on the north side of the street. He saw a good chance to reach base, and dashed across the street directly in front of a horse driven by Dan McNicol. McNicol was in a cart and was not driving fast, but it was too late to prevent a collision. The shaft of the cart struck the boy, and he was knocked down. He was able to get up, and ran to his mother, who upon hearing the screams of a younger son quickly reached the scene.

The face of the boy was bleeding
and he was taken into the home of Mrs. Shea, while a large crowd collected. Physicians were summoned, and upon examination it was found that the shaft of the cart had entered his mouth, tearing the flesh loose on the left side of his face from the lips to the ear, up the head and down the neck, making an exceedingly painful but not dangerous wound. Twenty-five or 30 stitches were required to close the cut.
The boy remained at the home of Mrs.
Shea until 4 o'clock this morning when he was taken to his own home.

Parties who witnessed the accident
state that no blame can be attached to McNicol as he was driving slow and the boy ran directly in front of him. He did all in his power to avert the happening and after the accident occurred he stopped and ascertained the extent of the boy's injuries.

They Think Adjutant General
Kingsley Will Continue
Them in the Guard.

The recent order issued by Adjutant General Kingsley disbanding the Ohio
National Guard has caused a great deal of discussion among the military men of the state.

A press dispatch from Cleveland in regard to the order says: "Many of the officers are of the opinion that they are not affected by the order to disband.
They are now waiting to see what the adjutant general's next step will be.

"The fact that the officers of the disbanded companies have not been discharged with their men puts an entirely new aspect on the situation. It is thought that it is the intention of Adjutant General Kingsley to allow the officers of the disbanded companies to continue in their present positions without a command. It will then be a comparatively simple matter to organize the National Guard by instructing the old officers to recruit new companies in accordance with the rules of the regular army. If the plan is adopted, and many officers think it will be, the new organization will be much more efficient than the old.

The Columbus Journal in touching
on the matter says:

"Many shepherds are left without flocks, and it is disputed whether they are still shepherds or not. The mustering out process seemed necessary to the adjutant general on account of the dilatory tactics of the company officers, who failed to file their reports within the prescribed time. Therefore, it seems to some that they should certainly suffer the same fate as the men.

"On the other hand, officers are still officers, as shown by section 4, G. O.
No. 5, which says: 'Commanding officers of companies mustered out are charged with the preparation of final discharge papers for all enlisted men
and will forward them direct to these headquarters.' General Kingsley did not have much to say upon the subject.
'Time will tell,' he said."

Mrs. Rosa Johnson,
Missionary president of the Cleveland
district of the African M. E. church, will lecture in the African M. E. church of East Liverpool on Wednesday night,
April 18. "Missions" will be the topic.
You have a cordial invitation. No admission fee will be charged.

Union Sprees In Bern.

An annual "zwibel market," or onion market is held in Bern, and once a year the peasants come from far and near to purchase a stock of onions for the twelvemonth, and, in fact, it has grown to be a custom on zwibel market day for everybody, rich and poor, to buy onions; if not for use, then for the custom of the thing.

On a Saturday night the onions arrive. Great boxes, baskets and barrels of onions line one side of the longest
main street of the city, from the station
directly through the long arched avenue as far as the arcades extend—about a mile. All day Sunday the onions remain in the street, covered with cloths
of every description, and early Monday morning the sale begins. For two days
every one you meet has at least a string of onions, and one walks the entire length of the market and weeps.

A few days later come the dances.
Every saloon and hall is decorated, and the young peasants, girls and lads, come to town and make merry. Every "wirtschaft" is crowded with a pushing,
jostling throng of plump and ruddy faced peasants, drinking, dancing and
"hiring out." There are no brawls,
only perhaps parties of merry bumpkins
walking through the streets at 1 and 2
o'clock in the morning and yodeling,
without melody, at the top of their strong voices.—Chicago Record.

Judging a Mule's Speed.

"When I was a young man," quoth Officer Fayette Jones, "from a standpoint of years, I used to trade mules occasionaly. One day I had a dispute with a man to whom I had sold an animal about its speed. We were unable to agree between ourselves, so we called in an old codger who talked with a drawl and used almost as much tobacco
as he raised. We stated the question to him, 'Which is the faster of the mules?' He asked to be taken to the stable and stood there watching the mules eat. He chewed and looked, and looked and chewed. We wondered what he could tell about their speed simply by looking at them, but finally he pointed out the mule I had sold and said, 'That air the fastest of them mules.'

"How do you know?" we asked in one breath.

"Well," he replied, "that younder
one takes two chaws to t'other's one an
of one mule chaws faster than t'other
it's natural that he's a faster critter."

"It was philosophy that I've never forgotten, and now whenever I want to know the relative speed of horses or mules I judge 'em by the way they chew."—Paducah Sun.

A Sleepy Deputy.

Under a former administration the United States marshal of western Pennsylvania sent a warrant to one of his deputies, who was stationed in a back county, for the arrest of a counterfeit-
er. The deputy knew the man and treated him considerably. When they reached Pittsburgh, the necessary papers
were not at hand to commit the prisoner to jail. The deputy would not take him to a hotel, because he would have to pay the bill out of his own pocket.
So he took him to the marshal's office to pass the night there. The deputy was sleepy and the counterfeiter said he was. So the deputy handcuffed his prisoner to himself and lay down on the floor beside the steam register. As soon as the deputy was asleep the counterfeiter took his keys from his pocket,
unlocked the manacle and fastened the loose end to the register. Then he took the deputy's watch and what money he had and departed.

"Where is your prisoner?" asked the marshal the next morning, awakening
the deputy.

"Doesn't that beat all?" he replied
as he tugged at his handcuff and bruised
his wrist. "Darned if I don't believe he's gi' me the slip."—Pittsburg News.

FOR AIDING STRIKERS.

Men Who Obstructed Street Railway at Wheeling, Sentenced by Judge Jackson.

WHEELING, April 19.—In the special term of the United States court held by Judge Jackson for the consideration of cases arising out of violation of the judge's injunction, four men were tried on the charge of obstructing the operation of the street railway and each was given 30 days in jail and to pay a fine of $50. The men were James Bryne, John Hixenbaugh, Charles Reiter and Waverly Fultz. Before passing sentence, Judge Jackson addressed himself to this community generally upon the matter of labor strikes. He scored the four men unmercifully.

Two more arrests were made by the deputy marshals, Rufus Hardtine and Joseph McCrae, charged with obstruction of the road. The service attempted by the company was limited.

There was little indication of either side weakening.

The strike resulted in the incorporation of the People's Railway company,
capital $500,000, to operate in Wheeling and Benwood. The incorporators are Frank P. McNeill, Gilmore Brown, S.
M. Rau and John J. Coniff all of Wheeling.

Great and Good Friend:

"In commemoration of the consecration of the Church of the Savior at Jerusalem, which took place on Oct. 31

for the evangelical portion of Christendom, and in which, to my joy, a representative of the Evangelical Synod of North America took part, I have caused a number of copies of the artistically executed memorial to be prepared, and take the liberty herewith to send you a guished consideration.

(Signed) "WILLIAM I. R.

An annual "zwiebel market," or onion market is held in Bern, and once a year the peasants come from far and near to purchase a stock of onions for the twelvemonth, and, in fact, it has grown to be a custom on zwiebel market day for everybody, rich and poor, to buy onions; if not for use, then for the custom of the thing.

On a Saturday night the onions arrive. Great boxes, baskets and barrels of onions line one side of the longest main street of the city, from the station directly through the long arched avenue as far as the arcades extend—about a mile. All day Sunday the onions remain in the street, covered with cloths of every description, and early Monday morning the sale begins. For two days every one you meet has at least a string of onions, and one walks the entire length of the market and weeps.

A few days later come the dances. Every saloon and hall is decorated, and the young peasants, girls and lads, come to town and make merry. Every "wirtschafft" is crowded with a pushing, jostling throng of plump and ruddy faced peasants, drinking, dancing and "biring out." There are no brawls, only perhaps parties of merry bumpkins walking through the streets at 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning and yodeling, without melody, at the top of their strong voices.—Chicago Record.

Judging a Mule's Speed.

"When I was a young man," quoth Officer Fayette Jones, "from a standpoint of years, I used to trade mules occasionally. One day I had a dispute with a man to whom I had sold an animal about its speed. We were unable to agree between ourselves, so we called in an old codger who talked with a drawl and used almost as much tobacco as he raised. We stated the question to him, 'Which is the faster of the mules?' He asked to be taken to the stable and stood there watching the mules eat. He chewed and looked, and looked and chewed. We wondered what he could tell about their speed simply by looking at them, but finally he pointed out the mule I had sold and said, 'That air the fastest of them mules.'

"How do you know?" we asked in one breath.

"Well," he replied, 'that yonder one takes two chaws to t'other's one an ef one mule chaws faster than t'other it's natural that he's a faster crotter.'

"It was philosophy that I've never forgotten, and now whenever I want to know the relative speed of horses or mules I judge 'em by the way they chew."—Paducah Sun.

A Sleepy Deputy.

Under a former administration the United States marshal of western Pennsylvania sent a warrant to one of his deputies, who was stationed in a back county, for the arrest of a counterfeiter. The deputy knew the man and treated him considerably. When they reached Pittsburg, the necessary papers were not at hand to commit the prisoner to jail. The deputy would not take him to a hotel, because he would have to pay the bill out of his own pocket. So he took him to the marshal's office to pass the night there. The deputy was sleepy and the counterfeiter said he was. So the deputy handcuffed his prisoner to himself and lay down on the floor beside the steam register. As soon as the deputy was asleep the counterfeiter took his keys from his pocket, unlocked the manacle and fastened the loose end to the register. Then he took the deputy's watch and what money he had and departed.

"Where is your prisoner?" asked the marshal the next morning, awakening the deputy.

"Doesn't that beat all?" he replied as he tugged at his handcuff and bruised his wrist. "Darned if I don't believe he's gi' me the slip."—Pittsburg News.

FOR AIDING STRIKERS.

Men Who Obstructed Street Railway at Wheeling, Sentenced by Judge Jackson.

WHEELING, April 19.—In the special term of the United States court held by Judge Jackson for the consideration of cases arising out of violation of the judge's injunction, four men were tried on the charge of obstructing the operation of the street railway and each was given 30 days in jail and to pay a fine of $50. The men were James Bryne, John Hixenbaugh, Charles Reiter and Waverly Paltz. Before passing sentence, Judge Jackson addressed himself to this community generally upon the matter of labor strikes. He scored the four men unmercifully.

Two more arrests were made by the deputy marshals, Rufus Hardfine and Joseph McCrae, charged with obstruction of the road. The service attempted by the company was limited.

There was little indication of either side weakening.

The strike resulted in the incorporation of the People's Railway company, capital $500,000, to operate in Wheeling and Benwood. The incorporators are Frank P. McNeill, Gilmore Brown, S. M. Rau and John J. Coniff all of Wheeling.

THE AUSTRALIAN SYSTEM.

N. A. Frederick and the good citizens who supported him deserve commendation for the introduction and passage at the Lisbon convention of the resolution providing for the use of the Australian ballot at Republican primary elections in Columbiana county. As the story of last Saturday's election is told it becomes more evident that respectable members of the party desire that ward heelers, hirelings, petty bosses and hoodlum control be driven out, as much as they want to see clean politics and a proper count of the vote. Leaders are a necessity. We must have them to maintain the Republican organization in this county, but bosses are an abomination and the party will not submit to their dictation. They constitute the one great danger of Republicanism.

BLAKE IS DEAD.

Politically, of course; and there is general rejoicing among the masses—men who believe in clean life, clean government, true manhood and a purer field of politics. Blake was used for a purpose. He filled the bill. And the men who used him have for him no further use. He is smart enough to note this fact, and the knowledge thereof fills him with impotent fury, as was evidenced by his actions at the convention held at Lisbon yesterday. He has grossly misrepresented the people of Columbiana county; he has cut away two of the best safeguards the law ever gave against the inroads and encroachments of the accursed liquor traffic; he falsified the situation in connection with our local board of education, and through this misrepresentation, taking his constituents at a disadvantage, succeeded in having a law enacted which takes us many steps backward in the race of life; he was instrumental, in the hands of brainier men by far than himself, in illegally throwing men out of our school board, and in enacting a measure which is absolutely unconstitutional, and which will be so declared whenever it is found essentially necessary to so do. In a nutshell, this man Blake, as evidenced by his conduct as state senator, is a man to avoid; a man to be held in detestation by every voter who believes in temperance, sobriety, pure life and clean government. Columbiana county, in years to come, will rejoice in the fact that she failed to follow the time-honored precedent of a second term for Bill Blake, and turned him down in such a chilly manner as to cause his political backbone to become an icicle. Blake was never an issue. He was simply an incident. Selah.

CAMERON IS CHAIRMAN

While Ed A. King Will Be Secretary For a Year.

JAMES N. HANLEY TREASURER

Of the New County Republican Committee—Full Text of the Resolutions Providing For the Australian Ballot and Closing the Polls Not Later Than 7.

When the report of the doings at Lisbon closed yesterday afternoon the new committee was about to take up its duties.

The first business was the selection of officers, and the following were chosen: Chairman, I. B. Cameron; secretary, Ed A. King; treasurer, James N. Hanley. The committee then adjourned.

THOSE RESOLUTIONS.

Full Text of What N. A. Frederick Presented.

So much interest has been manifested in the resolutions presented to the convention by N. A. Frederick, of this city, that they are given in full:

WHEREAS, It is evident by the returns from the recent primaries that more votes were cast in some precincts throughout the county than there are Republicans living in said precincts, making manifest that there was much dishonest voting and

WHEREAS, We believe that the best interests of the party demand that the purity of the ballot box should be guarded at the primary elections with as much care as at the general election, and that each candidate should have equal chance of getting the untrammelled support of his friends without their being compelled to meet the solicitation of hired workers of opposing candidates. Therefore, be it

Resolved, First, That the central committee make a rule that hereafter all primary elections in this county be held under the laws of the state by what is known as the Australian ballot, and all judges and clerks of election be sworn to the full and fair performance of their duties.

Second, That this convention request the state committee to make a like rule for all the counties of the state.

Third, That hereafter the hour of closing the polls at primary elections be not later than 6 p. m., standard time.

HIGH PRAISE

For the President and Ohio Men Who Aided Him.

Chairman Cameron's resolution endorsing the administration is as follows:

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of Columbiana county, Ohio, in convention assembled do hereby extend our hearty greetings and highest commendation to the Hon. William McKinley, president of the United States, for the wise, patriotic and prosperous administration he has given the people of this great nation. To our distinguished United States senators, the Hon. J. B. Foraker and the Hon. M. A. Hanna, and our able representative in congress, the Hon. R. W. Taylor, we accord unstinted praise for the loyal, prompt and effective services rendered to the president and the country in the prosecution and the successful termination of the Spanish war. To the Hon. Asa S. Bushnell we send merited congratulations for the eminent success of his business like administration as governor of Ohio.

EACH MAN

Will Select His Delegates to the Senatorial Convention.

The resolution introduced by Mr. Frederick and dealing with the senatorial matter, provided that the central committee permit the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in a township to select the delegates of that township to the convention.

HOLLOWAY-CHAPMAN.

The Ceremony Was Performed by Rev. S. B. Salmon.

Jesse D. Holloway, of Irondale, and Miss Clara M. Chapman, of this city, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother in Second street, Rev. S. B. Salmon, of Smithfield, officiating. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for an eastern trip, and will make their home in Irondale.

Mr. Holloway is a promising young business man of Irondale, while Miss Chapman is one of the city's most popular young ladies.

REFUSED HELP,

Although Jonathan Aiken and His Wife Are Ill.

Jonathan Aiken and his wife, who live in a shantyboat at the foot of Union street, are critically ill, and the only assistance they are receiving is from the people who live near them. Mr. Aiken has suffered several strokes of paralysis during his illness, and his wife has been ill with the grip. Last evening several prominent church people called at the boat and offered help, but it was refused. The boat in which they live is one of the neatest about the city.

PICNIC BUSINESS.

Agent Hill Expects to Do a Lot of It This Year.

Agent Adam Hill expects to handle an unusually large picnic business for the Pennsylvania company during the coming season.

Already he has received a number of inquiries from organizations in the city that desire dates at some of the Pennsylvania resorts, and dates have in several instances been made, while others are waiting until arrangements can be made to give them the days they desire.

Of How the Big Vote Was Brought Out Saturday.

A well known young man tells this story of Saturday's primaries. It needs no explanation:

"I met a man Saturday afternoon who had come through the county and seemed overjoyed with the success he had had in voting. He said he had voted four times for his candidates that day, and was going up town to cast another vote in order that he might be counted in Liverpool's population." If there were many more of his class, it is no wonder the vote was the largest on record.

THE AUSTRALIAN SYSTEM.

N. A. Frederick and the good citizens who supported him deserve commendation for the introduction and passage at the Lisbon convention of the resolution providing for the use of the Australian ballot at Republican primary elections in Columbiana county. As the story of last Saturday's election is told it becomes more evident that respectable members of the party desire that ward heelers, hirelings, petty bosses and hoodlum control be driven out, as much as they want to see clean politics and a proper count of the vote. Leaders are a necessity. We must have them to maintain the Republican organization in this county, but bosses are an abomination and the party will not submit to their dictation. They constitute the one great danger of Republicanism.

BLAKE IS DEAD.

Politically, of course; and there is general rejoicing among the masses—men who believe in clean life, clean government, true manhood and a purer field of politics. Blake was used for a purpose. He filled the bill. And the men who used him have for him no further use. He is smart enough to note this fact, and the knowledge thereof fills him with impotent fury, as was evidenced by his actions at the convention held at Lisbon yesterday. He has grossly misrepresented the people of Columbiana county; he has cut away two of the best safeguards the law ever gave against the inroads and encroachments of the accursed liquor traffic; he falsified the situation in connection with our local board of education, and through this misrepresentation, taking his constituents at a disadvantage, succeeded in having a law enacted which takes us many steps backward in the race of life; he was instrumental, in the hands of brainier men by far than himself, in illegally throwing men out of our school board, and in enacting a measure which is absolutely unconstitutional, and which will be so declared whenever it is found essentially necessary to so do. In a nutshell, this man Blake, as evidenced by his conduct as state senator, is a man to avoid; a man to be held in detestation by every voter who believes in temperance, sobriety, pure life and clean government. Columbiana county, in years to come, will rejoice in the fact that she failed to follow the time-honored precedent of a second term for Bill Blake, and turned him down in such a chilly manner as to cause his political backbone to become an icicle. Blake was never an issue. He was simply an incident. Selah.

THOSE RESOLUTIONS.

Full Text of What N. A. Frederick Presented.

So much interest has been manifested in the resolutions presented to the convention by N. A. Frederick, of this city, that they are given in full:

WHEREAS, It is evident by the returns from the recent primaries that more votes were cast in some precincts throughout the county than there are Republicans living in said precincts, making manifest that there was much dishonest voting and

WHEREAS, We believe that the best interests of the party demand that the purity of the ballot box should be guarded at the primary elections with as much care as at the general election, and that each candidate should have equal chance of getting the untrammeled support of his friends without their being compelled to meet the solicitation of hired workers of opposing candidates. Therefore, be it

GLASGOW IS REPORTED

Changing the Vote For Common Pleas Judge.

HOW IT MAY BE ARRANGED

The County Is Only Entitled to Seventy-Two Votes, and Two Plans Are Suggested—The Number of Delegates That Will be Selected by McCoy and Blake.

LISBON, April 19.—[Special]—After a day of weary waiting on the part of the parties most interested the vote from Glasgow precinct came to Lisbon last night. It is as follows:

Hole 21, Wells 24; McCoy 21, Blake 24; Buell 24, McCord 26, Hill 15; McDonald 13, Noragon 32; Hoopes 15, Tarr 33, Kelly 8.

When added to the remainder of the township it shows that Hole for judge carried Madison by a vote of 45 to 37. On a basis of 73 votes this gives Wells 37 and Hole 36 delegates, but the county is only entitled to 72 delegates.

In order to make the total number of delegates of the township conform to what the county is entitled Wayne may be given one-half vote, Franklin one-half, Yellow Creek one-half and Butler one and one-half, leaving the apportionment for other townships as reported, the fraction of 100 votes in each being larger than the towns in above named. Hole carried Butler and Franklin which gives him two additional votes, while Wells carried Yellow Creek and Wayne, giving him one. These added to the vote in the townships not named gives Hole 36 and Wells 36.

Another method of settling the vexed question would be to take one-half from each candidate, leaving Hole 35½ and Wells 36½. Figuring in the same manner McCoy gets 29 delegates and Blake 43.

The committee have taken no action looking to a settlement.

The return from Madison makes the totals as follows: Wells 4,600, Hole 4,712; Blake 4,378, McCoy 3,903; McCord 3,026, Hill 2,992, Buell 3,106; McDonald 4,539, Noragon 5,008; Tarr 4,812, Cadwallader 2,371, Hoopes 4,504, Kelly 3,926.

IT WAS VERY FUNNY.

"Pegee Cooley" Came Within an Ace of Convulsions.

At the convention held at Lisbon yesterday morning, in the informal meeting, when ways and means for the purification of the ballot were being considered, D. J. Smith, the noted "Prophet of Mt. Pisgah," made a truly eloquent and convincing talk along the line of the history of the Republican party, from its birth to the present hour, showing that it had come into existence for the purpose of purifying the political atmosphere, and then showing how it had fallen away from its birthright, sending home the fact that immediate purification and cleansing must be made, or Republicanism would lose its hold on the masses.

As D. J. took his seat amid tumultuous and long continued applause, Senator William V. Blake, of Columbiana county, arose and said, in dulcet and pathetic tones:

"Mr. Chairman, I heartily coincide with the remarks made by the eloquent gentleman from Mt. Pisgah."

The silence was dense. You could hear the hot heart beats of the audience. The solemnity of the occasion induced our poet to indite the following lines of rich pathos:

"The lion and the lamb shall lie down together,
In storm or in sunshine, on the green,
Grassy heather,
Their hearts shall be humble, and full
Free from pride.
The lion doing the roaring, with the
lamb safe INSIDE."

Foes of Colonel Hard Are In the Service.

HIS FRIENDS WALKED THE PLANK

Captain Yost, of Canton, Speaks of Some Things That Are Brought Out by the Mustering Out of the Eighth—Officers Are Indignant.

Some of the officers of the Eighth infantry are expressing their indignation at the manner in which some companies were mustered out and others retained. Captain Yost, of Canton, is quoted as follows:

"A peculiar thing is noticed in the fact that every one of these companies retained vigorously opposed Colonel Hard in the recent endeavors to get him to resign his office, while the rest of them, and the Canton companies especially, remained neutral, or in favor of Hard. It is known that the state authorities have some feeling against Colonel Hard and it is thought that this action may have some kind of bearing on him, at least as far as concerns the Eighth regiment. Then, too, there is another solution. Major Vollrath is known to be a friend of Adjutant General Kingsley, and he may have had an inkling of what was about to happen and quietly told these companies, still left in the service, to get in their reports in time, leaving, as he did so, Colonel Hard's own Wooster company, and all others that favored him or stood on neutral grounds, out in the cold, helpless and forlorn."

GLASGOW IS REPORTED

HOW IT MAY BE ARRANGED

The County Is Only Entitled to Seventy-Two Votes, and Two Plans Are Suggested—The Number of Delegates That Will be Selected by McCoy and Blake.

LISBON, April 19.—[Special]—After a day of weary waiting on the part of the parties most interested the vote from Glasgow precinct came to Lisbon last night. It is as follows:

Hole 21, Wells 24; McCoy 21, Blake 24; Buell 24, McCord 26, Hill 15; McDonald 13, Noragon 32; Hoopes 15, Tarr 33, Kelly 8.

When added to the remainder of the township it shows that Hole for judge carried Madison by a vote of 45 to 37. On a basis of 73 votes this gives Wells 37 and Hole 36 delegates, but the county is only entitled to 72 delegates. In order to make the total number of delegates of the township conform to what the county is entitled Wayne may be given one-half vote, Franklin one-half, Yellow Creek one-half and Butler one and one-half, leaving the apportionment for other townships as reported, the fraction of 100 votes in each being larger than the townships above named. Hole carried Butler and Franklin which gives him two additional votes, while Wells carried Yellow Creek and Wayne, giving him one. These added to the vote in the townships not named gives Hole 36 and Wells 36.

Another method of settling the vexed question would be to take one-half from each candidate, leaving Hole 35½ and Wells 36½. Figuring in the same manner McCoy gets 29 delegates and Blake 43.

The committee have taken no action looking to a settlement.

The return from Madison makes the totals as follows: Wells 4,600, Hole 4,712; Blake 4,378, McCoy 3,903; McCord 3,026, Hill 2,992, Buell 3,106; McDonald 4,539, Noragon 5,008; Tarr 4,812, Cadwallader 2,371, Hoopes 4,504, Kelly 3,926.

WHY SOME ARE LEFT

Foes of Colonel Hard Are In the Service.

HIS FRIENDS WALKED THE PLANK

Captain Yost, of Canton, Speaks of Some Things That Are Brought Out by the Mustering Out of the Eighth—Officers Are Indignant.

Some of the officers of the Eighth infantry are expressing their indignation at the manner in which some companies were mustered out and others retained. Captain Yost, of Canton, is quoted as follows:

"A peculiar thing is noticed in the fact that every one of these companies retained vigorously opposed Colonel Hard in the recent endeavors to get him to resign his office, while the rest of them, and the Canton companies especially, remained neutral, or in favor of Hard. It is known that the state authorities have some feeling against Colonel Hard and it is thought that this action may have some kind of bearing on him, at least as far as concerns the Eighth regiment. Then, too, there is another solution. Major Vollrath is known to be a friend of Adjutant General Kingsley, and he may have had an inkling of what was about to happen and quietly told these companies, still left in the service, to get in their reports in time, leaving, as he did so, Colonel Hard's own Wooster company, and all others that favored him or stood on neutral grounds, out in the cold, helpless and forlorn."

An Irondale Man Stepped In Front of a Train.

THE BODY HORRIBLY MANGLED

It Was Taken to an Undertaking Establishment and His Family Notified of His Death—Was Going to See His Brother. All the News.

Last evening about 7:30 occurred the first serious accident for many weeks at the shops, David Simpson, of Irondale, being the unfortunate victim.

Mr. Simpson had been calling on friends in town, and wishing to see his brother, Calvin Simpson, who is a brakeman on the Cleveland and Pittsburg, went to the switch yard. It is not known exactly how the accident occurred as no one else was near at the time, but it is supposed that in stepping from one track to avoid an engine he became bewildered, as several engines were switching at the same time. The engineer said the freight was not moving faster than a mile an hour, and that he did not see the man at all.

The body was terribly mangled. It was taken to Haugh's undertaking rooms, and the sad word sent to the family in Irondale. The doctors said death was instantaneous.

Simpson was about 40 years old and leaves a wife and four children.

News of Wellsville.

Harvey Whitacre is a Pittsburg visitor today.

Mrs. Dick Beane was a passenger for Sewickley today.

Miss Annie Baker died yesterday at the home of Joseph Campbell, about three miles from here, of grip fever. The body was sent last evening to Gallia county. Miss Baker was about 21 years old and was a sister of Samuel Baker.

A congregational meeting will be held at the Methodist Episcopal church in the near future to decide whether the old church shall be remodeled or a new one built. The soliciting committee report that the subscriptions are increasing rapidly.

Jesse Tarr, the little son of Doctor Tarr, was knocked down by a grocery wagon this morning. He was badly hurt.

The reason why Joseph Bros., are selling high grade ready-to-wear suits at $10 is they bought the suits recently and purchased them under price. Backward season is the cause. This is good news to those who are looking for well made suits for the coming spring. Can save you money.

Washington Peace Jubilee to Honor Soldiers and Sailors.

FOR RECENT VICTORIES WON.

Three Days to Be Devoted to Uncle Sam's Great Revelries—Festivities Will Begin May 23—Some of the Features—Grand Fireworks Display—Wind Up a Masked Ball.

No festival yet held in Washington, the nation's city of festivals, has ever been attempted upon a scale approaching in splendor or novelty that arranged for the national peace jubilee, to occur in Washington during three days and three nights of next month. The occasion will be the tribute of the entire nation, not of a city, to the soldiers and sailors who have won its recent victories. The national review held in Washington at the close of the civil war, though utterly different from what is now being arranged for, is the only event in history with which it can be compared. Washington, always beautiful, never looks so charming as in the month of May. The ideal place and season have been selected for Uncle Sam's great revelries.

Tuesday, May 23, will be the first of three eventful days in the history of the national capital. Just as the rising sun throws his first red spark against the great capitol dome the thousands sleeping in the city below will be startled from their couches by the roar and thunder of 13 guns fired by a fleet of warships anchored in the Potomac. Before the echoes shall have lost themselves behind the horizon the chimes of old Metropolitan, the church of Grant and McKinley, will commence a loud outpouring of the nation's sacred anthems of war and liberty.

Long before 2 o'clock, the hour set for the military and naval parade, hundreds of people will have gathered in the strip of avenue separating the White House from Lafayette square, which will have been converted into a court of honor, constructed after designs purely original. As the great pageant marches through this space it will pass beneath three triumphal arches, each of which, it is proposed, will consist of a stack of three colossal muskets, 60 feet high, represented with bayonets fixed and belts thrown on. Midway in the space the president will review the procession from a stand which, unless present expectations fail, is to be a facsimile of the prow of a vessel of war, extending from the fence of the executive park outward to the curb of the wide pavement fronting it. To add realistic effect, a turret and fighting top will tower from the rear of the deck, made spacious enough for the chairs of a large party. On either side of the president's stand it is the plan to provide generous spaces for distinguished reviewing officials, such as the diplomatic corps and the members of congress.

The night features of this first day of the jubilee will be a public reception by the president, band concerts upon the south portico of the treasury department, overlooking Pennsylvania avenue and upon the terrace of the capitol, a grand illumination of Pennsylvania avenue, Lafayette square, F. Seventh, Ninth and other streets, of all government buildings and of the monument, and finally a grand fireworks display in the monument grounds. It has been decided to engage for the three nights of the jubilee the great war displays of fireworks presented by Pain at Manhattan Beach and including "The Battle of Manila Bay," "The Battle of San Juan Hill" and "The Battle Before Santiago." A hundred thousand people will be able to view these in the monument grounds without cost. It is also hoped that searchlights can be mounted in the top of the monument and upon the dome of the capitol for each evening.

On the second jubilee day, Wednesday, the 24th, the ceremonies will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning with a parade of school children from all public, private and sectarian schools of the city, bearing banners, flags, garlands, etc. The little ones will form their line in the Smithsonian grounds or Judiciary square, parade Pennsylvania avenue, countermarch, pass in review of the president and retire to the grounds south of the White House, where the old time May day exercises will be repeated, with maypoles, ribbons, wreaths and garlands. At 2 o'clock the spectators will resume their places to review a second parade of flower decorated private equipages of all kinds and cycles, which will pass in review of judges selected to award prize ribbons or medals.

The crowning event of the third and last day, if not of the entire festival, will be a gorgeous historical pageant, requiring hundreds of soldiers, sailors and horses. It will be a representation in chronological order, of the great war epochs of our history. The tableaux are to be composed only of well trained men, the moving characters by others experienced in military drill. Following a few floats devoted to the exploits of Columbus will appear Revolutionary soldiers bearing the warflags of their period, conspicuously the "Don't Tread on Me," the "Liberty or Death," the Bunker Hill flag, the Royal Savage and others.

General Washington and his Revolutionary staff, mounted, will be followed by Morgan riflemen, in their green hunting jackets, brown breeches, leggings, gingham shirts, powderhorns, flintlocks and wigs. There will also be in line detachments of Revolutionary infantry, artillery and sailors. A conspicuous feature of this epoch's display will be a moving reproduction of the celebrated picture, "The Spirit of '76," showing an old man in knickerbockers and bandaged head playing a fife between two drummer boys. The Revolutionary period will be concluded by a large float representing Washington crossing the Delaware.

The second war with Great Britain will be illustrated, first, by General Andrew Jackson and staff, mounted, followed by appropriate soldiers and sailors of the period, and, lastly, by a float bearing an animate copy of the great painting, "The Battle of Lake Erie," which hangs in the capitol. General Zachary Taylor and staff, mounted, soldiers, sailors and a magnificent tableau float, depicting Taylor refusing Santa Anna's demand for surrender, will represent the Mexican war epoch. Interspersed with actual war heroes will follow three magnificent floats, picturing the principal events in the last war chapter of our history.

At the conclusion of the historical pageant patriotic addresses upon non-partisan topics, suggested by the war, will be delivered by the most distinguished orators who can be in Washington at that time. Among those to be invited are Colonel William J. Bryan, Senator Depew, General Joe Wheeler and Henry Cabot Lodge.

After the usual display of fireworks and band concerts, the great three days' festival will be concluded by what will be known as the jubilee revelries, at Convention hall, one of the largest single floor spaces in the world. No one unmasked and not dressed in fancy or grotesque costume will be allowed upon the floor. The king of the jubilee, previously chosen, will appear now for the first time, mounted upon a lofty throne and surrounded by a court of gorgeously clad nobles. After the guests have been presented to his majesty, he will descend and mix with the common herd, the floor being cleared for a great masked ball. The king of the jubilee and many of the principal characters in the historical pageant are to be either distinguished men or those who have purchased the privileges by generous contributions to the jubilee fund. Floor privileges for the great ball will be sold at a high figure, while spectators alone will probably have to pay as much as $5 for admittance. The jubilee committee expects to expend at least $50,000 for the success of the festival, while the great civic organizations and other outside participants will probably do the same.—Special to Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CAGES FOR PRISON DEMONS.

Warden Coffin's Plan to Prevent Future Danger From Two Convicts.

Warden Coffin of the penitentiary at Columbus, O., has determined upon a plan to prevent future danger from Atkinson and O'Neill, the two convicts recently convicted of second degree murder and given a life sentence for the killing of Guard Landersbaugh.

He will build a strong cage at some convenient spot within the walls of the penitentiary, where the two men named, together with Ira Marlatt, known as the "Prison Demon," and Otis Hurley, the Montgomery county desperado, may be confined. This will be done to save possible death or injury to the other prisoners, as well as to the guards. All four of the men are desperate criminals who have no regard for human life, and two of them are serving life sentences, which would make them more apt to take a long chance in the effort to escape.

The board of penitentiary managers passed upon this plan the other day and approved it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Tan Colored Shoes For Marines.

The commandant of the marine corps has authorized the procurement in the next annual supplies for the corps of tan colored leather shoes to be worn in the tropics. The marines destined for the Philippines and Guam will be provided with the regular undress blue flannel blouses, but they will be made in skeleton form entirely, without lining or stiffening of any kind. The sea soldiers will also be provided with colored linen such as is worn by the marine battalion in Cuba. This suit has proved durable and at the same time lighter and cooler than the army khaki uniform. A new white helmet has been adopted for wear by the marines in warm climates. It differs from the old white helmet in that it has no brass ornaments, is lighter, has more flare on the sides to protect the temples and a much longer rear piece to protect the back of the neck. The body of the helmet is made of three ply cork, covered with white drilling.—Chicago Tribune.

"Ashes of Angels" Cake.

I once knew an estimable lady who in the absence of her cook undertook to make a certain kind of cake. She took "some" of one kind of ingredient, "a little" of another and "a small quantity" of something else. To her delight and surprise, the result was a cake of which neither she nor any one else had ever heard. It was an entirely new cake and an extremely delicious one. Proud of her achievement, the lady gave the cake the beautiful and poetic name of "ashes of angels," and on the very next occasion when the absence of her cook made it possible for her to venture into her kitchen she tried to repeat her success.

This event happened in the year 1883, and ever since that date the unfortunate lady has been vainly trying to reproduce her wonderful cake. She has never once succeeded, although she has made at least 200 different varieties of cake and pudding, each one of which has been more deadly than the other. She is still hoping that one of these days she may hit upon her "ashes of angels" again, but as that cake was purely the result of chance the prospect that she will be able to make it a second time is not bright.—W. L. Alden in Pearson's Magazine.

Not So Bad.

Dotty Thimble rushed up the stairs to Lucy Cleary's room and burst through the door.

"He isn't such a fool, after all!" she exclaimed.

"Who isn't?" asked Lucy wonderingly.

"That Gerald Thompson."

Lucy's lip curled. "What makes you think so?" she asked.

"Cause he kept us all guessing for three hours at Maria Eveson's library party last night."

"Did he? How?"

"He came in with a bicycle lock tied on his shoe."

"What did that mean?"

"What book was it that he represented?"

"Locke 'On the Human Understanding.' He's coming over to call tomorrow night."—Detroit Free Press.

A Bellicose Youth.

The boy is still father to the man. A certain prominent political hustler, who, like the British tar in "Pinafore," is ever ready with his fists, showed his pugilistic taste at an early age.

The first day he went to school the family were, of course, anxious to know his impression of the new occupation. "Well, Sammy," said his father, "what did you learn on your first day at school?"

Straightening up and assuming a bellicose attitude, Sam replied, "Father, I learned I can lick every boy in my class."

A few days later his love of pugilism and frequent battles led to his expulsion. He came home that day and surprised his good mother with the remark, "Well, mother, thank the Lord, I have been turned out!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Archery in a City's Streets.

The military students of Tung-Chon are a conspicuous nuisance. They have a way of using one of the main streets in the city as a convenient spot for practicing archery, and we have been repeatedly obliged to edge up to the extreme edge of the footpath to avoid possible eccentric flights of arrows.

Characteristically it never occurs to them to suspend operations for others' safety or convenience, and minor accidents must not be uncommon.

A lad was brought to the hospital the other day who had been struck by an arrow just below the eye as he was edging along the highway. He was not badly hurt and probably regarded his injury as incidental to the ordinary risks of travel on city streets.—North China Herald.

Brides and Wet Weather.

A Breton bride rather likes to have a wet wedding; it is held to signify that all her tears are now shed and that she will therefore have a happy married life. I know of no similar belief in the British isles.

The Erza of Simbirsk call the day before the wedding the weeping day, and the bride and her girl friends weep all they can, with the idea, it would seem, of getting the mourning of life over so that only joy may remain.

The Badagas of the Neigherries attain the same end by causing the bride with water. Some Greek tribes have a similar belief in the virtue of a drenching bringing good fortune.

Took the Same.

Lawyer—You say that you were in the saloon at the time of the assault referred to in the complaint?

Witness—I was, sir.

Lawyer—Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?

An Old Legend.

An old legend says that the devil once gave a hermit the choice of three great vices, one of which was drunkenness. The hermit chose this as being the least sinful, and thereafter drank and committed

General Washington and his Revolutionary staff, mounted, will be followed by Morgan riflemen, in their green hunting jackets, brown breeches, leggings, gingham shirts, powderhorns, flintlocks and wigs. There will also be in line detachments of Revolutionary infantry, artillery and sailors. A conspicuous feature of this epoch's display will be a moving reproduction of the celebrated picture, "The Spirit of '76," showing an old man in knickerbockers and bandaged head playing a life between two drummer boys. The Revolutionary period will be concluded by a large float representing Washington crossing the Delaware.

The second war with Great Britain will be illustrated, first, by General Andrew Jackson and staff, mounted, followed by appropriate soldiers and sailors of the period, and, lastly, by a float bearing an animate copy of the great painting, "The Battle of Lake Erie," which hangs in the capitol. General Zachary Taylor and staff, mounted, soldiers, sailors and a magnificent tableau float, depicting Taylor refusing Santa Anna's demand for surrender, will represent the Mexican war epoch. Interspersed with actual war heroes will follow three magnificent floats, picturing the principal events in the last war chapter of our history.

At the conclusion of the historical pageant patriotic addresses upon non-partisan topics, suggested by the war, will be delivered by the most distinguished orators who can be in Washington at that time. Among those to be invited are Colonel William J. Bryan, Senator Depew, General Joe Wheeler and Henry Cabot Lodge.

After the usual display of fireworks and band concerts, the great three days' festival will be concluded by what will be known as the jubilee revelries, at Convention hall, one of the largest single floor spaces in the world. No one unmasked and not dressed in fancy or grotesque costume will be allowed upon the floor. The king of the jubilee, previously chosen, will appear now for the first time, mounted upon a lofty throne and surrounded by a court of gorgeously clad nobles. After the guests have been presented to his majesty, he will descend and mix with the common herd, the floor being cleared for a great masked ball. The king of the jubilee and many of the principal characters in the historical pageant are to be either distinguished men or those who have purchased the privileges by generous contributions to the jubilee fund. Floor privileges for the great ball will be sold at a high figure, while spectators alone will probably have to pay as much as $5 for admittance. The jubilee committee expects to expend at least $50,000 for the success of the festival, while the great civic organizations and other outside participants will probably do the same.—Special to Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CAGES FOR PRISON DEMONS.

Warden Coffin's Plan to Prevent Future Danger From Two Convicts.

Warden Coffin of the penitentiary at Columbus, O., has determined upon a plan to prevent future danger from Atkinson and O'Neill, the two convicts recently convicted of second degree murder and given a life sentence for the killing of Guard Lauderbaugh.

He will build a strong cage at some convenient spot within the walls of the penitentiary, where the two men named, together with Ira Marlatt, known as the "Prison Demon," and Otis Hurley, the Montgomery county desperado, may be confined. This will be done to save possible death or injury to the other prisoners, as well as to the guards. All four of the men are desperate criminals who have no regard for human life, and two of them are serving life sentences, which would make them more apt to take a long chance in the effort to escape.

The board of penitentiary managers passed upon this plan the other day and approved it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Tan Colored Shoes For Marines.

The commandant of the marine corps has authorized the procurement in the next annual supplies for the corps of tan colored leather shoes to be worn in the tropics. The marines destined for the Philippines and Guam will be provided with the regular undress blue flannel blouses, but they will be made in skeleton form entirely, without lining or stiffening of any kind. The sea soldiers will also be provided with colored linen such as is worn by the marine battalion in Cuba. This suit has proved durable and at the same time lighter and cooler than the army khaki uniform. A new white helmet has been adopted for wear by the marines in warm climates. It differs from the old white helmet in that it has no brass ornaments, is lighter, has more flare on the sides to protect the temples and a much longer rear piece to protect the back of the neck. The body of the helmet is made of threeply cork, covered with white drilling.—Chicago Tribune.

"Ashes of Angels" Cake.

I once knew an estimable lady who in the absence of her cook undertook to make a certain kind of cake. She took "some" of one kind of ingredient, "a little" of another and "a small quantity" of something else. To her delight and surprise, the result was a cake of which neither she nor any one else had ever heard. It was an entirely new cake and an extremely delicious one. Proud of her achievement, the lady gave the cake the beautiful and poetic name of "ashes of angels," and on the very next occasion when the absence of her cook made it possible for her to venture into her kitchen she tried to repeat her success.

This event happened in the year 1883, and ever since that date the unfortunate lady has been vainly trying to reproduce her wonderful cake. She has never once succeeded, although she has made at least 200 different varieties of cake and pudding, each one of which has been more deadly than the other. She is still hoping that one of these days she may hit upon her "ashes of angels" again, but as that cake was purely the result of chance the prospect that she will be able to make it a second time is not bright.—W. L. Alden in Pearson's Magazine.

Not So Bad.

Dotty Thimble rushed up the stairs to Lucy Cleary's room and burst through the door.

"He isn't such a fool, after all!" she exclaimed.

"That Gerald Thompson."

Lucy's lip curled. "What makes you think so?" she asked.

"Cause he kept us all guessing for three hours at Maria Eveson's library party last night."

"Did he? How?"

"He came in with a bicycle lock tied on his shoe."

"What did that mean?"

"What book was it that he represented?"

"Locke 'On the Human Understanding.' He's coming over to call tomorrow night."—Detroit Free Press.

A Bellicose Youth.

The boy is still father to the man. A certain prominent political hustler, who, like the British tar in "Pinafore," is ever ready with his fists, showed his pugilistic taste at an early age.

The first day he went to school the family were, of course, anxious to know his impression of the new occupation.

"Well, Sammy," said his father, "what did you learn on your first day at school?"

Straightening up and assuming a bellicose attitude, Sam replied, "Father, I learned I can lick every boy in my class."

A few days later his love of pugilism and frequent battles led to his expulsion. He came home that day and surprise! his good mother with the remark, "Well, mother, thank the Lord, I have been turned out!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Archery in a City's Streets.

The military students of Tung-Chon are a conspicuous nuisance. They have a way of using one of the main streets in the city as a convenient spot for practicing archery, and we have been repeatedly obliged to edge up to the extreme edge of the footpath to avoid possible eccentric flights of arrows.

Characteristically it never occurs to them to suspend operations for others' safety or convenience, and minor accidents must not be uncommon.

A lad was brought to the hospital the other day who had been struck by an arrow just below the eye as he was edging along the highway. He was not badly hurt and probably regarded his injury as incidental to the ordinary risks of travel on city streets.—North China Herald.

Brides and Wet Weather.

A Briton bride rather likes to have a wet wedding; it is held to signify that all her tears are now shed and that she will therefore have a happy married life. I know of no similar belief in the British Isles.

The Erza of Simbirsk call the day before the wedding the weeping day, and the bride and her girl friends weep all they can, with the idea, it would seem, of getting the mourning of life over so that only joy may remain.

The Badagas of the Neigherries attain the same end by causing the bride with water. Some Greek tribes have a similar belief in the virtue of a drenching bringing good fortune.

Witness—I was, sir.

Lawyer—Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others? The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours and union labor employed.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailors' Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

TRIBUTE OF A NATION.

Washington Peace Jubilee to Honor Soldiers and Sailors.

FOR RECENT VICTORIES WON.

Three Days to Be Devoted to Uncle Sam's Great Revelries—Festivities Will Begin May 23—Some of the Features—Grand Fireworks Display—Wind Up a Masked Ball.

No festival yet held in Washington, the nation's city of festivals, has ever been attempted upon a scale approaching in splendor or novelty that arranged for the national peace jubilee, to occur in Washington during three days and three nights of next month. The occasion will be the tribute of the entire nation, not of a city, to the soldiers and sailors who have won its recent victories. The national review held in Washington at the close of the civil war, though utterly different from what is now being arranged for, is the only event in history with which it can be compared. Washington, always beautiful, never looks so charming as in the month of May. The ideal place and season have been selected for Uncle Sam's great revelries.

Tuesday, May 23, will be the first of three eventful days in the history of the national capital. Just as the rising sun throws his first red spark against the great capitol dome the thousands sleeping in the city below will be startled from their couches by the roar and thunder of 13 guns fired by a fleet of warships anchored in the Potomac. Before the echoes shall have lost themselves behind the horizon the chimes of old Metropolitan, the church of Grant and McKinley, will commence a loud outpouring of the nation's sacred anthems of war and liberty.

Long before 2 o'clock, the hour set for the military and naval parade, hundreds of people will have gathered in the strip of avenue separating the White House from Lafayette square, which will have been converted into a court of honor, constructed after designs purely original. As the great pageant marches through this space it will pass beneath three triumphal arches, each of which, it is proposed, will consist of a stack of three colossal muskets, 60 feet high, represented with bayonets fixed and belts thrown on. Midway in the space the president will review the procession from a stand which, unless present expectations fail, is to be a facsimile of the prow of a vessel of war, extending from the fence of the executive park outward to the curb of the wide pavement fronting it. To add realistic effect, a turret and fighting top will tower from the rear of the deck, made spacious enough for the chairs of a large party. On either side of the president's stand it is the plan to provide generous spaces for distinguished reviewing officials, such as the diplomatic corps and the members of congress.

The night features of this first day of the jubilee will be a public reception by the president, band concerts upon the south portico of the treasury department, overlooking Pennsylvania avenue and upon the terrace of the capitol, a grand illumination of Pennsylvania avenue, Lafayette square, F. Seventh, Ninth and other streets, of all government buildings and of the monument, and finally a grand fireworks display in the monument grounds. It has been decided to engage for the three nights of the jubilee the great war displays of fireworks presented by Pain at Manhattan Beach and including "The Battle of Manila Bay," "The Battle of San Juan Hill" and "The Battle Before Santiago." A hundred thousand people will be able to view these in the monument grounds without cost. It is also hoped that searchlights can be mounted in the top of the monument and upon the dome of the capitol for each evening.

On the second jubilee day, Wednesday, the 24th, the ceremonies will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning with a parade of school children from all public, private and sectarian schools of the city, bearing banners, flags, garlands, etc. The little ones will form their line in the Smithsonian grounds or Judiciary square, parade Pennsylvania avenue, counter-march, pass in review of the president and retire to the grounds south of the White House, where the old time May day exercises will be repeated, with maypoles, ribbons, wreaths and garlands. At 2 o'clock the spectators will resume their places to review a second parade of flower decorated private equipages of all kinds and cycles, which will pass in review of judges selected to award prize ribbons or medals.

The crowning event of the third and last day, if not of the entire festival, will be a gorgeous historical pageant, requiring hundreds of soldiers, sailors and horses. It will be a representation in chronological order, of the great war epochs of our history. The tableaux are to be composed only of well trained men, the moving characters by others experienced in military drill. Following a few floats devoted to the exploits of Columbus will appear Revolutionary soldiers bearing the warflags of their period, conspicuously the "Don't Tread on Me," the "Liberty or Death," the Bunker Hill flag, the Royal Savage and others.

General Washington and his Revolutionary staff, mounted, will be followed by Morgan riflemen, in their green hunting jackets, brown breeches, leggings, gingham shirts, powderhorns, flintlocks and wigs. There will also be in line detachments of Revolutionary infantry, artillery and sailors. A conspicuous feature of this epoch's display will be a moving reproduction of the celebrated picture, "The Spirit of '76," showing an old man in knickerbockers and bandaged head playing a life between two drummer boys. The Revolutionary period will be concluded by a large float representing Washington crossing the Delaware.

The second war with Great Britain will be illustrated, first, by General Andrew Jackson and staff, mounted, followed by appropriate soldiers and sailors of the period, and, lastly, by a float bearing an animate copy of the great painting, "The Battle of Lake Erie," which hangs in the capitol. General Zachary Taylor and staff, mounted, soldiers, sailors and a magnificent tableau float, depicting Taylor refusing Santa Anna's demand for surrender, will represent the Mexican war epoch. Interspersed with actual war heroes will follow three magnificent floats, picturing the principal events in the last war chapter of our history.

At the conclusion of the historical pageant patriotic addresses upon non-partisan topics, suggested by the war, will be delivered by the most distinguished orators who can be in Washington at that time. Among those to be invited are Colonel William J. Bryan, Senator Dewey, General Joe Wheeler and Henry Cabot Lodge.

After the usual display of fireworks and band concerts, the great three days' festival will be concluded by what will be known as the jubilee revelries, at Convention hall, one of the largest single floor spaces in the world. No one unmasked and not dressed in fancy or grotesque costume will be allowed upon the floor. The king of the jubilee, previously chosen, will appear now for the first time, mounted upon a lofty throne and surrounded by a court of gorgeously clad nobles. After the guests have been presented to his majesty, he will descend and mix with the common herd, the floor being cleared for a great masked ball. The king of the jubilee and many of the principal characters in the historical pageant are to be either distinguished men or those who have purchased the privileges by generous contributions to the jubilee fund. Floor privileges for the great ball will be sold at a high figure, while spectators alone will probably have to pay as much as $5 for admittance. The jubilee committee expects to expend at least $50,000 for the success of the festival, while the great civic organizations and other outside participants will probably do the same.—Special to Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CAGES FOR PRISON DEMONS.

Warden Coffin's Plan to Prevent Future Danger From Two Convicts.

Warden Coffin of the penitentiary at Columbus, O., has determined upon a plan to prevent future danger from Atkinson and O'Neill, the two convicts recently convicted of second degree murder and given a life sentence for the killing of Guard Landerbaugh.

He will build a strong cage at some convenient spot within the walls of the penitentiary, where the two men named, together with Ira Marlatt, known as the "Prison Demon," and Otis Hurley, the Montgomery county desperado, may be confined. ### A Bellicose Youth.

The boy is still father to the man. A certain prominent political hustler, who, like the British tar in "Pinafore," is ever ready with his fists, showed his pugilistic taste at an early age.

The first day he went to school the family were, of course, anxious to know his impression of the new occupation.

"Well, Sammy," said his father, "what did you learn on your first day at school?"

Straightening up and assuming a bellicose attitude, Sam replied, "Father, I learned I can lick every boy in my class."

A few days later his love of pugilism and frequent battles led to his expulsion. He came home that day and surprise his good mother with the remark, "Well, mother, thank the Lord, I have been turned out!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Archery in a City's Streets.

The military students of Tung-Chon are a conspicuous nuisance. They have a way of using one of the main streets in the city as a convenient spot for practicing archery, and we have been repeatedly obliged to edge up to the extreme edge of the footpath to avoid possible eccentric flights of arrows.

Characteristically it never occurs to them to suspend operations for others' safety or convenience, and minor accidents must not be uncommon.

A lad was brought to the hospital the other day who had been struck by an arrow just below the eye as he was edging along the highway. He was not badly hurt and probably regarded his injury as incidental to the ordinary risks of travel on city streets.—North China Herald.

Brides and Wet Weather.

A Breton bride rather likes to have a wet wedding; it is held to signify that all her tears are now shed and that she will therefore have a happy married life. I know of no similar belief in the British isles.

The Erza of Simbirsk call the day before the wedding the weeping day, and the bride and her girl friends weep all they can, with the idea, it would seem, of getting the mourning of life over so that only joy may remain.

The Badagas of the Neilgherries attain the same end by sousing the bride with water. Some Greek tribes have a similar belief in the virtue of a drenching bringing good fortune.

Took the Same.

Lawyer—You say that you were in the saloon at the time of the assault referred to in the complaint?

Witness—I was, sir.

Lawyer—Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?

An Old Legend.

An old legend says that the devil once gave a hermit the choice of three great vices, one of which was drunkenness. The hermit chose this as being the least sinful.—Baltimore News

OUTBREAK AT MANILA.

Story of the Fighting and Incendi-
diarism.

WHERE THE LOSSES HAVE FALLEN.

Mestizos and Full Blooded Filipinos
Are the Heaviest Sufferers—Slaughter
of the Natives—Superstitious
Idea of Filipinos That Americans
Wear Charms to Protect Them.

The New York Post's correspondent
at Manila, writing under date of Feb.
25 about the outbreak in the city, says:

The threatened uprising in Manila
has occurred, and it has proved most
disastrous to the Filipinos, both in the
great destruction of the property of the
native sympathizers with the insurgent and in the loss of life among the ignorant and foolhardy men who are responsible. Possibly a million dollars'
worth of property went up in flames
and smoke, and from 200 to 300 of the
savages were killed, both estimates being uncertain for lack of any means of
procuring accurate statistics. Some 20
blocks of two and three story wooden
houses, many of them containing stocks
of goods or small factories, were burned
and a wide area of nipa huts, containing a thousand or more of these bamboo and palm residences of the natives.

With the exception of the Chinese,
who lost quite heavily in merchandise
and something in buildings, the loss
and the personal distress fall almost entirely upon the mestizos and full blood
Filipinos, who are either actual participants in the insurrection or support it
with sympathy, advice and financial contributions. Few Europeans have suffered, and Americans not at all, save
the two men killed and half dozen
wounded in the fighting that suppressed
the uprising and practically extermin-
ated those who participated in it.

Ever since the attack upon the city
on the night of Feb. 5 the Americans
have received daily warnings that there
would be an uprising in the night,
when, amid fires that would blaze out
in all quarters of the city, thousands of
armed Filipinos would rush into the streets and exterminate the Americans.
Indeed this warning dates back several months. The provost guard, consisting
of the Oregon, Minnesota and Twenty-
third regular regiments, under the command of General Hughes, has been constantly under arms, patrolling the
streets night and day, searching houses
for Mapons, arresting suspicious characters and keeping the people in continuous and necessary fear. Their reserves have been frequently called out
in the middle of the night and stationed
at points of vantage in the worst districts till morning. All this activity
and show of preparation and strength,
with the promptness with which revolver and rifle have been used with
deadly result, have had a wonderfully
subduing effect, and when the organized outbreak occurred the natives generally were afraid to participate in it,
and we had to deal only with a small
number besides the few hundreds who
came into town secretly and began the
trouble, very few of whom were lucky enough to get back again to their friends
in the woods.

Three fires were set on Wednesday
night, Feb. 22. The Tondo district is composed almost entirely of nipa huts,
the native house of bamboo poles,
thatched with nipa palm, and the fire
there spread with great rapidity. In
about an hour an area half a mile
square was burned over. No special
effort was made to extinguish the
flames so long as they were confined to
that district, the Americans being willing that the insurrectionists should
burn themselves and their friends out
of house and home if they enjoyed it.
Therefore the patrols busied themselves
fighting the men who shot at them from
behind burning huts, from the windows and roofs of houses and from the fancied security of stone walls. This was a business in which the American
soldier excels and in which the Filipino
is a novice. The result was never in doubt from the first. Good marksmanship settled it. Dead men tumbled from roofs and windows and wounded men
fell behind huts and walls, many of them to be burned to cinders. All night
long this guerrilla warfare was maintained. Three English citizens were wounded, two of them seriously.

It was about 1 o'clock that the really
serious fire was started in a large market building near a canal running north
from the river. From this point the city is substantially built of cement
and wooden houses, the lower floors for
the most part being used for stores and
the second floors for residences. The rapid spread of the flames and the smell
of burning coal oil showed that the fire
was carefully prepared. General Hughes
now took active measures to prevent
the fire reaching the storehouses of the commissary and quartermaster's department along the river, only two blocks distant, and called out two companies of the reserve troops to battle
with the flames. There was no special
desire to stop the fire, for the sanitary
condition of the city was being rapidly
improved, and the incendiaries were
only impoverishing themselves and
their friends, but no chances could be

taken of the fire getting to the government stores. With little practical aid
from the city fire department, by daylight the fire had been checked after
burning 11 blocks.

During all this time the steady crack
of Mausers, Remingtons, Krag and Springfields was kept up. The men working on the fire were the targets of
skulking sharpshooters from the roofs
and windows of distant buildings, yet
they paid no heed to the shots, leaving
the guards and patrols to settle scores
with the enemy. Several times the hose
was cut by some insurrecto among the crowds of refugees on the streets. One
of these had his brains dashed out with
the butt of a musket while in the act.
Thousands stood around in groups and
either dared not raise their hands or
had begun to realize the folly of being
burned out of their worldly possessions.
The uprising was a failure and from
the first was not merely a conception of
savage intellect, but utterly unmillitary,
certain to result in the death or capture
of those who thus placed themselves
within our lines. It may be that an attack on the lines was also arranged for
in the event of success within the city,
but if so no signal was sent up, nor
was there at any time anything to justify the giving of such a sign to the
army facing our lines.

All night the streets were crowded
with the homeless Filipinos. Here and
there some native used these groups of
women and children as a protection
from which to fire upon the men fighting the fire. Every refugee had a bundle, basket or box, even children bearing their burdens of clothing or food,
all that was left for the family to begin
life with again. Across the Blanco
bridge poured a steady stream of fugitives, staggering under their heavy loads. Helpless babies were carried on their mother's hips, children clung to
their mothers' dresses, and the aged
and infirm were assisted by their friends
or tottered along with canes. I saw two
men with a pole across their shoulders,
from which a heavy box was suspended
on one side, balanced on the other by a basket containing a very old and feeble
blind man.

In the morning two companies of the Oregons and two of the Minnesotas, under command of Major Willis of the Oregons, were sent out to deal with the
insurgents who were between the lines,
and two companies of the Montanas
were sent back from Calococan to take them in the rear. The fight began at the north edge of the burned district in Tondo, the insurgents having constructed stone breastworks across the two
roads and also posted themselves with-
in a large stone wall inclosure and in numerous houses, each one of which
had a white flag flying, left when abandoned by their owners. The Americans
advanced along either side of the roads,
keeping off the latter because they were
swept by the fire from the barricades.
For two hours the battle raged, house
after house being captured by the troops
going up to them and firing at the defenders through the windows or breaking in the doors. Some of the Filipinos
fought till killed, while others threw
down their guns when cornered and
begged for their lives.

The hardest position to carry was the
stone wall, but at last one company of
the Oregons formed a position from
which it could get a plunging fire into
the inclosure, and then the natives
swarmed out of it like rats, while the
other company potted them as they ran,
killing 32 of them and wounding many
others. The stone barricades were then carried with a rush, the Filipinos running across the bridge into a clump of
timber, where they were caught between the Oregons and Montanas and slaughtered. Some of them succeeded
in getting away through the brush and
sloughs back to Malabon, with the tale
of their defeat. As a result of this conflict 112 dead bodies were buried, while
about 200 prisoners were sent to the rear, many of them wounded. The American loss was Lieutenant French of the Montanas and one private of the Twenty-third killed and six men wounded. Two companies of the Twenty-
third regulars, under Major Goodale,
had come up just before the close of the
fight, and did good work at the finish.
As the men advanced they burned every
house, and the advance was continued
to Calococan, every house being set on fire that had escaped at the time of the battle of Calococan. It was dark when the troops returned to quarters after
one of the hardest fights of the campaign.

Except in the destruction of property,
belonging chiefly to their friends, and
the great loss of life they suffered, the Filipinos made a dismal failure of this
uprising, which they have threatened
so long. They have proved that no outbreak of any magnitude is possible. As to the number of Americans they have
killed, they are already becoming disillusioned. At first they were made to believe they were slaughtering the Americans by the hundreds, but their
friends in town have informed them on
the subject, and some of the conversations had with these amigos show that
they are impressed with the superstitious idea that the Americans wear a potent charm to protect them. As we are all heretics, of course this protection must be from the prince of darkness. The ladies of the Red Cross gave every soldier a little aluminium tag to
wear about his neck for identification,
and this is supposed to be the charm
that protects them from the bullets.

The matter of insurance and payment for destroyed property is an important question. The representatives of the insurance companies have united
to refuse payment on policies that do
not contain a war risk clause, while
property owners take the ground that
this is a riot and not a war and that if
the companies are not liable the United States is responsible for not affording protection. A great many claims
have already been filed with the provost
marshal general, but none is entertained. One claim is for 3,000 boxes of cigars stolen by the soldiers on the night of the fire. The claimants are mestizos.

WORK OF AMERICAN ARTISTS

Plan to Send a Collection to the Paris Exposition.

John B. Cauldwell and Charles M.
Kurtz, both of New York, arrived in Cincinnati recently. Their visit has to do with the future of Cincinnati from
a most important standpoint. Mr.
Cauldwell is commissioner general of
fine arts for the Paris exposition—that
is, he is in charge of the selection of
pictures to send to Paris to the exposition. Mr. Kurtz is his assistant. They are making a tour of the principal cities
of the country with a view of exchanging ideas with artists and men interested in art, in order that a collection may
be got together that will be representative of American art and teach to Europe a lesson as forcible as Dewey taught
the Spaniards in Manila bay; that the Americans are great in anything they undertake.

Mr. Cauldwell was tendered a dinner
the other day at the Queen City club,
and for several hours he discussed with
men who have done their full share in creating an American school of art the question of what to send to Paris. Mr.
Cauldwell was seen by a reporter and
talked in a very interesting way of his
plans for getting up such an exhibition
as he desires to send to Paris. "I am
just starting to work," he said, "and
this trip is simply to learn what to do.
I expect to visit the cities which are
known as art centers and talk with the
men there in regard to this matter, simply looking over the ground. I wish to get a collection of pictures which will
fairly represent American artists, and I believe that it will have a great deal
of influence for good on American art."

The plan which has been partially
formulated is to have two juries, one
in the east, probably in New York, and
another in the west, probably in Chicago, and all works for the collection to be sent to Paris will be sent to these two juries for approval. The idea is to select for these two juries the broadest
and strongest men in American art.
Under the rules adopted only works executed within the last ten years will be accepted. This prevents the sending of several of the best pictures by Cincinnati artists. Frank Duveneck's famous portrait of Bill Adams was painted
nearly 20 years ago, and while it had
been generally agreed upon as a fit picture to send to Paris it cannot, under
the governing rules, be sent. Some picture of Farny's will, of course, be sent,
as he is recognized as the creator of a
distinct and unique phase of American
art, but beyond that it is not known
what Cincinnati artists will be represented.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

YALE'S LATEST CLUB.

"The Windy" Is Guided by the
"Chief Breeze" as Ruling Spirit.

Yale's latest club is known as the Windy. It is a debating society, as might be guessed from its title, and its membership is confined to members of the senior class. No college subjects are allowed in the list assigned for debate.
Political, historical and economic questions are attacked and generally settled.
At each weekly meeting two men are
appointed on each side to lead the next
debate, each having nine minutes for
his opening speech and five minutes for rebuttal. These four men lead the debate, but every member of the club is supposed to participate.

The club has but one officer. His official title is the "chief breeze." He assigns the subjects and acts as secretary and sergeant-at-arms. A critic is chosen for each debate. He is supposed to pass severe judgment on the argument of each debater, his position on the floor and defects of language and delivery. The membership of the club
is limited to 11.—New York Sun.

ATTACKED BY CROWS.

Kentucky Farmer Badly Injured and
Will Probably Lose His Sight.

George Aldrich, a farmer living near Poole, Webster county, Ky., is now in a serious condition, the result of an attack made on him by a flock of crows.
The mischievous birds were doing great
damage to the growing wheat in that section. With his gun and in company
with his 12-year-old son, Aldrich went out to drive the voracious birds from
his farm.

He killed a lot of them, but instead
of flying away myriads of them flew
down upon him and the boy, pecking
and scratching them in the face and all over the body. The boy escaped, but his father resisted the attack until he
was rescued physically exhausted and bleeding all over. His eyes are put out,
it is believed, and his entire body lacer-ated. Hundreds of the birds were killed before they were put to flight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

When a young man asks a father for his
daughter's hand in marriage, if the father
is a wise one, he thinks of one thing equally as important as the young man's morals,
social and business standing and intelligence. A young man who suffers from ill-
health has no right to marry until his health
is restored. To do so is to commit a crime against the human race. While all diseases
may not be directly inherited, the constitutional tendency to acquire them is inherited. If a man is a consumptive, the chances are that his children will have
weak, undersized lungs, and a predisposi-
tion to acquire the same disease.

The young man who suffers from bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood or any
disease of the air-passages which, if neglected leads up to consumption, may take
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with
almost absolute assurance of recovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases when taken
in time. It soothes and heals the delicate
and sensitive tissues of the air-passages and lungs, checks the cough, facilitates expecto-
ration, drives out all impurities and diseases germs from the tainted blood and
builds new and healthy tissues.

Mr. John G. Born, of 4020 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Some thirty months ago I
said to my wife, 'I don't want to keep anything
from you, I must tell you I am in the last stage
of consumption.' In December 1896 I commenced
taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
I could then only speak in whispers. I have taken thirteen bottles, and can say with truth I am greatly benefited. People are surprised to hear me speak. I can halloo, and my voice has not been as good in eight years. My stomach
was never in better condition. Formerly I could not eat without suffering very much immediately
after, but now I can eat anything."

FACTS ARE STUBBORN.

If East Liverpool People Are Not Convinced by Local Testimony They Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed how
in the past two years "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mushrooms in a meadow, and following the
plethora of "cures," the general public
have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts
are demanded, but it has become
also essential to know who supplies
them, where they are from, in fine,
whom they have cured. Doubting
Thomas will not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home; "give us some neighbors, then I will believe," is what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like,
at home, local or neighbor's testimony,
you can always ascertain the truth of it
without leaving the city limits. Here
is a case:

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth
street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and a resident of East Liverpool
for the past forty-five years, says:
"During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64 I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and
at intervals I had an aching pain across
the small of my back, and was subject
to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp and changeable
weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and
in fact could hardly get around at all.
I tried many remedies in an endeavor to
get rid of my trouble, but found nothing
until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They filled the bill exactly, giving me almost immediate relief, and warded off the last attack."

OUTBREAK AT MANILA.

Story of the Fighting and Incendi-
darianism.

Mestizos and Full Blooded Filipinos
Are the Heaviest Sufferers—Slaugh-
ter of the Natives—Superstitious
idea of Filipinos That Americans
Wear Charms to Protect Them.

The New York Post's correspondent
at Manila, writing under date of Feb.
25 about the outbreak in the city, says:

The threatened uprising in Manila
has occurred, and it has proved most
disastrous to the Filipinos, both in the
great destruction of the property of the
native sympathizers with the insurgents and in the loss of life among the
responsible. Possibly a million dollars' worth of property went up in flames and smoke, and from 200 to 300 of the savages were killed, both estimates being uncertain for lack of any means of procuring accurate statistics. Some 20 blocks of two and three story wooden houses, many of them containing stocks of goods or small factories, were burned and a wide area of nipa huts, containing a thousand or more of these bamboo and palm residences of the natives.

With the exception of the Chinese, who lost quite heavily in merchandise and something in buildings, the loss and the personal distress fall almost entirely upon the mestizos and full blood Filipinos, who are either actual participants in the insurrection or support it with sympathy, advice and financial contributions. Few Europeans have suffered, and Americans not at all, save the two men killed and half dozen wounded in the fighting that suppressed the uprising and practically exterminated those who participated in it.

Ever since the attack upon the city on the night of Feb. 5 the Americans have received daily warnings that there would be an uprising in the night, when, amid fires that would blaze out in all quarters of the city, thousands of armed Filipinos would rush into the streets and exterminate the Americans. Indeed this warning dates back several months. The provost guard, consisting of the Oregon, Minnesota and Twenty-third regular regiments, under the command of General Hughes, has been constantly under arms, patrolling the streets night and day, searching houses for Mapons, arresting suspicious characters and keeping the people in continuous and necessary fear. Their reserves have been frequently called out in the middle of the night and stationed at points of vantage in the worst districts till morning. All this activity and show of preparation and strength, with the promptness with which revolver and rifle have been used with deadly result, have had a wonderfully subduing effect, and when the organized outbreak occurred the natives generally were afraid to participate in it, and we had to deal only with a small number besides the few hundreds who came into town secretly and began the trouble, very few of whom were lucky enough to get back again to their friends in the woods.

Three fires were set on Wednesday night, Feb. 22. The Tondo district is composed almost entirely of nipa huts, the native house of bamboo poles, thatched with nipa palm, and the fire there spread with great rapidity. In about an hour an area half a mile square was burned over. No special effort was made to extinguish the flames so long as they were confined to that district, the Americans being willing that the insurrectionists should burn themselves and their friends out of house and home if they enjoyed it. Therefore the patrols busied themselves fighting the men who shot at them from behind burning huts, from the windows and roofs of houses and from the fancied security of stone walls. This was a business in which the American soldier excels and in which the Filipino is a novice. The result was never in doubt from the first. Good marksmanship settled it. Dead men tumbled from roofs and windows and wounded men fell behind huts and walls, many of them to be burned to cinders. All night long this guerrilla warfare was maintained. Three English citizens were wounded, two of them seriously.

It was about 1 o'clock that the really serious fire was started in a large market building near a canal running north from the river. From this point the city is substantially built of cement and wooden houses, the lower floors for the most part being used for stores and the second floors for residences. The rapid spread of the flames and the smell of burning coal oil showed that the fire was carefully prepared. General Hughes now took active measures to prevent the fire reaching the storehouses of the commissary and quartermaster's department along the river, only ten blocks distant, and called out two companies of the reserve troops to battle with the flames. There was no special desire to stop the fire, for the sanitary condition of the city was being rapidly improved, and the incendiaries were only impoverishing themselves and their friends, but no chances could be taken of the fire getting to the government stores. With little practical aid from the city fire department, by daylight the fire had been checked after burning 11 blocks.

During all this time the steady crack of Mausers, Remingtons, Kraggs and Springfields was kept up. The men working on the fire were the targets of skulking sharpshooters from the roofs and windows of distant buildings, yet they paid no heed to the shots, leaving the guards and patrols to settle scores with the enemy. The stone barricades were then carried with a rush, the Filipinos running across the bridge into a clump of timber, where they were caught between the Oregons and Montanas and slaughtered. Some of them succeeded in getting away through the brush and sloughs back to Malabon, with the tale of their defeat. As a result of this conflict 113 dead bodies were buried, while about 200 prisoners were sent to the rear, many of them wounded. The American loss was Lieutenant French of the Montanas and one private of the Twenty-third killed and six men wounded. Two companies of the Twenty-third regulars, under Major Goodale, had come up just before the close of the fight, and did good work at the finish. As the men advanced they burned every house, and the advance was continued to Caloocan, every house being set on fire that had escaped at the time of the battle of Caloocan. It was dark when the troops returned to quarters after one of the hardest fights of the campaign.

Except in the destruction of property, belonging chiefly to their friends, and the great loss of life they suffered, the Filipinos made a dismal failure of this uprising, which they have threatened so long. They have proved that no outbreak of any magnitude is possible. As to the number of Americans they have killed, they are already becoming disillusioned. At first they were made to believe they were slaughtering the Americans by the hundreds, but their friends in town have informed them on the subject, and some of the conversations had with these amigos show that they are impressed with the superstitious idea that the Americans wear a potent charm to protect them. As we are all heretics, of course this protection must be from the prince of darkness. The ladies of the Red Cross gave every soldier a little aluminium tag to wear about his neck for identification, and this is supposed to be the charm that protects them from the bullets.

The matter of insurance and payment for destroyed property is an important question. The representatives of the insurance companies have united to refuse payment on policies that do not contain a war risk clause, while property owners take the ground that this is a riot and not a war and that if the companies are not liable the United States is responsible for not affording protection. A great many claims have already been filed with the provost marshal general, but none is entertained. One claim is for 3,000 boxes of cigars stolen by the soldiers on the night of the fire. The claimants are mestizos.

Plan to Send a Collection to the Paris Exposition.

John B. Cauldwell and Charles M. Kurtz, both of New York, arrived in Cincinnati recently. Their visit has to do with the future of Cincinnati from a most important standpoint. They are making a tour of the principal cities of the country with a view of exchanging ideas with artists and men interested in art, in order that a collection may be got together that will be representative of American art and teach to Europe a lesson as forcible as Dewey taught the Spaniards in Manila bay; that the Americans are great in anything they undertake.

Mr. Cauldwell was tendered a dinner the other day at the Queen City club, and for several hours he discussed with men who have done their full share in creating an American school of art the question of what to send to Paris. Mr. Cauldwell was seen by a reporter and talked in a very interesting way of his plans for getting up such an exhibition as he desires to send to Paris. The idea is to select for these two juries the broadest and strongest men in American art. Under the rules adopted only works executed within the last ten years will be accepted. ATTACKED BY CROWS.

Kentucky Farmer Badly Injured and Will Probably Lose His Sight.

George Aldrich, a farmer living near Poole, Webster county, Ky., is now in a serious condition, the result of an attack made on him by a flock of crows. The mischievous birds were doing great damage to the growing wheat in that section. With his gun and in company with his 12-year-old son, Aldrich went out to drive the voracious birds from his farm.

He killed a lot of them, but instead of flying away myriads of them flew down upon him and the boy, pecking and scratching them in the face and all over the body. The boy escaped, but his father resisted the attack until he was rescued physically exhausted and bleeding all over. His eyes are put out, it is believed, and his entire body lacerated. Hundreds of the birds were killed before they were put to flight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

When a young man asks a father for his daughter's hand in marriage, if the father is a wise one, he thinks of one thing equally as important as the young man's morals, social and business standing and intelligence. A young man who suffers from ill-health has no right to marry until his health is restored. To do so is to commit a crime against the human race. While all diseases may not be directly inherited, the constitutional tendency to acquire them is inherited. If a man is a consumptive, the chances are that his children will have weak, undersized lungs, and a predisposition to acquire the same disease.

The young man who suffers from bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood or any disease of the air-passages which, if neglected leads up to consumption, may take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with almost absolute assurance of recovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases when taken in time. It soothes and heals the delicate and sensitive tissues of the air-passages and lungs, checks the cough, facilitates expectoration, drives out all impurities and disease germs from the tainted blood and builds new and healthy tissues.

Mr. John G. Born, of 4020 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Some thirty months ago I said to my wife, 'I don't want to keep anything from you, I must tell you I am in the last stage of consumption.' In December 1895 I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I could then only speak in whispers. I have taken thirteen bottles, and can say with truth I am greatly benefited. People are surprised to hear me speak. I can halloo, and my voice has not been as good in eight years. My stomach was never in better condition. Formerly I could not eat without suffering very much immediately after, but now I can eat anything."

FACTS ARE STUBBORN.

If East Liverpool People Are Not Convinced by Local Testimony They Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed how in the past two years "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mushrooms in a meadow, and following the plethora of "cures," the general public have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts are demanded, but it has become also essential to know who supplies them, where they are from, in fine, whom they have cured. Doubting Thomas will not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home; "give us some neighbors, then I will believe," is what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like, at home, local or neighbor's testimony, you can always ascertain the truth of it without leaving the city limits. Here is a case:

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and a resident of East Liverpool for the past forty-five years, says: "During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64 I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and at intervals I had an aching pain across the small of my back, and was subject to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp and changeable weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and in fact could hardly get around at all. I tried many remedies in an endeavor to get rid of my trouble, but found nothing until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They filled the bill exactly, giving me almost immediate relief, and warded off the last attack."

OUTBREAK AT MANILA.

Story of the Fighting and Incendi-
darianism.

Mestizos and Full Blooded Filipinos
Are the Heaviest Sufferers—Slaugh-
ter of the Natives—Superstitious
Idea of Filipinos That Americans
Wear Charms to Protect Them.

The New York Post's correspondent
at Manila, writing under date of Feb.
25 about the outbreak in the city, says:

The threatened uprising in Manila
has occurred, and it has proved most
disastrous to the Filipinos, both in the
great destruction of the property of the
native sympathizers with the insur-
gents and in the loss of life among the
ignorant and foolhardy men who are responsible. Possibly a million dollars'
worth of property went up in flames
and smoke, and from 200 to 300 of the
savages were killed, both estimates being uncertain for lack of any means of
procuring accurate statistics. Some 20
blocks of two and three story wooden
houses, many of them containing stocks
of goods or small factories, were burned
and a wide area of nipa huts, contain-
ing a thousand or more of these bam-
boo and palm residences of the natives.

With the exception of the Chinese,
who lost quite heavily in merchandise
and something in buildings, the loss
and the personal distress fall almost entirely upon the mestizos and full blood
Filipinos, who are either actual partici-
pants in the insurrection or support it
with sympathy, advice and financial contributions. Few Europeans have
suffered, and Americans not at all, save
the two men killed and half dozen
wounded in the fighting that suppressed
the uprising and practically exterminated those who participated in it.

Ever since the attack upon the city
on the night of Feb. 5 the Americans
have received daily warnings that there
would be an uprising in the night,
when, amid fires that would blaze out
in all quarters of the city, thousands of
armed Filipinos would rush into the streets and exterminate the Americans.
Indeed this warning dates back several
months. The provost guard, consisting
of the Oregon, Minnesota and Twenty-
third regular regiments, under the
command of General Hughes, has been
constantly under arms, patrolling the
streets night and day, searching houses
for Mapons, arresting suspicious characters and keeping the people in continuous and necessary fear. Their reserves have been frequently called out
in the middle of the night and stationed
at points of vantage in the worst districts till morning. All this activity
and show of preparation and strength,
with the promptness with which re-
volver and rifle have been used with
deadly result, have had a wonderfully
subduing effect, and when the organized outbreak occurred the natives generally were afraid to participate in it,
and we had to deal only with a small
number besides the few hundreds who
came into town secretly and began the
trouble, very few of whom were lucky
enough to get back again to their friends
in the woods.

Three fires were set on Wednesday
night, Feb. 22. The Tondo district is
composed almost entirely of nipa huts,
the native house of bamboo poles,
thatched with nipa palm, and the fire
there spread with great rapidity. In
about an hour an area half a mile
square was burned over. No special
effort was made to extinguish the
flames so long as they were confined to
that district, the Americans being willing that the insurrectionists should
burn themselves and their friends out
of house and home if they enjoyed it.
Therefore the patrols busied themselves
fighting the men who shot at them from
behind burning huts, from the windows and roofs of houses and from the
fancied security of stone walls. This
was a business in which the American
soldier excels and in which the Filipino
is a novice. The result was never in doubt from the first. Good marksmen-ship settled it. Dead men tumbled from
roofs and windows and wounded men
fell behind huts and walls, many of them to be burned to cinders. All night
long this guerrilla warfare was maintained. Three English citizens were wounded, two of them seriously.

It was about 1 o'clock that the really
serious fire was started in a large market building near a canal running north
from the river. From this point the city is substantially built of cement
and wooden houses, the lower floors for
the most part being used for stores and
the second floors for residences. The
rapid spread of the flames and the smell
of burning coal oil showed that the fire
was carefully prepared. General Hughes
now took active measures to prevent
the fire reaching the storehouses of the
commissary and quartermaster's department along the river, only ten
blocks distant, and called out two companies of the reserve troops to battle
with the flames. There was no special
desire to stop the fire, for the sanitary
condition of the city was being rapidly
improved, and the incendiaries were
only impoverishing themselves and
their friends, but no chances could be

taken of the fire getting to the government stores. With little practical aid
from the city fire department, by day-
light the fire had been checked after
burning 11 blocks.

During all this time the steady crack
of Mausers, Remingtons, Kraggs and Springfields was kept up. The men
working on the fire were the targets of
skulking sharpshooters from the roofs
and windows of distant buildings, yet
they paid no heed to the shots, leaving
the guards and patrols to settle scores
with the enemy. Several times the hose
was cut by some insurrecto among the
crowds of refugees on the streets. One
of these had his brains dashed out with
the butt of a musket while in the act.
Thousands stood around in groups, and
either dared not raise their hands or
had begun to realize the folly of being
burned out of their worldly possessions.
The uprising was a failure and from
the first was not merely a conception of
savage intellect, but utterly unmilitary,
certain to result in the death or capture
of those who thus placed themselves
within our lines. It may be that an attack on the lines was also arranged for
in the event of success within the city,
but if so no signal was sent up, nor
was there at any time anything to justify the giving of such a sign to the
army facing our lines.

All night the streets were crowded
with the homeless Filipinos. Here and
there some native used these groups of
women and children as a protection
from which to fire upon the men fighting the fire. Every refugee had a bundle, basket or box, even children bearing their burdens of clothing or food,
all that was left for the family to begin
life with again. Across the Blanco
bridge poured a steady stream of fugi-
tives, staggering under their heavy
loads. Helpless babies were carried on
their mother's hips, children clung to
their mothers' dresses, and the aged
and infirm were assisted by their friends
or tottered along with canes. I saw two
men with a pole across their shoulders,
from which a heavy box was suspended
on one side, balanced on the other by a basket containing a very old and feeble
blind man.

In the morning two companies of the Oregons and two of the Minnesotas, under command of Major Willis of the Oregons, were sent out to deal with the
insurgents who were between the lines,
and two companies of the Montanas
were sent back from Calocan to take
them in the rear. The fight began at
the north edge of the burned district in Tondo, the insurgents having construct-
ed stone breastworks across the two
roads and also posted themselves with-
in a large stone wall inclosure and in
numerous houses, each one of which
had a white flag flying, left when abandoned by their owners. The Americans
advanced along either side of the roads,
keeping off the latter because they were
swept by the fire from the barricades.
For two hours the battle raged, house
after house being captured by the troops
going up to them and firing at the defenders through the windows or breaking in the doors. Some of the Filipinos
fought till killed, while others threw
down their guns when cornered and
begged for their lives.

The hardest position to carry was the
stone wall, but at last one company of
the Oregons formed a position from
which it could get a plunging fire into
the inclosure, and then the natives
swarmed out of it like rats, while the
other company potted them as they ran,
killing 32 of them and wounding many
others. The stone barricades were then
carried with a rush, the Filipinos running across the bridge into a clump of
timber, where they were caught between the Oregons and Montanas and
slaughtered. Some of them succeeded
in getting away through the brush and
sloughs back to Malabon, with the tale
of their defeat. As a result of this conflict 113 dead bodies were buried, while
about 200 prisoners were sent to the rear, many of them wounded. The American loss was Lieutenant French
of the Montanas and one private of the Twenty-third killed and six men wound-
ed. Two companies of the Twenty-
third regulars, under Major Goodale,
had come up just before the close of the
fight, and did good work at the finish.
As the men advanced they burned every
house, and the advance was continued
to Calocan, every house being set on
fire that had escaped at the time of the battle of Calocan. It was dark when
the troops returned to quarters after
one of the hardest fights of the campaign.

Except in the destruction of property,
belonging chiefly to their friends, and
the great loss of life they suffered, the Filipinos made a dismal failure of this
uprising, which they have threatened
so long. They have proved that no outbreak of any magnitude is possible. As
to the number of Americans they have
killed, they are already becoming disillusioned. At first they were made to believe they were slaughtering the Americans by the hundreds, but their friends in town have informed them of
the subject, and some of the conversations had with these amigos show that
they are impressed with the supersti-
tious idea that the Americans wear a potent charm to protect them. As we
are all heretics, of course this protection must be from the prince of darkness. The ladies of the Red Cross gave
every soldier a little aluminium tag to
wear about his neck for identification,
and this is supposed to be the charm
that protects them from the bullets.

The matter of insurance and payment for destroyed property is an important question. The representatives
of the insurance companies have united
not contain a war risk clause, while
property owners take the ground that
this is a riot and not a war and that if
the companies are not liable the United States is responsible for not afford-
ing protection. A great many claims
have already been filed with the provost
marshal general, but none is entertain-
ed. One claim is for 3,000 boxes of
cigars stolen by the soldiers on the night of the fire. The claimants are
mestizos.

in time. It soothes and heals the delicate
and sensitive tissues of the air-passages and
lungs, checks the cough, facilitates expecto-
ration, drives out all impurities and diseases germs from the tainted blood and
builds new and healthy tissues.

Mr. John G. Born, of 4020 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Some thirty months ago I
said to my wife, 'I don't want to keep anything
from you, I must tell you I am in the last stage
taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
I could then only speak in whispers. I have
taken thirteen bottles, and can say with truth I am greatly benefited. People are surprised to hear me speak. I can halloo, and my voice has not been as good in eight years. My stomach
was never in better condition. Formerly I could not eat without suffering very much immediately

FACTS ARE STUBBORN.

If East Liverpool People Are Not Con-
Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed how
in the past two years "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mush-
rooms in a meadow, and following the
plethora of "cures," the general public
have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts
are demanded, but it has become
also essential to know who supplies
them, where they are from, in fine,
whom they have cured. Doubting
Thomas will not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home; "give us
some neighbors, then I will believe," is
what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like,
at home, local or neighbor's testimony,
you can always ascertain the truth of it
without leaving the city limits. Here
is a case:

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth
street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and a resident of East Liverpool
for the past forty-five years, says:
"During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64 I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and
at intervals I had an aching pain across
the small of my back, and was subject
to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp and changeable
weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and
in fact could hardly get around at all.
I tried many remedies in an endeavor to
get rid of my trouble, but found nothing
until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They
filled the bill exactly, giving me almost
immediate relief, and warding off the
last attack."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Admiral Philip Erases Part of an Inscription on a Civil War Relic.

Rear Admiral John W. Philip, commandant of the navy yard in Brooklyn, pointed with pride recently to a change he had brought about in the government property under his care. To the right of the entrance to the admiral's office in Main street, is a huge wedge shaped piece of iron which was taken from the prow of the Confederate ram Mississippi after the civil war. Upon it was the inscription, "Taken From the Rebel Ram Mississippi."

Every day these words caught the eye of the admiral. The other day the word "Rebel" was scraped from the rusty old trophy. "There are no rebels now," said Admiral Philip, "there is no north and no south, and anyhow I don't like the word 'rebel.' It's no word for these times."—New York Herald.

The Smart Young Wife.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Smith were preparing to make a visit to friends for a few days. Their baby was only 2 months old, but was an important member of the family just the same. Mr. Smith was up stairs and Mrs. Smith down stairs, putting on her things and getting ready to start. "Hubby," she called out to her better half on the floor above, "please bring me my gloves! They are lying on the dresser. And bring me my overshoes and veil and that hatpin lying on top of the chiffonier and a few of those animal crackers for baby, and don't forget the baby's toothbrush."

Poor hubby had a hard time finding everything his wife wanted. He was a long while making his appearance and finally his wife called to him, "What is keeping you, dear?"

Then Mrs. Smith laughed. "You silly duck," said she, "did you not know that I was only joking? The baby, bless her dear little heart, hasn't a tooth to her name."

That was why hubby got so mad and "said things" as he was coming down stairs. A man never likes to have a joke played on him by his wife.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

A Real Bottomless Pit.

Few indeed are they who have penetrated to the innermost recesses of Willis' cave—to the great rotunda where the icy water of the "big spring" takes a leap into the midnight blackness of the "bottomless pit." The entrance to the cave is at the summit of a hill near Versailles, Ind.

Rider Haggard, in his imaginary pictures of underground horrors, has told nothing that would equal the true story which a single misstep would furnish in Willis' cave. A stream of water pours from the rock, and, pursuing a devious underground channel for a quarter of a mile, emerges into a vast chamber with a slanting, slippery floor inclining to a sink hole in the center. Down this hole the stream pours and is lost forever. By means of ropes and weights the sink hole has been sounded to a depth of 400 feet, and still the bottom has not been reached. The room is surrounded by a narrow ledge of rock, on which daring explorers have made a complete circuit. One step off the ledge upon the slippery floor would mean almost instant death in the bottomless pit.

Consumption and Fresh Air.

It is a matter of common knowledge, says an English exchange, that the late Sir Andrew Clarke cured himself of consumption by living as much as possible in the open air. The principle involved has since been generally recognized by the medical profession, with the result that the old bad practice of keeping consumptives in warm, stuffy rooms has been almost entirely abandoned. It is fresh air which is mainly responsible for the cures worked at such places as Davos, where the patients spend 14 hours a day out of doors, breathing cold, bracing mountain air, while they are exhilarated by bright sunshine. The result is that each diseased spot in the lungs is cut off from the healthy tissue by a ring of stretched cells, across which disease germs cannot pass, and so the malady is arrested until the strengthened body can overcome it.

Worse Than Not Stopping.

An Englishman traveling in Maryland had occasion to investigate the running time of the trains that passed through the small place where he was stopping. Carefully searching a time table he found apparently that there would be an express train due at 4 o'clock that afternoon. The Englishman was on time with his grip, etc., and so was the express train. The intending passenger watched it approach and thunder by the station at top speed. The traveler was annoyed, and, turning to a colored man who stood near, remarked:

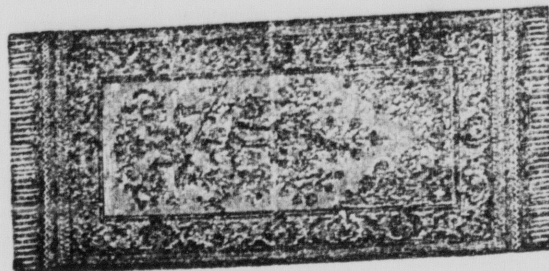

"That train didn't stop!"

CASHIER FOILED A ROBBER.

Fought Instead of Giving Over The Cash. Thief Fled.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 19.—A man entered the State's Saving bank while Cashier Brown was alone, and presenting a revolver ordered Brown to turn over the bank's money. Instead of complying, Brown picked up a stool and prepared to strike the robber. The stranger fired several shots, one of them striking the cashier in the arm, inflicting a slight wound. Brown backed away and finally succeeded in closing the door.

B. F. Sargent, a merchant next door, was attracted by the shooting, but a shot from the robber's revolver compelled him to retreat. Sargent called for the police and the robber ran, disappearing without securing any money. Police were searching for him.

CARRIED BY DEMOCRATS.

Elected a Mayor in New Haven—Elections in Illinois.

NEW HAVEN, April 19.—At the city election held here Cornelius T. Driscoll, the Democratic candidate for mayor, defeated Frederick B. Farnsworth (Rep.), the present incumbent, by upwards of 2,000 plurality. It is probable that the entire Democratic ticket was elected. The vote was a large one.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Town and village elections were held throughout Illinois. In nearly all cases the issues were purely local. In some places non-partisan tickets were chosen, and some places Democrats won, and others the Republicans were successful.

A Living Mummy.

A vat containing 100 gallons of rapidly drying cement burst at Lafayette, Ind., and covered Simon Arlington, a contractor, from head to foot. It hardened rapidly, and the members of his family found him incased tightly in three and a half inches of the cement. They had to get hammers and chisels and work for half an hour to release him. He is now in a hospital, but will probably recover.—New York Journal.

CASHIER FOILED A ROBBER.

Fought Instead of Giving Over The Cash, Thief Fled.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 19.—A man entered the State's Savings bank while Cashier Brown was alone, and presenting a revolver ordered Brown to turn over the bank's money. Instead of complying, Brown picked up a stool and prepared to strike the robber. The stranger fired several shots, one of them striking the cashier in the arm, inflicting a slight wound. Brown backed away and finally succeeded in closing the door.

B. F. Sargent, a merchant next door, was attracted by the shooting, but a shot from the robber's revolver compelled him to retreat. Sargent called for the police and the robber ran, disappearing without securing any money. Police were searching for him.

He is now in a hospital, but will probably recover.—New York Journal.

NO MORE REBELS.

Admiral Philip Erases Part of an Inscription on a Civil War Relic.

Rear Admiral John W. Philip, commandant of the navy yard in Brooklyn, pointed with pride recently to a change he had brought about in the government property under his care. To the right of the entrance to the admiral's office in Main street, is a huge wedge shaped piece of iron which was taken from the prow of the Confederate ram Mississippi after the civil war. Upon it was the inscription, "Taken From the Rebel Ram Mississippi."

Every day these words caught the eye of the admiral. The other day the word "Rebel" was scraped from the rusty old trophy. "There are no rebels now," said Admiral Philip, "there is no north and no south, and anyhow I don't like the word 'rebel.' It's no word for these times."—New York Herald.

The Smart Young Wife.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Smith were preparing to make a visit to friends for a few days. Their baby was only 2 months old, but was an important member of the family just the same. Mr. Smith was up stairs and Mrs. Smith down stairs, putting on her things and getting ready to start. "Hubby," she called out to her better half on the floor above, "please bring me my gloves! They are lying on the dresser. And bring me my overshoes and veil and that hatpin lying on top of the chiffonier and a few of those animal crackers for baby, and don't forget the baby's toothbrush."

Poor hubby had a hard time finding everything his wife wanted. He was a long while making his appearance and finally his wife called to him, "What is keeping you, dear?"

Then Mrs. Smith laughed. "You silly duck," said she, "did you not know that I was only joking? The baby, bless her dear little heart, hasn't a tooth to her name."

That was why hubby got so mad and "said things" as he was coming down stairs. A man never likes to have a joke played on him by his wife.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

A Real Bottomless Pit.

Few indeed are they who have penetrated to the innermost recesses of Willis' cave—to the great rotunda where the icy water of the "big spring" takes a leap into the midnight blackness of the "bottomless pit." The entrance to the cave is at the summit of a hill near Versailles, Ind.

Rider Haggard, in his imaginary pictures of underground horrors, has told nothing that would equal the true story which a single misstep would furnish in Willis' cave. A stream of water pours from the rock, and, pursuing a devious underground channel for a quarter of a mile, emerges into a vast chamber with a slanting, slippery floor inclining to a sink hole in the center. Down this hole the stream pours and is lost forever. By means of ropes and weights the sink hole has been sounded to a depth of 400 feet, and still the bottom has not been reached. The room is surrounded by a narrow ledge of rock, on which daring explorers have made a complete circuit. One step off the ledge upon the slippery floor would mean almost instant death in the bottomless pit.

Consumption and Fresh Air.

It is a matter of common knowledge, says an English exchange, that the late Sir Andrew Clarke cured himself of consumption by living as much as possible in the open air. The principle involved has since been generally recognized by the medical profession, with the result that the old bad practice of keeping consumptives in warm, stuffy rooms has been almost entirely abandoned. It is fresh air which is mainly responsible for the cures worked at such places as Davos, where the patients spend 14 hours a day out of doors, breathing cold, bracing mountain air, while they are exhilarated by bright sunshine. The result is that each diseased spot in the lungs is cut off from the healthy tissue by a ring of stretched cells, across which disease germs cannot pass, and so the malady is arrested until the strengthened body can overcome it.

Worse Than Not Stopping.

An Englishman traveling in Maryland had occasion to investigate the running time of the trains that passed through the small place where he was stopping. Carefully searching a time table he found apparently that there would be an express train due at 4 o'clock that afternoon. The Englishman was on time with his grip, etc., and so was the express train. The intending passenger watched it approach and thunder by the station at top speed. The traveler was annoyed, and, turning to a colored man who stood near, remarked:

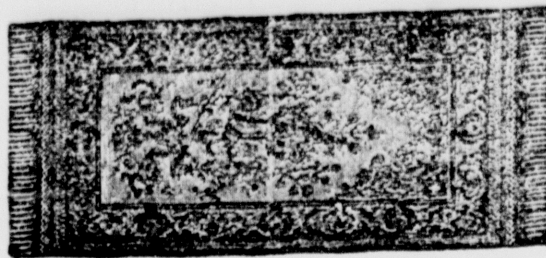

"That train didn't stop!"

TRIP FOR A DIVORCE.

SAXTON VISITED HER THERE.

Witnesses Testified That Lighted Matches Were Necessary to Identify the Dead Man the Night of the Murder—Mr. Eckroate Testified.

CANTON, April 19.—The defense in the trial of Mrs. George spent the first half of the session in reading depositions regarding her trip to South Dakota to get a divorce from Sample George, her life while there, and the visits Saxton paid to her. The remainder of the session was occupied in examining witnesses on matters connected directly with the homicide, and in answer to the testimony introduced on the part of the state.

The attorneys for the defense talked of finishing their testimony this week, but said if they did so they would not call all of the 100 or more witnesses subpoenaed.

Some of the time of the trial was devoted to the reading of depositions in Sioux Falls, Canton, S. D., and Inwood, Ia. These covered Mrs. George's residence in South Dakota when she was there to get a divorce from Sample C. George. Objections were made to some of the matter and there was a great deal of controversy between attorneys.

Charles M. Seeley testified that during the winter of 1891 and 1892 Mrs. George stopped at his hotel in Canton, S. D., and that Saxton came there for a week. They were on friendly terms and were often together.

R. E. Rodelph testified to having represented Sample C. George in the divorce case.

Cashier Brown of the Lincoln County bank of Canton, S. D., said he had cashed $450 in checks on which the names of Mrs. George and Saxton appeared.

Robert Hunter and T. F. Ronayur of Sioux City testified that Saxton and Mrs. George registered as man and wife at the Boogie House, Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 16, 1892. The signature was afterward cut out of the register. Lesley M. Foote, clerk of a hotel at Inwood, Ia., testified that he had cashed some checks from Saxton to Mrs. George while they were at the hotel.

Joseph Eckroate keeps the corner grocery that figures so conspicuously in the case. He said in part: "I was about through with supper when I heard the first shot. I finished my supper and then went to the front yard. My daughter, Mrs. Huiwig, was at the gate. The night was dark."

As to the trees, witness said the limbs hung lower than now, and were pretty full of leaves. He had not at the time nor at any time afterwards while leaves were on the trees noticed how much the trees obstructed the view from the windows of his house of the Althouse steps and lawn. Witness said he looked Monday from the window of his bed room, from which Mrs. Eckroate says she saw the shooting to the Althouse steps, and found a cherry tree on a line from the window to the south side of the steps."

Before the state had concluded his cross-examination it developed that he is 66 years of age, blind in one eye and that he did not have on his glasses when he looked out to see what was to be seen at the Althouse place across the street.

Joseph Schmidt, a 13-year-old boy living near the Althouse residence, told of hearing the shots and calling the police. He could not tell who the dead man was until matches were lighted.

John Berger, one of the first to reach the scene, said he did not recognize Saxton's body until matches were lighted, but this was largely on account of the face being turned downward.

Jacob Dippish and August Borong gave similar testimony. The latter said there were some obstruction to the view from the window from which his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eckroate, claims to have seen and identified Mrs. George.

Mrs. Francis Dederman said it was so dark on the night of the tragedy that the body could not be recognized until light was thrown upon it.

Charles Huth and his wife said the street car on which Mrs. George is said to have gone to Hazlett avenue did not cross the tracks until three or four minutes after 6. The state's evidence was that the car had reached Hazlett avenue about 5:55.

The Investigation Postponed.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The investigation of the Cleveland and Sandusky Brewing company, the so-called beer trust, by Attorney General Monnett was postponed for another week on the application of the attorneys for the brewing company. The hearing will begin April 26.

To Prosecute Alleged Bribers.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—The house adopted the bribery reports, also a supplementary one appointing a committee to bring legal action against those named.

QUAY LOST 14 VOTES.

The Anti-Quayites and Their Recruits Cast Their Ballots for B. F. Jones for Senator.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—Fourteen votes dropped away from Senator Quay at the joint ballot for United States senator. The anti-Quay Republicans and the followers of Senator C. L. Magee of Pittsburg, combined and cast their votes for B. F. Jones, of Pittsburg. The break was started by Senator Crawford of Allegheny, who switched from Quay to Jones, and was followed by Senators Magee of Allegheny, Losch of Schuylkill and Scott of Luzerne.

The first break from the Quay ranks in the list of members was Mr. Clark, of Washington, whose colleague, Mr. McLaren, went with him. Mr. Murdoch, the third member from Washington, remained loyal to Colonel Quay. Others who changed from Quay to Jones were Messrs. Hosack, Klump, McFarlane, McWhinney, Nisbet, Robison, Shaw and Srodes, of Allegheny.

After the announcement of the ballot Senator C. L. Magee, in speaking of his action in breaking away from ex-Senator Quay, said:

"I believe that the Republican party is greater than any man in it. The Republicans of Pennsylvania want a senator elected, and if one is not elected I am satisfied it will mean an awful political battle this fall, and possibly defeat. So long as there was an earnest desire on the part of Quay to be elected, and there was a hope of it, I remained with him, but when his henchmen started the cry of 'Quay or nobody' I thought it was time for making an effort to elect some good Republican. Quay is an impossibility and he knows it, just as every other citizen of Pennsylvania does."

"I notified him several weeks ago that I would not be a party to continuing a deadlock, and that is the reason I today voted for Hon. B. F. Jones of Pittsburg. Tomorrow (Wednesday) will be the last day for taking a joint ballot, and I hope that between now and then it will be possible to elect a senator."

Insurance Commissioner Durham, the recognized leader of the Quay faction, said:

"At the outside, I don't believe more than 20 members will go over to the anti-Quay camp, including those additional ones who are expected to leave us (Wednesday). That number cannot effect the election of a United States senator and the legislature will adjourn at noon on Thursday without having chosen a successor to M. S. Quay. We are entirely satisfied with this result and are content to go before the people at the coming elections and let them decide where lies the blame."

The ballot, which was the seventy-ninth, resulted as follows: Quay, 93; Jenks, 85; Jones, 69; total, 247; necessary to a choice, 124; paired or not voting, 6; no election.

DIPLOMATIC CHANGES.

Rockhill Resigned as Minister to Greece, Which Resulted in Several Appointments—Minister to Portugal.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The following important diplomatic changes were announced as the result of the cabinet meeting:

W. W. Rockhill, now minister to Greece, resigned that position. Arthur Sherburn Hardy, of New Hampshire, now minister to Persia, was promoted to succeed Mr. Rockhill. Wm. P. Lord, ex-governor of Oregon, was appointed minister to Persia. The Hon. John N. Irwin, of Iowa, formerly governor of Idaho, was appointed minister to Portugal to succeed Lawrence Townsend, transferred to Belgium in place of Bellamy Storer, appointed to Madrid.

Mr. Rockhill's resignation was purely voluntary and was caused by personal and domestic considerations. Mrs. Rockhill died while he was stationed at Athens and he lost all desire to remain. He is now on his way home with his two children and the remains of his wife.

Ex-Governor William P. Lord of Oregon is a lawyer who has been quite prominent in state politics. Five years ago he was elected governor, being the first Republican governor of the state in eight years.

Mr. Irwin was born in Ohio.

GOMPERS ON UNION METHODS.

Defense Fund and Boycott Very Valuable to Labor Organizations.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal witness before the industrial commission.

He said the defense fund was the greatest safeguard of the trades union. The question of laws to provide for the corporation of trades unions did not meet with Mr. Gompers' approval. He said that employers and corporations could have no more deadly weapon against organized labor than the legal right to sue it and mulct its treasury. The fact that an incorporated union could also sue an employer for a breach of contract was not a compensating advantage in his eyes.

The boycott, Mr. Gompers declared, was not a legal but an inherent right which had been exercised under varying names from time immemorial. He considered it a useful and legitimate weapon of labor.

HELPED QUAY'S CASE.

Goldsmith's Testimony Rather Badly Shattered.

SMALL SUM OWED BY QUAY.

The Cross-Examination Developed He Was Not in Debt to the Bank for a Large Amount—Probable Line of Defense Indicated.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—The defense had its innings in the trial of Senator Quay, and it made the best of its opportunity. Expert Accountant Meyer Goldsmith, the commonwealth's witness was under a scorching fire of cross-examination, and the result thereof justifies the opinion that the net work of evidence brought by the prosecution from the books of the broken bank tending to show Senator Quay's guilty participation in the unlawful use of the bank's money, was very much shaken by the admissions the witness was compelled to make under the skillful questioning of Attorney A. S. L. Shields, admittedly the best cross-examiner practicing at the Philadelphia bar. Nearly all of the apparently damaging entries attached to Senator Quay's name or account in the bank as testified to previously were explained away or greatly modified by the statements of the commonwealth's own witness. Judge Bidle's ruling of Monday had the effect of confirming testimony tending to show the existence of a conspiracy between Quay, Haywood and Hopkins, as charged in the indictment, to the two years ending November 17, 1898.

Lawyer Shields got from the witness the admission that if Hopkins had properly credited Senator Quay's account with amounts that belonged there, the books would show that at the beginning of the alleged conspiracy Nov. 17, 1896, the senator owed the bank $236 instead of over $70,000, as was alleged. Taking up the allegation that Senator Quay had borrowed $185,000 during the "settlement period" ending Oct. 31, 1897, the last settlement before the bank closed, Mr. Shields forced from Goldsmith, piece by piece, facts tending to show that in nearly every instance the amounts charged to Senator Quay were really loans to other persons, politicians mostly, for whom Quay endorsed. Where there was a definite loan to Senator Quay the repayment was clearly proven. In this connection it might be well to say that District Attorney Rothmel claims that he has clearly established the fact he started out to prove, namely, that $200,000 of the state deposit in the bank was set aside for the use of Senator Quay and whether he used it himself or loaned it to others is not material in proving the conspiracy.

Toward the close of the proceedings Mr. Shields asked Goldsmith some questions which indicated that the defense was about to attempt to prove its contention that Senator Quay was the victim of Cashier Hopkins, who, they asserted used the name and account of the senator without the latter's knowledge to cover his own juggling with the bank's funds.

Hopkins, they said, appeared to had used fictitious names for loans, presumably to himself, as well as the name of Senator Quay. He had the reputation of being a heavy speculator in the stock market, and the inference was that the defense would attempt to prove that Senator Quay had no knowledge whatsoever of the alleged loans on his account.

Mr. Shields put a different complexion on the entries in the red book by compelling the witness to admit that many of his figures were not proven by entries in the regular bank books, but were the result of what he practically acknowledged to be his "guesses" at the meaning of intelligible figures written in the red book. Goldsmith was still on the stand when court adjourned for the day and the questions put to him near the close were full of promise of interesting developments today.

Much of the sting was taken out of the famous "shake the plum tree" telegram by the statement that the purchase of Metropolitan stock contemplated thereby was made with $10,000 of Senator Quay's own money, his deposit at that period exceeding $60,000.

While Senator Quay was listening intently to the cross-examination of the expert a telegram was thrust into his hand containing the announcement of the break in his ranks at Harrisburg. The senator carefully adjusted his glasses and read the dispatch. Then a half row came over his features and his face turned from the witness to the courtroom window, out of which he gazed in a contemplative manner for several minutes. He made no comment to any of those seated near him on the news the telegram conveyed to him.

Americans Thanked by the Czar.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The secretary of state has made public a note addressed to him by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, dated April 17, thanking the people of the United States on behalf of the czar for expressions of sympathy with the purposes of the disarmament conference called by the Russian government.

BLAMED BRITISH CONSUL.

An American Said Mataafa Had Obeyed Kautz Until Other Natives Were Given Arms.

CHICAGO, April 19.—A letter received here from N. J. Moors, an American merchant in Samoa, who for years had been Mataafa's close friend and adviser, related some interesting details of the trouble in the islands.

The letter, written March 23, said: "When I received, in advance of its posting, a copy of the proclamation decided upon by the British and American sides and issued by Admiral Kautz, I thought it a very moderate document and one that might well be observed. I sent word twice to the natives on Mulinuu that I thought they should obey it, and I think they so intended as Mulinuu was soon deserted and the prisoners were liberated, while the royalists went to Tutuila for those who were up there."

He said he sent word to Mataafa and the chiefs that no sailors would be landed and no guns given to the prisoners.

Further along he said: "I am sure Mataafa's followers would have done just as Admiral Kautz wanted and as I was advising, when British Consul Maxse commenced arming the returned prisoners and they began to boast of what they were going to do with the assistance of the warships. This news arrived when Mataafa was speaking in the very midst of a meeting in which he was dismissing the people. At once a great number arose, crying 'the weak cannot govern the strong; our slaves shall not rule us; we will fight,' and the meeting was broken up."

He said the natives had not destroyed white men's houses, while the guns of the British ship could be heard blasting fortifications, the natives not even molesting the homes of Guerr and Caruthers, who had caused all the trouble. He said it would take 10,000 troops to subjugate the country.

ORDERS TO CONSUL ROSE.

Must Join Other Consuls in Demanding Stopping of Hostilities.

BERLIN, April 19.—The correspondent here of The Associated Press heard on authority that the German consul at Apia, Samoa, Herr Rose, would receive cable instructions, to be conveyed to him by steamer from the nearest cable station, to join in a tripartite proclamation calling upon all the inhabitants in Samoa to immediately desist from all hostilities and agitation, pending the arrival at Apia of the joint commission of the powers appointed to settle the affairs in dispute in the islands.

Samoa Commission Entertained.

REPORT AGAINST MILES.

Beef Board Expected to Declare That He Failed to Prove His Charges.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The army court of inquiry began the framing of its report. While a few minor matters remained for examination, they were not such as to affect the main issues. It was regarded as certain that the court would find that General Miles' charges that embalmed or chemically prepared beef was sent to the army had not been sustained. The position of the court was believed to be that the testimony was conclusive that both the refrigerated beef and the canned beef were in good condition when delivered to the government and continued so until issued to the troops, except that portion damaged in transportation or affected by tropical conditions, and to these causes of injury and these conditions chief causes of trouble would be attributed.

It would be shown that the refrigerated beef, after being taken from the ice in the tropical climate, spoils quickly unless well cared for, and that the canned beef, after being opened, because of the great heat, became repulsive in appearance and soon unpalatable. But the court would hold, as the result of chemical investigation by experts, that the canned beef was wholesome and nutritious. Attention would be called to the fact that it was used throughout the war by our navy and was still used by the fleet. It was believed that the court would criticize those officers who have testified that they became aware that bad beef was issued to the troops and who failed to report their observations until after the war had closed.

Beef Court of Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Before the Wade court of inquiry General Weston related the provisions made for victualizing the soldiers during the war, and contended that beef on the hoof could not have been landed at Siboney. Geo. L. Taylor, a Philadelphia chemist, said he had detected the presence of formaldehyde on the meat while on his way to Porto Rico last fall, as an officer in the First volunteer cavalry.

NAVAL MEN TRAPPED.

Landing Party Captured by Rebels in Luzon.

GONE TO RESCUE SPANIARDS.

Anxiety in Washington as to the Americans Fate—Admiral Dewey Sent the News—Commissioners of Filipinos Proposed to Try to Arrange Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The navy department gave out the following dispatch from Admiral Dewey:

"MANILA, April 18.

Secretary of Navy, Washington:

"The Yorktown visited Baler, Luzon, east coast of Luzon, P. I., April 12, for the purpose of rescuing and bringing away the Spanish forces, consisting of 80 soldiers, three officers and two priests, which were surrounded by 400 insurgents. Some of the insurgents armed with Mauser rifles."

"By natives, Lieutenant J. O. Gilmore while making * * * * * ambushed were fired upon and captured. Fate unknown, as insurgents refused to communicate afterward. The following are missing: The officer previously referred to, Chief Quartermaster W. Walton, Coxswain J. Ellsworth, Gunner's Mate H. J. Hygar, Sailmaker's Mate Vendig, seaman W. H. Rynders and C. W. Woodbury, Apprentices D. W. A. Venville, A. J. Peterson, Ordinary Seamen F. Brisolet, O. B. McDonald, Landsmen L. T. Edwards, F. Anderson, J. Dillon and C. Morrissey."

"[Signed,] 'Dewey.'"

The asterisks denotes portions of the dispatch which could not be deciphered. That the capture should have been effected while the American forces were on a mission of mercy toward the Spaniards, rather in the prosecution of a campaign, led to the belief that Spain would have no further ground for questioning the good faith with which the Americans were seeking to relieve the condition of the Spanish prisoners.

Although the dispatch gave no indication that Lieutenant Gilmore and his men had lost their lives, yet great anxiety was aroused by the mystery surrounding their fate while in the hands of an uncivilized enemy. This is the first capture of any Americans, military or naval, so that it is unknown how the insurgents will treat our men. If civilized methods were pursued an exchange could be quickly effected, as General Otis has a large number of Filipino prisoners, but the insurgents have been averse thus far to exchanging Spanish prisoners, and this raises a question as to what they will do with the Yorktown's men. The purpose of officials here is to spare no effort to secure the speedy release of our men.

MANILA, April 19.—A number of prominent and wealthy Filipinos were organizing a committee to take steps to bring about, if possible, an understanding between the rebels and the Americans. One branch of this committee intended to ask the United States Philippine commission to make a statement as to what terms would be offered the rebels if the latter would surrender.

Another branch of the committee will approach Aguinaldo with the terms and will endeavor to persuade him to accept them. It was considered doubtful, however, if any members of the committee would dare to personally confer with the rebel leader.

The committee included several persons recently condemned to death by Aguinaldo for petitioning him to cease fighting.

Major General Otis has appointed a board, headed by Colonel Crowder, to deal with the war claims. Many such claims have been filed, aggregating millions of dollars, particularly as a result of the Iloilo fire. Major General Otis, who has hitherto handled these claims, is unable to devote any of his time to them now.

VOLUNTEERS MUST STAY AWHILE.

No Transports at Manila to Start Them Home.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—General Corbin said nothing further had been done regarding the return of the volunteer soldiers from Manila. If the troops could be spared there were no transport service to bring them home and will not be for some time.

It was believed that the transports now on their way to Manila and those which were expected to leave in a few days would return with volunteers. The war department officials thought that by June 1 there would be enough transports at Manila to bring back all that wanted to come.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—The common pleas judges at a special meeting passed by a unanimous vote a resolution asking Judge F. E. Dellenbaugh to retire from the bench until his disbarment case is decided by the supreme court.

Hobart Continued to Improve.

THE EAST END.

Caused a lot of Trouble For Some People.

ONE OF THEM WAS ARRESTED

But He Was Released a Little Later—Brick Company Bought a New Machine—Mrs. Irwin's Funeral—Seventh Day Adventists Have an Organization Here.

A fight occurred in East End Monday night, but as yet no arrests have been made.

Early in the evening one of the principals accused the other of owing a board bill amounting to $54, and refused to pay it. The men came to blows, but just then Constable Miller appeared, and catching one of them took him to the office of Squire Rose. No charge was preferred against him and he was allowed to return to his home. The constable yesterday morning went to East End to look for the other principal, but being unable to find him told Fireman Terrence to tell the individual he did not get Monday night that no charge would be preferred against him. While the constable was telling this story the party he was looking for was within a few feet of him.

Ordered Another Machine.

The Ohio Clay Manufacturing company have countermanded the order for the brick machine they decided to buy in March, and have placed an order for a larger machine with a Canton firm. The company claims the machine should have been shipped on April 5, and as the contract was not carried out the order was cancelled. The order placed yesterday will be filled next week. Work erecting the new kilns will be commenced next week, and will be done by a Titusville contractor.

New Dwellings.

Ground was broken yesterday for the erection of a six room frame house in St. George street for H. N. Harker.

Samuel Searight this morning commenced the erection of a modern dwelling in Railroad street.

Plans have been completed for the erection of a new residence by Albert Hayes. They will be placed in the hands of the contractor next week.

Seventh Day Adventists.

It is not generally known that the Seventh Day Adventists have a branch in East End. There are very few members in the church and they are residents of East End, Wellsville and the Virginia side. Sunday school is held regularly at the home of one of the members, but not more than 12 persons attend. Services are usually held at the home of W. D. Irwin in First avenue.

Funeral Services.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. William D. Irwin, of First avenue, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. They will be in charge of Elder Shannon, of the Seventh Day Adventist church, assisted by Rev. N. M. Crowe, of the Second Presbyterian church. The interment will be made in New Salem cemetery.

Work at Ralston.

The railroad company are still improving the road in the vicinity of bridge 110 near Ralston crossing, and yesterday a large amount of slag was dumped over the embankment. If much more is used in the work the course of the run will be changed, and cause the water to flow toward the lower road.

New Residents.

Sunday and yesterday a number of people arrived at the wharf on the Cincinnati boats and went to East End where they are now staying with friends. The men of the party expect to secure work on the new pottery, and if successful they will move their families and household effects to the city.

Letters From Manila.

Several people living in this part of the city are expecting letters from Manila during the week. Sunday a transport arrived at San Francisco from Manila, and it is thought some letters might have been sent on that boat.

Much Better.

Mr. Elliott, who was badly hurt when a wagon overturned in Pennsylvania avenue, is much improved. Many persons acquainted with the facts wonder that he was not killed, and look upon his escape as miraculous.

That Kiln.

Work upon the erection of a new kiln at the East End pottery was commenced yesterday. It is to be completed within as short a time as possible.

Her Private Punch.

The women hurried along Adams street from the Art institute on their way to the Woman's Euchre club at Handel hall.

"Just run in with me here a minute," said one. "I've got to get me a punch."

The clerk showed a collection of punches that made holes of various shapes.

"No," said the shopper. "I want just a simple, round punch—this size." And she abstracted a cardboard from her pocket that showed the size of the perforation.

"Oh, very well!" said the clerk. "We have it. But it's not called for very often for private games." And the punch was brought out and sold promptly.

The second woman wondered what her friend wanted of that particular punch, but kept her curiosity to herself. The game was exciting, and, as the friend is a good player, she won eight games. The second woman noticed this particularly. But when the score cards were exhibited the friend had 11 credit marks punched in her score card. The other woman saw then the wherefore of the particular punch they had bought. The friend had won eight games, and then had done a little punching with a private punch.

The prizes at these club contests are quite valuable, and the spirit of gambling has become so pronounced among some of the players that they are not above resorting to unfair means to capture them.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Her Evening Gown.

It is undeniable that foreign diplomats in Washington frequently find themselves at a loss owing to the novelties presented to them by American customs. Even the language offers difficulties.

Only the other day the Guatemalan minister was speaking to some Washington ladies of what he regarded as a remarkable social experience met with here at the capital. He had been invited to an afternoon reception.

"And do you know," he said, "the hostess received the guests in a night-gown!"

"Good heavens!" replied the ladies to whom this information was addressed. "Surely you are joking, Mr. Minister!"

"Not at all, I assure you," reiterated the diplomat. "It was in her night-dress that we were received—low neck and bare arms!"

"Oh, you mean evening dress, do you not, Mr. Minister?" suggested one of the ladies.

"Yes, that is what I mean," admitted Senor Arriaga; "low neck and bare

arms, just like the costume for the opera or ball."

As may be imagined, the laugh was at the minister's expense. In Washington ladies quite commonly wear evening dress when giving afternoon receptions.—Boston Herald.

Feudalism in Hungary.

Inconceivable as the anachronism may seem to the western mind, the agrarian system of Hungary has not yet issued from the feudal form. The Hungarian farmer of today is virtually a serf, bound to his master, the hereditary owner of the soil which the peasant tills, by the tangle of personal liability. The Hungarian feudal lord of today is entitled to 50 days' labor from each male adult who dwells on his land. The seignior is at liberty to demand this feudal contribution at whatever time may seem best to him, with the frequent result that the tenant farmer is employed in gathering his master's harvests while his own crops are rotting after a rainfall or are being consumed by an early frost or suffer damage from one or more of the many possible causes which render destructive the slightest delay on the part of the harvester in gathering the fruits of a year's labor.—S. Ivan Tonjoroff in Arena.

"The Boot of Dukeronomy."

A nervous curate the other day announced from the reading desk, "Here beginneth the second chapter of the duke of Bocteronomy." His vicar looked severely at him, and the young man blushed, coughed and repeated "The boot of Dukeronomy."

There must have been germs of mispronunciation lurking in the air, for at a later period in the service the vicar read out, "I publish the manns of bariage," etc.

The curate beamed with satisfaction in spite of the solemnity of the occasion.—Household Words.

Exile Necessary.

Doctor—Your husband must have complete rest.

Wife—I know it. I talk to him seven or eight hours every day so as to keep his mind off business.

Doctor—On second thought, madam, I conclude that the one chance for your husband is to take him to the hospital with instructions that no one but the trained nurse and myself be admitted.—Detroit Free Press.

Where Men Have the Advantage.

Interesting Lady Patient—Doctor, what do you do when you burn your mouth with hot coffee?

Dr. Fingerfee—Swear.—Roxbury Gazette.

Old and New.

An English newspaper contains an interesting parallel, discovered by a classical scholar. First comes a translation from the original Greek of Antipater of Thessalonica:

Once upon a time, when a ship was shattered at sea, two men fell at strife fighting for one plank. Antagoras struck away Pisistratus. One could not blame him; it was for his life. But justice took cognizance. The other swam ashore; but him (Antagoras) a dogfish seized. Surely, the avenger of the fates rests not, even in the watery deep.

Then an incident recorded in the London Chronicle serves to translate the story into a modern event and to show how life repeats itself:

Two bluejackets, named Friday and Painter, were capsize from a boat at Weymouth. After a struggle to get into the waterlogged boat Friday beat his comrade off, and Painter swam ashore. Friday got into the boat and was drowned.

His Mustard Plaster.

The mustard plaster is a harmless looking wafer, but it must be handled with as much circumspection as a woman. There was a newly married man once whose wife told him to put on a mustard plaster to cure a cold. He had faith in her, and put it on. Then he went to sleep, being gifted with the power of sleeping under torments which is not given to one man in a thousand. The plaster seemed to him somewhat unreasonably hot, but he argued that the hotter it was the better. Besides, he had confidence in his wife. Next day he found a well developed blister on his chest, and his wife only laughed and said she had supposed any one would have sense enough to take off a plaster when it hurt him. Though that was 11 months ago, the mark of the plaster is still upon the man like a brand, and he now regards his wife's remedies with suspicion.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Beau Nash as a Gambler.

When the late Earl of T—d was a youth, he was passionately fond of play and never better pleased than with having Mr. Nash for his antagonist. Nash saw with concern his lordship's foible and undertook to cure him, though by a very disagreeable remedy. Conscious of his own superior skill he determined to engage him in single play for a very considerable sum. His lordship, in proportion as he lost his game, lost his temper, too, and as he approached the gulf seemed still more eager for ruin.

He lost his estate. Some writings were put into the winner's possession. His very equipage was offered as a last stake, and he lost that also. But when our generous gamester had found his lordship sufficiently punished for his temerity he returned all, only stipulating that he should be paid £5,000 whenever he should think proper to make the demand. However, he never made any such demand during his lordship's lifetime, but some time after his decease, Mr. Nash's affairs being in (sic) the wane, he demanded the money of his lordship's heirs, who honorably paid it without any hesitation.—"History of Gambling in England."

He Knew Chester.

Mr. Gladstone had a nice taste in hot mutton pies. One of the Wesleyan journals recalls a conversation which R. W. Perks had with Mr. Gladstone at a public dinner in London, when the premier asked all sorts of questions on matters pertaining to Methodism. A man who happened to sit exactly opposite, wishing to divert the conversation into another channel, asked, "Do you know Chester, Mr. Gladstone?"

"Yes, a little," was the answer, an ominous smile playing about the mouth. "Do you know Chester, Mr. —?"

"Not very well," said the unwary questioner.

"Well, if you go to the city of Chester you will find a confectioner's shop in such a street," giving the number. "Go into that shop, and you can buy a hot mutton pie, deliciously hot," and here Mr. Gladstone screwed up his eyes, and his face beamed with delight as he recalled the taste and smell of those savory pies, "and all for threepence." Then, turning to Mr. Perks, in deep earnest tones he said, "Let us resume where we left off."

There was no further interruption from the opposite side of the table.—St. James Gazette.

Good Intentions.

Many a good intention dies from inattention. If through carelessness or indolence or selfishness a good intention is not put into effect, we have lost an opportunity, demoralized ourselves and stolen from the pile of possible good. To be born and not fed is to perish. To launch a ship and neglect it is to lose it. To have a talent and bury it is to be a "wicked and slothful servant." For in the end we shall be judged not alone by what we have done, but by what we could have done.—Sunday School Times.

Good Use For Them.

She (singing softly)—"Would that I had the wings of a bird."

He—What earthly use would they be to you, my dear?

She—I was just planning the trimmings for my spring hat.

RIPPED OPEN HIS FACE

Little Arnold Hune Was Frightfully Injured.

HE COLLIDED WITH A CART

He Was Playing In Fourth Street and Ran From Behind a Pile of Bricks Directly In Front of a Horse Driven by Dan McNicol.

A serious accident occurred last evening in Fourth street, and, as a result, little Arnold Hune will be marked for life.

The small boys in the neighborhood of Fourth and Jefferson streets have been using the street for a play ground, and last evening was no exception to the rule. They were engaged in a game of "Hide and Seek" and Arnold Hune, who is aged 11 years, was hiding behind a brick pile on the north side of the street. He saw a good chance to reach base, and dashed across the street directly in front of a horse driven by Dan McNicol. McNicol was in a cart and was not driving fast, but it was too late to prevent a collision. The shaft of the cart struck the boy, and he was knocked down. He was able to get up, and ran to his mother, who upon hearing the screams of a younger son quickly reached the scene.

The face of the boy was bleeding and he was taken into the home of Mrs. Shea, while a large crowd collected. Physicians were summoned, and upon examination it was found that the shaft of the cart had entered his mouth, tearing the flesh loose on the left side of his face from the lips to the ear, up the head and down the neck, making an exceedingly painful but not dangerous wound. Twenty-five or 30 stitches were required to close the cut. The boy remained at the home of Mrs. Shea until 4 o'clock this morning when he was taken to his own home.

Parties who witnessed the accident state that no blame can be attached to McNicol as he was driving slow and the boy ran directly in front of him. He did all in his power to avert the happening and after the accident occurred he stopped and ascertained the extent of the boy's injuries.

OFFICERS HAVE HOPE.

They Think Adjutant General Kingsley Will Continue Them in the Guard.

The recent order issued by Adjutant General Kingsley disbanding the Ohio National Guard has caused a great deal of discussion among the military men of the state.

A press dispatch from Cleveland in regard to the order says: "Many of the officers are of the opinion that they are not affected by the order to disband. They are now waiting to see what the adjutant general's next step will be."

"The fact that the officers of the disbanded companies have not been discharged with their men puts an entirely new aspect on the situation. It is thought that it is the intention of Adjutant General Kingsley to allow the officers of the disbanded companies to continue in their present positions without a command. It will then be a comparatively simple matter to organize the National Guard by instructing the old officers to recruit new companies in accordance with the rules of the regular army. If the plan is adopted, and many officers think it will be, the new organization will be much more efficient than the old."

The Columbus Journal in touching on the matter says:

"Many shepherds are left without flocks, and it is disputed whether they are still shepherds or not. The mustering out process seemed necessary to the adjutant general on account of the dilatory tactics of the company officers, who failed to file their reports within the prescribed time. Therefore, it seems to some that they should certainly suffer the same fate as the men."

"On the other hand, officers are still officers, as shown by section 4, G. O. No. 5, which says: 'Commanding officers of companies mustered out are charged with the preparation of final discharge papers for all enlisted men and will forward them direct to these headquarters.' General Kingsley did not have much to say upon the subject. 'Time will tell,' he said."

Mrs. Rosa Johnson,

Missionary president of the Cleveland district of the African M. E. church, will lecture in the African M. E. church of East Liverpool on Wednesday night, April 18. "Missions" will be the topic. You have a cordial invitation. No admission fee will be charged.

Union Sprees In Bern.

An annual "zweibel market," or onion market is held in Bern, and once a year the peasants come from far and near to purchase a stock of onions for the twelvemonth, and, in fact, it has grown to be a custom on zweibel market day for everybody, rich and poor, to buy onions; if not for use, then for the custom of the thing.

On a Saturday night the onions arrive. Great boxes, baskets and barrels of onions line one side of the longest main street of the city, from the station directly through the long arcaded avenue as far as the arcades extend—about a mile. All day Sunday the onions remain in the street, covered with cloths of every description, and early Monday morning the sale begins. For two days every one you meet has at least a string of onions, and one walks the entire length of the market and weeps.

A few days later come the dances. Every saloon and hall is decorated, and the young peasants, girls and lads, come to town and make merry. Every "wirtschafft" is crowded with a pushing, jostling throng of plump and ruddy faced peasants, drinking, dancing and "hiring out." There are no brawls, only perhaps parties of merry bumpkins walking through the streets at 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning and yodeling, without melody, at the top of their strong voices.—Chicago Record.

Judging a Mule's Speed.

"When I was a young man," quoth Officer Fayette Jones, "from a standpoint of years, I used to trade mules occasionally. One day I had a dispute with a man to whom I had sold an animal about its speed. We were unable to agree between ourselves, so we called in an old codger who talked with a drawl and used almost as much tobacco as he raised. We stated the question to him, 'Which is the faster of the mules?' He asked to be taken to the stable and stood there watching the mules eat. He chewed and looked, and looked and chewed. We wondered what he could tell about their speed simply by looking at them, but finally he pointed out the mule I had sold and said, 'That air the fastest of them mules.'"

"How do you know?" we asked in one breath.

"Well," he replied, "that younder one takes two chaws to t'other's one an' of one mule chaws faster than t'other it's natural that he's a faster critter."

"It was philosophy that I've never forgotten, and now whenever I want to know the relative speed of horses or mules I judge 'em by the way they chew."—Paducah Sun.

A Sleepy Deputy.

Under a former administration the United States marshal of western Pennsylvania sent a warrant to one of his deputies, who was stationed in a back county, for the arrest of a counterfeiter. The deputy knew the man and treated him considerably. When they reached Pittsburgh, the necessary papers were not at hand to commit the prisoner to jail. The deputy would not take him to a hotel, because he would have to pay the bill out of his own pocket. So he took him to the marshal's office to pass the night there. The deputy was sleepy and the counterfeiter said he was. So the deputy handcuffed his prisoner to himself and lay down on the floor beside the steam register. As soon as the deputy was asleep the counterfeiter took his keys from his pocket, unlocked the manacle and fastened the loose end to the register. Then he took the deputy's watch and what money he had and departed.

"Where is your prisoner?" asked the marshal the next morning, awakening the deputy.

"Doesn't that beat all?" he replied as he tugged at his handcuff and bruised his wrist. "Darned if I don't believe he's gi' me the slip."—Pittsburg News.

FOR AIDING STRIKERS.

Men Who Obstructed Street Railway at Wheeling, Sentenced by Judge Jackson.

WHEELING, April 19.—In the special term of the United States court held by Judge Jackson for the consideration of cases arising out of violation of the judge's injunction, four men were tried on the charge of obstructing the operation of the street railway and each was given 30 days in jail and to pay a fine of $50. The men were James Bryne, John Hixenbaugh, Charles Reiter and Waverly Pultz. Before passing sentence, Judge Jackson addressed himself to this community generally upon the matter of labor strikes. He scored the four men unmercifully.

Two more arrests were made by the deputy marshals, Rufus Hardfine and Joseph McCrae, charged with obstruction of the road. The service attempted by the company was limited.

There was little indication of either side weakening.

The strike resulted in the incorporation of the People's Railway company, capital $500,000, to operate in Wheeling and Benwood. The incorporators are Frank P. McNeill, Gilmore Brown, S. M. Rau and John J. Coniff all of Wheeling.

THE AUSTRALIAN SYSTEM.

N. A. Frederick and the good citizens who supported him deserve commendation for the introduction and passage at the Lisbon convention of the resolution providing for the use of the Australian ballot at Republican primary elections in Columbiana county. As the story of last Saturday's election is told it becomes more evident that respectable members of the party desire that ward heelers, hirelings, petty bosses and hoodlum control be driven out, as much as they want to see clean politics and a proper count of the vote. Leaders are a necessity. We must have them to maintain the Republican organization in this county, but bosses are an abomination and the party will not submit to their dictation. They constitute the one great danger of Republicanism.

BLAKE IS DEAD.

Politically, of course; and there is general rejoicing among the masses—men who believe in clean life, clean government, true manhood and a purer field of politics. Blake was used for a purpose. He filled the bill. And the men who used him have for him no further use. He is smart enough to note this fact, and the knowledge thereof fills him with impotent fury, as was evidenced by his actions at the convention held at Lisbon yesterday. He has grossly misrepresented the people of Columbiana county; he has cut away two of the best safeguards the law ever gave against the inroads and encroachments of the accursed liquor traffic; he falsified the situation in connection with our local board of education, and through this misrepresentation, taking his constituents at a disadvantage, succeeded in having a law enacted which takes us many steps backward in the race of life; he was instrumental, in the hands of brainier men by far than himself, in illegally throwing men out of our school board, and in enacting a measure which is absolutely unconstitutional, and which will be so declared whenever it is found essentially necessary to so do. In a nutshell, this man Blake, as evidenced by his conduct as state senator, is a man to avoid; a man to be held in detestation by every voter who believes in temperance, sobriety, pure life and clean government. Columbiana county, in years to come, will rejoice in the fact that she failed to follow the time-honored precedent of a second term for Bill Blake, and turned him down in political backlash, never as to cause his political backbone to become an icicle. Blake was never an issue. He was simply an incident. Selah.

CAMERON IS CHAIRMAN

JAMES N. HANLEY TREASURER

Of the New County Republican Committee—Full Text of the Resolutions Providing For the Australian Ballot and Closing the Polls Not Later Than 7.

When the report of the doings at Lisbon closed yesterday afternoon the new committee was about to take up its duties.

The first business was the selection of officers, and the following were chosen: Chairman, I. B. Cameron; secretary, Ed A. King; treasurer, James N. Hanley. The committee then adjourned.

THOSE RESOLUTIONS.

Full Text of What N. A. Frederick Presented.

So much interest has been manifested in the resolutions presented to the convention by N. A. Frederick, of this city, that they are given in full:

WHEREAS, It is evident by the returns from the recent primaries that more votes were cast in some precincts throughout the county than there are Republicans living in said precincts, making manifest that there was much dishonest voting and

WHEREAS, We believe that the best interests of the party demand that the purity of the ballot box should be guarded at the primary elections with as much care as at the general election, and that each candidate should have equal chance of getting the untrammeled support of his friends without their being compelled to meet the solicitation of hired workers of opposing candidates. Therefore, be it

Resolved, First, That the central committee make a rule that hereafter all primary elections in this county be held under the laws of the state by what is known as the Australian ballot, and all judges and clerks of election be sworn to the full and fair performance of their duties.

Second, That this convention request the state committee to make a like rule for all the counties of the state.

Third, That hereafter the hour of closing the polls at primary elections be not later than 6 p. m., standard time.

HIGH PRAISE

For the President and Ohio Men Who Aided Him.

Chairman Cameron's resolution endorsing the administration is as follows:

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of Columbiana county, Ohio, in convention assembled do hereby extend our hearty greetings and highest commendation to the Hon. William McKinley, president of the United States, for the wise, patriotic and prosperous administration he has given the people of this great nation. To our distinguished United States senators, the Hon. J. B. Foraker and the Hon. M. A. Hanna, and our able representative in congress, the Hon. R. W. Taylor, we accord unstinted praise for the loyal, prompt and effective services rendered to the president and the country in the prosecution and the successful termination of the Spanish war. To the Hon. Asa S. Bushnell we send merited congratulations for the eminent success of his business like administration as governor of Ohio.

EACH MAN

Will Select His Delegates to the Senatorial Convention.

The resolution introduced by Mr. Frederick and dealing with the senatorial matter, provided that the central

HOLLOWAY-CHAPMAN.

The Ceremony Was Performed by Rev. S. B. Salmon.

Jesse D. Holloway, of Irondale, and Miss Clara M. Chapman, of this city, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother in Second street, Rev. S. B. Salmon, of Smithfield, officiating. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for an eastern trip, and will make their home in Irondale.

Mr. Holloway is a promising young business man of Irondale, while Miss Chapman is one of the city's most popular young ladies.

Although Jonathan Aiken and His Wife Are Ill.

Jonathan Aiken and his wife, who live in a shantyboat at the foot of Union street, are critically ill, and the only assistance they are receiving is from the people who live near them. Mr. Aiken has suffered several strokes of paralysis during his illness, and his wife has been ill with the grip. Last evening several prominent church people called at the boat and offered help, but it was refused. The boat in which they live is one of the neatest about the city.

PICNIC BUSINESS.

Agent Hill Expects to Do a Lot of It This Year.

Agent Adam Hill expects to handle an unusually large picnic business for the Pennsylvania company during the coming season.

Already he has received a number of inquiries from organizations in the city that desire dates at some of the Pennsylvania resorts, and dates have in several instances been made, while others are waiting until arrangements can be made to give them the days they desire.

FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Sons of Veterans Will Make a Good Showing.

The Sons of Veterans met last evening for the purpose of arranging for the observance of Memorial day.

A new plan for drilling was adopted. The company will be divided into squads of eight men, each to be placed in charge of a non-commissioned officer. When they reach the required efficiency, company drill will be commenced. Turner hall has been engaged as a drill room.

The resignation of First Sergeant Hargreaves was received, and J. A. Calhoun appointed to the position.

AN INSTANCE

Of How the Big Vote Was Brought Out Saturday.

A well known young man tells this story of Saturday's primaries. It needs no explanation:

"I met a man Saturday afternoon who had come through the county and seemed overjoyed with the success he had had in voting. He said he had voted four times for his candidates that day, and was going up town to cast another vote in order that he might be counted in Liverpool's population." If there were many more of his class, it is no wonder the vote was the largest on record.

GLASGOW IS REPORTED

HOW IT MAY BE ARRANGED

The County Is Only Entitled to Seventy-Two Votes, and Two Plans Are Suggested—The Number of Delegates That Will be Selected by McCoy and Blake.

LISBON, April 19.—[Special]—After a day of weary waiting on the part of the parties most interested the vote from Glasgow precinct came to Lisbon last night. It is as follows:

Hole 21, Wells 24; McCoy 21, Blake 24; Buell 24, McCord 26, Hill 15; McDonald 13, Noragon 32; Hoopes 15, Tarr 38, Kelly 8.

When added to the remainder of the township it shows that Hole for judge carried Madison by a vote of 45 to 37. On a basis of 73 votes this gives Wells 37 and Hole 36 delegates, but the county is only entitled to 72 delegates.

In order to make the total number of delegates of the township conform to what the county is entitled Wayne may be given one-half vote, Franklin one-half, Yellow Creek one-half and Butler one and one-half, leaving the apportionment for other townships as reported, the fraction of 100 votes in each being larger than the townships above named. Hole carried Butler and Franklin which gives him two additional votes, while Wells carried Yellow Creek and Wayne, giving him one. These added to the vote in the townships not named gives Hole 36 and Wells 36.

Another method of settling the vexed question would be to take one-half from each candidate, leaving Hole 35½ and Wells 36½. Figuring in the same manner McCoy gets 29 delegates and Blake 43.

The committee have taken no action looking to a settlement.

The return from Madison makes the totals as follows: Wells 4,600, Hole 4,712; Blake 4,378, McCoy 3,903; McCord 3,026, Hill 2,992, Buell 3,106; McDonald 4,539, Noragon 5,008; Tarr 4,812, Cadwallader 2,371, Hoopes 4,504, Kelly 3,926.

IT WAS VERY FUNNY.

"Peggy Cooley" Came Within an Ace of Convulsions.

At the convention held at Lisbon yesterday morning, in the informal meeting, when ways and means for the purification of the ballot were being considered, D. J. Smith, the noted "Prophet of Mt. Pisgah," made a truly eloquent and convincing talk along the line of the history of the Republican party, from its birth to the present hour, showing that it had come into existence for the purpose of purifying the political atmosphere, and then showing how it had fallen away from its birthright, sending home the fact that immediate purification and cleansing must be made, or Republicanism would lose its hold on the masses.

As D. J. took his seat amid tumultuous and long continued applause, Senator William V. Blake, of Columbiana county, arose and said, in dulcet and pathetic tones:

"Mr. Chairman, I heartily coincide with the remarks made by the eloquent gentleman from Mt. Pisgah."

The silence was dense. You could hear the hot heart beats of the audience. The solemnity of the occasion induced our poet to indite the following lines of rich pathos:

"The lion and the lamb shall lie down together,
In storm or in sunshine, on the green,
grassy heather,
Their hearts shall be humble, and full
free from pride,
The lion doing the roaring, with the
lamb safe inside."

PEGGY COOLEY.

NEXT SATURDAY

Judge Kennedy Will Open Common Pleas Court.

LISBON, April 19.—[Special]—The will of John Saffell, late of Butler, has been admitted to probate, as has the will of Margaret McPherson, of Wellsville.

Marriage licenses were granted to James Arnold, Youngstown, and Mary Rogers, Salem; Anthony Gavin and Mary Ann McGowan, Leetonia; Theodore Barton and Trythena Booth, Elk Run; E. N. Phillips and Mary Francis, East Fairfield.

Judge Kennedy will open court Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

WHY SOME ARE LEFT

Foes of Colonel Hard Are In the Service.

HIS FRIENDS WALKED THE PLANK

Captain Yost, of Canton, Speaks of Some Things That Are Brought Out by the Mustering Out of the Eighth—Officers Are Indignant.

Some of the officers of the Eighth infantry are expressing their indignation at the manner in which some companies were mustered out and others retained. Captain Yost, of Canton, is quoted as follows:

"A peculiar thing is noticed in the fact that every one of these companies retained vigorously opposed Colonel Hard in the recent endeavors to get him to resign his office, while the rest of them, and the Canton companies especially, remained neutral, or in favor of Hard. It is known that the state authorities have some feeling against Colonel Hard and it is thought that this action may have some kind of bearing on him, at least as far as concerns the Eighth regiment. Then, too, there is another solution. Major Vollrath is known to be a friend of Adjutant General Kingsley, and he may have had an inkling of what was about to happen and quietly told these companies, still left in the service, to get in their reports in time, leaving, as he did so, Colonel Hard's own Wooster company, and all others that favored him or stood on neutral grounds, out in the cold, helpless and forlorn."

THE BODY HORRIBLY MANGLED

It Was Taken to an Undertaking Establishment and His Family Notified of His Death—Was Going to See His Brother. All the News.

Last evening about 7:30 occurred the first serious accident for many weeks at the shops, David Simpson, of Irondale, being the unfortunate victim.

Mr. Simpson had been calling on friends in town, and wishing to see his brother, Calvin Simpson, who is a brakeman on the Cleveland and Pittsburg, went to the switch yard. It is not known exactly how the accident occurred as no one else was near at the time, but it is supposed that in stepping from one track to avoid an engine he became bewildered, as several engines were switching at the same time. The engineer said the freight was not moving faster than a mile an hour, and that he did not see the man at all.

The body was terribly mangled. It was taken to Haugh's undertaking rooms, and the sad word sent to the family in Irondale. The doctors said death was instantaneous.

Simpson was about 40 years old and leaves a wife and four children.

News of Wellsville.

Harvey Whitacre is a Pittsburg visitor today.

Miss Annie Baker died yesterday at the home of Joseph Campbell, about three miles from here, of grip fever. The body was sent last evening to Gallia county. Miss Baker was about 21 years old and was a sister of Samuel Baker.

A congregational meeting will be held at the Methodist Episcopal church in the near future to decide whether the old church shall be remodeled or a new one built. The soliciting committee report that the subscriptions are increasing rapidly.

Jesse Tarr, the little son of Doctor Tarr, was knocked down by a grocery wagon this morning. He was badly hurt.

The reason why Joseph Bros., are selling high grade ready-to-wear suits at $10 is they bought the suits recently and purchased them under price. Backward season is the cause. This is good news to those who are looking for well made suits for the coming spring. Can save you money.

The question of placing a pipe organ in the church was discussed, but no definite action was taken. The matter has been considered by the congregation for some time and is looked upon with favor by a large number of members, some of whom believe it will be in place early next fall.

WHERE THE LOSSES HAVE FALLEN.

Are the Heaviest Sufferers—Slaughter
of the Natives—Superstitious
Idea of Filipinos That Americans
Wear Charms to Protect Them.

The New York Post's correspondent
at Manila, writing under date of Feb
25 about the outbreak in the city, says

The threatened uprising in Manila
has occurred, and it has proved most
disastrous to the Filipinos, both in the
great destruction of the property of the
native sympathizers with the insur-
gent and in the loss of life among the
ignorant and foolhardy men who are responsible. Possibly a million dollars'
worth of property went up in flames
and smoke, and from 200 to 300 of the
savages were killed, both estimates being uncertain for lack of any means of
procuring accurate statistics. Some 20
blocks of two and three story wooden
houses, many of them containing stocks
of goods or small factories, were burned
and a wide area of nipa huts, containing a thousand or more of these bam-
boo and palm residences of the natives.

With the exception of the Chinese,
who lost quite heavily in merchandise
and something in buildings, the loss
and the personal distress fall almost
entirely upon the mestizos and full blood
Filipinos, who are either actual participants in the insurrection or support it
with sympathy, advice and financial contributions. Few Europeans have
suffered, and Americans not at all, save
the two men killed and half dozen
wounded in the fighting that suppressed
the uprising and practically extermin-
ated those who participated in it.

Ever since the attack upon the city
on the night of Feb. 5 the Americans
have received daily warnings that there
would be an uprising in the night,
when, amid fires that would blaze out
in all quarters of the city, thousands of
armed Filipinos would rush into the streets and exterminate the Americans.
Indeed this warning dates back several
months. The provost guard, consisting
of the Oregon, Minnesota and Twenty-
third regular regiments, under the
command of General Hughes, has been
constantly under arms, patrolling the
streets night and day, searching houses
for Mapons, arresting suspicious characters and keeping the people in continuous and necessary fear. Their reserves have been frequently called out
in the middle of the night and stationed
at points of vantage in the worst districts till morning. All this activity
and show of preparation and strength,
with the promptness with which re-
volver and rifle have been used with
deadly result, have had a wonderfully
subduing effect, and when the organized outbreak occurred the natives generally were afraid to participate in it,
and we had to deal only with a small
number besides the few hundreds who
came into town secretly and began the
trouble, very few of whom were lucky
enough to get back again to their friends
in the woods.

Three fires were set on Wednesday
night, Feb. 22. The Tondo district is
composed almost entirely of nipa huts,
the native house of bamboo poles,
thatched with nipa palm, and the fire
there spread with great rapidity. In
about an hour an area half a mile
square was burned over. No special
effort was made to extinguish the
flames so long as they were confined to
that district, the Americans being willing that the insurrectionists should
burn themselves and their friends out
of house and home if they enjoyed it.
Therefore the patrols busied themselves
fighting the men who shot at them from
behind burning huts, from the windows and roofs of houses and from the
fancied security of stone walls. This
was a business in which the American
soldier excels and in which the Filipino
is a novice. The result was never in doubt from the first. Good marksmen-
ship settled it. Dead men tumbled from
roofs and windows and wounded men
fell behind huts and walls, many of them to be burned to cinders. All night
long this guerrilla warfare was maintained. Three English citizens were wounded, two of them seriously.

It was about 1 o'clock that the really
serious fire was started in a large market building near a canal running north
from the river. From this point the city is substantially built of cement
and wooden houses, the lower floors for
the most part being used for stores and
the second floors for residences. The
rapid spread of the flames and the smell
of burning coal oil showed that the fire
was carefully prepared. General Hughes
now took active measures to prevent
the fire reaching the storehouses of the
commissary and quartermaster's department along the river, only ten
blocks distant, and called out two companies of the reserve troops to battle
with the flames. There was no special
desire to stop the fire, for the sanitary
condition of the city was being rapidly
improved, and the incendiaries were
only impoverishing themselves and
their friends, but no chances could be

taken of the fire getting to the government stores. With little practical aid
from the city fire department, by day-
light the fire had been checked after
burning 11 blocks.

During all this time the steady crack
of Mausers, Remingtons, Kraggs and Springfields was kept up. The men
working on the fire were the targets of
skulking sharpshooters from the roofs
and windows of distant buildings, yet
they paid no heed to the shots, leaving
the guards and patrols to settle scores
with the enemy. Several times the hose
was cut by some insurrecto among the
crowds of refugees on the streets. One
of these had his brains dashed out with
the butt of a musket while in the act.
Thousands stood around in groups and
either dared not raise their hands or
had begun to realize the folly of being
burned out of their worldly possessions.
The uprising was a failure and from
the first was not merely a conception of
savage intellect, but utterly unmilitary,
certain to result in the death or capture
of those who thus placed themselves
within our lines. It may be that an attack on the lines was also arranged for
in the event of success within the city,
but if so no signal was sent up, nor
was there at any time anything to justify the giving of such a sign to the
army facing our lines.

All night the streets were crowded
with the homeless Filipinos. Here and
there some native used these groups of
women and children as a protection
from which to fire upon the men fighting the fire. Every refugee had a bundle, basket or box, even children bearing their burdens of clothing or food,
all that was left for the family to begin
life with again. Across the Blanco
bridge poured a steady stream of fugi-
tives, staggering under their heavy
loads. Helpless babies were carried on
their mother's hips, children clung to
their mothers' dresses, and the aged
and infirm were assisted by their friends
or tottered along with canes. I saw two
men with a pole across their shoulders,
from which a heavy box was suspended
on one side, balanced on the other by a basket containing a very old and feeble
blind man.

In the morning two companies of the Oregon and two of the Minnesotas, under command of Major Willis of the Oregon, were sent out to deal with the insurgents who were between the lines,
and two companies of the Montanas
were sent back from Calocan to take
them in the rear. The fight began at
the north edge of the burned district in Tondo, the insurgents having construct-
ed stone breastworks across the two
roads and also posted themselves with-
in a large stone wall inclosure and in
numerous houses, each one of which
had a white flag flying, left when abandoned by their owners. The Americans
advanced along either side of the roads,
keeping off the latter because they were
swept by the fire from the barricades.
For two hours the battle raged, house
after house being captured by the troops
going up to them and firing at the defenders through the windows or breaking in the doors. Some of the Filipinos
fought till killed, while others threw
down their guns when cornered and
begged for their lives.

The hardest position to carry was the
stone wall, but at last one company of the Oregon formed a position from which it could get a plunging fire into
the inclosure, and then the natives
swarmed out of it like rats, while the
other company potted them as they ran,
killing 32 of them and wounding many
others. The stone barricades were then
carried with a rush, the Filipinos running across the bridge into a clump of
timber, where they were caught between the Oregon and Montanas and slaughtered. Some of them succeeded
in getting away through the brush and
sloughs back to Malabon, with the tale
of their defeat. As a result of this conflict 113 dead bodies were buried, while
about 200 prisoners were sent to the rear, many of them wounded. The American loss was Lieutenant French
of the Montanas and one private of the Twenty-third killed and six men wound-
ed. Two companies of the Twenty-
third regulars, under Major Goodale,
had come up just before the close of the
fight, and did good work at the finish.
As the men advanced they burned every
house, and the advance was continued
to Calocan, every house being set on
fire that had escaped at the time of the battle of Calocan. It was dark when
the troops returned to quarters after
one of the hardest fights of the campaign.

Except in the destruction of property,
belonging chiefly to their friends, and
the great loss of life they suffered, the Filipinos made a dismal failure of this
uprising, which they have threatened
so long. They have proved that no outbreak of any magnitude is possible. As
to the number of Americans they have
killed, they are already becoming disillusioned. At first they were made to believe they were slaughtering the Americans by the hundreds, but their
friends in town have informed them on
the subject, and some of the conversations had with these amigos show that
they are impressed with the supersti-
tious idea that the Americans wear a potent charm to protect them. As we are all heretics, of course this protection must be from the prince of darkness. The ladies of the Red Cross gave
every soldier a little aluminium tag to
wear about his neck for identification,
and this is supposed to be the charm
that protects them from the bullets.

The matter of insurance and payment for destroyed property is an important question. The representatives
of the insurance companies have united
not contain a war risk clause, while
property owners take the ground that
this is a riot and not a war and that if
the companies are not liable the United States is responsible for not afford-
ing protection. A great many claims
have already been filed with the provost
marshal general, but none is entertain-
ed. One claim is for 3,000 boxes of cigars stolen by the soldiers on the night of the fire. The claimants are
mestizos.

WORK OF AMERICAN ARTISTS

Plan to Send a Collection to the Paris Exposition.

John B. Cauldwell and Charles M.
Kurtz, both of New York, arrived in Cincinnati recently. Their visit has to do with the future of Cincinnati from
a most important standpoint. Mr.
Cauldwell is commissioner general of
fine arts for the Paris exposition—that
is, he is in charge of the selection of
pictures to send to Paris to the exposition. Mr. Kurtz is his assistant. They
are making a tour of the principal cities
of the country with a view of exchange-
ing ideas with artists and men interested in art, in order that a collection may
be got together that will be representative of American art and teach to Europe a lesson as forcible as Dewey taught
the Spaniards in Manila bay; that the Americans are great in anything they
undertake.

Mr. Cauldwell was tendered a dinner
the other day at the Queen City club,
and for several hours he discussed with
men who have done their full share in
creating an American school of art the
question of what to send to Paris. Mr.
Cauldwell was seen by a reporter and
talked in a very interesting way of his
plans for getting up such an exhibition
as he desires to send to Paris. "I am
just starting to work," he said, "and
this trip is simply to learn what to do.
I expect to visit the cities which are
known as art centers and talk with the
men there in regard to this matter, simply looking over the ground. I wish to get a collection of pictures which will
fairly represent American artists, and I believe that it will have a great deal
of influence for good on American art."

The plan which has been partially
formulated is to have two juries, one
in the east, probably in New York, and
another in the west, probably in Chicago, and all works for the collection to
be sent to Paris will be sent to these
two juries for approval. The idea is to select for these two juries the broadest
and strongest men in American art.
Under the rules adopted only works executed within the last ten years will be accepted. This prevents the sending of
several of the best pictures by Cincinnati artists. Frank Duveneck's famous
portrait of Bill Adams was painted
nearly 20 years ago, and while it had
been generally agreed upon as a fit picture to send to Paris it cannot, under
the governing rules, be sent. Some picture of Farny's will, of course, be sent,
as he is recognized as the creator of a
distinct and unique phase of American
art, but beyond that it is not known
what Cincinnati artists will be represented.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

YALE'S LATEST CLUB.

"The Windy" Is Guided by the
"Chief Breeze" as Ruling Spirit.

Yale's latest club is known as the Windy. It is a debating society, as
might be guessed from its title, and its
membership is confined to members of
the senior class. No college subjects are
allowed in the list assigned for debate.
Political, historical and economic questions are attacked and generally settled.
At each weekly meeting two men are
appointed on each side to lead the next
debate, each having nine minutes for
his opening speech and five minutes for
rebuttal. These four men lead the debate, but every member of the club is
supposed to participate.

The club has but one officer. His official title is the "chief breeze." He
assigns the subjects and acts as secretary and sergeant-at-arms. A critic is chosen for each debate. He is supposed
to pass severe judgment on the argument of each debater, his position on
the floor and defects of language and
delivery. The membership of the club

ATTACKED BY CROWS.

Kentucky Farmer Badly Injured and
Will Probably Lose His Sight.

George Aldrich, a farmer living near Poole, Webster county, Ky., is now in
a serious condition, the result of an attack made on him by a flock of crows.
The mischievous birds were doing great
damage to the growing wheat in that
section. With his gun and in company
with his 12-year-old son, Aldrich went
out to drive the voracious birds from
his farm.

He killed a lot of them, but instead
of flying away myriads of them flew
down upon him and the boy, pecking
and scratching them in the face and all
over the body. The boy escaped, but
his father resisted the attack until he
was rescued physically exhausted and
bleeding all over. His eyes are put out,
it is believed, and his entire body lacer-ated. Hundreds of the birds were killed before they were put to flight.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

When a young man asks a father for his
daughter's hand in marriage, if the father
is a wise one, he thinks of one thing equally as important as the young man's morals,
social and business standing and intelligence. A young man who suffers from ill-
health has no right to marry until his health
is restored. To do so is to commit a crime against the human race. While all diseases
may not be directly inherited, the constitutional tendency to acquire them is inherited. If a man is a consumptive, the
chances are that his children will have
weak, undersized lungs, and a predisposi-
tion to acquire the same disease.

The young man who suffers from bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood or any
disease of the air-passages which, if neglected leads up to consumption, may take
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with
almost absolute assurance of recovery. It
cures 98 per cent. of all cases when taken
in time. It soothes and heals the delicate
and sensitive tissues of the air-passages and
lungs, checks the cough, facilitates expecto-
ration, drives out all impurities and diseases germs from the tainted blood and
builds new and healthy tissues.

Mr. John G. Born, of 4020 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Some thirty months ago I
said to my wife, 'I don't want to keep anything
from you, I must tell you I am in the last stage
of consumption.' In December 1896 I commenced
taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.
I could then only speak in whispers. I have
taken thirteen bottles, and can say with truth I am greatly benefited. People are surprised to hear me speak. I can halloo, and my voice has not been as good in eight years. My stomach
was never in better condition. Formerly I could not eat without suffering very much immediately

FACTS ARE STUBBORN.

If East Liverpool People Are Not Convinced by Local Testimony They Differ From Other People.

Our readers must have noticed how
in the past two years "cures" have multiplied in the newspapers like mush-
rooms in a meadow, and following the
plethora of "cures," the general public
have turned remarkably skeptical. Facts
are demanded, but it has become
also essential to know who supplies
them, where they are from, in fine,
whom they have cured. Doubting Thomas will not accept at par incredible cures on the other side of the continent. He wants it at home: "give us
some neighbors, then I will believe," is
what he asks for. Well, Doan's Kidney Pills do this. Call it what you like,
at home, local or neighbor's testimony,
you can always ascertain the truth of it
without leaving the city limits. Here
is a case:

Mr. H. Thompson, of 306 Fourth
street, presser at the D. E. McNicol pottery, and a resident of East Liverpool
for the past forty-five years, says:
"During my campaign experiences between the years of '61 and '64 I contracted a weakness of the kidneys, and
at intervals I had an aching pain across
the small of my back, and was subject
to attacks of muscular rheumatism, especially in damp and changeable
weather. I was frequently so bad that I could scarcely get up when down, and
in fact could hardly get around at all.
I tried many remedies in an endeavor to
get rid of my trouble, but found nothing
until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. pharmacy. They
filled the bill exactly, giving me almost
immediate relief, and warding off the
last attack."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by

agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

NO MORE REBELS.

Admiral Philip Erases Part of an Inscription on a Civil War Relic.

Rear Admiral John W. Philip, commandant of the navy yard in Brooklyn, pointed with pride recently to a change he had brought about in the government property under his care. To the right of the entrance to the admiral's office in Main street, is a huge wedge shaped piece of iron which was taken from the prow of the Confederate ram Mississippi after the civil war. Upon it was the inscription, "Taken From the Rebel Ram Mississippi."

Every day these words caught the eye of the admiral. The other day the word "Rebel" was scraped from the rusty old trophy. "There are no rebels now," said Admiral Philip, "there is no north and no south, and anyhow I don't like the word 'rebel.' It's no word for these times."—New York Herald.

The Smart Young Wife.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Smith were preparing to make a visit to friends for a few days. Their baby was only 2 months old, but was an important member of the family just the same. Mr. Smith was up stairs and Mrs. Smith down stairs, putting on her things and getting ready to start. "Hubby," she called out to her better half on the floor above, "please bring me my gloves! They are lying on the dresser. And bring me my overshoes and veil and that hatpin lying on top of the chiffonier and a few of those animal crackers for baby, and don't forget the baby's toothbrush."

Poor hubby had a hard time finding everything his wife wanted. He was a long while making his appearance and finally his wife called to him, "What is keeping you, dear?"

Then Mrs. Smith laughed. "You silly duck," said she, "did you not know that I was only joking? The baby, bless her dear little heart, hasn't a tooth to her name."

That was why hubby got so mad and "said things" as he was coming down stairs. A man never likes to have a joke played on him by his wife.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

A Real Bottomless Pit.

Few indeed are they who have penetrated to the innermost recesses of Willis' cave—to the great rotunda where the icy water of the "big spring" takes a leap into the midnight blackness of the "bottomless pit." The entrance to the cave is at the summit of a hill near Versailles, Ind.

Rider Haggard, in his imaginary pictures of underground horrors, has told nothing that would equal the true story which a single misstep would furnish in Willis' cave. A stream of water pours from the rock, and, pursuing a devious underground channel for a quarter of a mile, emerges into a vast chamber with a slanting, slippery floor inclining to a sink hole in the center. Down this hole the stream pours and is lost forever. By means of ropes and weights the sink hole has been sounded to a depth of 400 feet, and still the bottom has not been reached. The room is surrounded by a narrow ledge of rock, on which daring explorers have made a complete circuit. One step off the ledge upon the slippery floor would mean almost instant death in the bottomless pit.

Consumption and Fresh Air.

It is a matter of common knowledge, says an English exchange, that the late Sir Andrew Clarke cured himself of consumption by living as much as possible in the open air. The principle involved has since been generally recognized by the medical profession, with the result that the old bad practice of keeping consumptives in warm, stuffy rooms has been almost entirely abandoned. It is fresh air which is mainly responsible for the cures worked at such places as Davos, where the patients spend 14 hours a day out of doors, breathing cold, bracing mountain air, while they are exhilarated by bright sunshine. The result is that each diseased spot in the lungs is cut off from the healthy tissue by a ring of stretched cells, across which disease germs cannot pass, and so the malady is arrested until the strengthened body can overcome it.

Worse Than Not Stopping.

An Englishman traveling in Maryland had occasion to investigate the running time of the trains that passed through the small place where he was stopping. Carefully searching a time table he found apparently that there would be an express train due at 4 o'clock that afternoon. The Englishman was on time with his grip, etc., and so was the express train. The intending passenger watched it approach and thunder by the station at top speed. The traveler was annoyed, and, turning to a colored man who stood near, remarked:

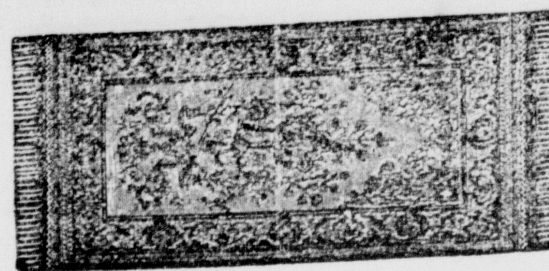

"That train didn't stop!"

CASHIER FOILED A ROBBER.

Fought Instead of Giving Over The Cash, Thief Fled.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., April 19.—A man entered the State's Saving bank while Cashier Brown was alone, and presenting a revolver ordered Brown to turn over the bank's money. Instead of complying, Brown picked up a stool and prepared to strike the robber. The stranger fired several shots, one of them striking the cashier in the arm, inflicting a slight wound. Brown backed away and finally succeeded in closing the door.

B. F. Sargent, a merchant next door, was attracted by the shooting, but a shot from the robber's revolver compelled him to retreat. Sargent called for the police and the robber ran, disappearing without securing any money. Police were searching for him.

CARRIED BY DEMOCRATS.

Elected a Mayor in New Haven—Elections in Illinois.

NEW HAVEN, April 19.—At the city election held here Cornelius T. Driscoll, the Democratic candidate for mayor, defeated Frederick B. Farnsworth (Rep.), the present incumbent, by upwards of 2,000 plurality. It is probable that the entire Democratic ticket was elected. The vote was a large one.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Town and village elections were held throughout Illinois. In nearly all cases the issues were purely local. In some places non-partisan tickets were chosen, and some the Republicans were successful.

A Living Mummy.

A vat containing 100 gallons of rapidly drying cement burst at Lafayette, Ind., and covered Simon Arlington, a contractor, from head to foot. It hardened rapidly, and the members of his family found him incased tightly in three and a half inches of the cement. They had to get hammers and chisels and work for half an hour to release him. He is now in a hospital, but will probably recover.—New York Journal.
